At right, in background, is Joe Williams Jr. Susan Wood prepares to mount the duck. The Wood girls are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Wood, 518 East Kathleen. Sims is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sims, 307 Benton; Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Chadd, 238 First, and Joe Williams Jr. is the son of "Big Joe", 119 East Trotter.

WHEN A SLIDING board is more than just a sliding board it's called a space platform. Children using new equipment at Central Park, Prairie and Edmondson, are, Allen Chadd, sipping a soft drink, Susan Wood, climbing platform, Rosemary Wood, atop, watches Joe Williams Jr. sliding. Greg Allen and Marsha Wood run back for another slide. The equipment was purchased by the Junior Woman's club and the park board.

Children Greeting Newest Public Park

The newest public park is taking shape with installation of a space platform sliding board and five saddle mate rocking animals.

It is located at Prairie and Edmondson.

Other equipment which will be installed is a merry go round, seesaws, two swing sets and a horizontal ladder.

Equipment was purchased with $900 from the Junior Woman's club matched by the park board.

Proceeds from the club's annual talent and variety show at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the junior high school auditorium will purchase more playground equipment.

The new park was acquired by the city Jan. 1, 1966. Clearning of old buildings, grading and planting has taken place since. Tennis courts were installed last spring and lights, which stay on until 10 p.m., were erected last summer.

Crowded conditions prevail on the courts almost every night of favorable weather.

10th District 2 Per Cent Below Norm

Long Debated Redistricting Bill Gains Senate Approval

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A controversial congressional redistricting bill passed the Missouri Senate today, 28-5.

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, said the districts varied from 2.5 per cent over the norm of 431,981 in the 1st District to 2 per cent under in the 10th of southeastern Missouri — a total variation of only 4.5 per cent.

A federal court ordered the reapportionment because the present districts were much further from the one man-one vote rule.

Sen. Thomas G. Wollsey, R-Versailles, one of those voting against the bill, called it "a charade not of your choosing." He noted the proposed new districts are based on the 1960 census and therefore are more out of balance than the present ones.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, also voiced objection to the bill because his airport township would put him in the Republican 2nd District of St. Louis County instead of the 1st represented by Rep. Frank M. Karsten, D-St. Louis.

The other dissenters were Sens. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, John J. Johnson, D-Sappington, and Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis.

Under the plan, most of the St. Louis Negro wards would go into the 1st District, giving Negroes a chance to consolidate their vote and perhaps elect Missouri's first Negro congressman.

The political complexion of outstate districts would be relatively unchanged.

Also passed and sent to the House was a bill to base state aid to schools on estimated average daily attendance for the current school year instead of on last year's actual attendance.

It is intended primarily to aid fast growing districts in urban areas. The cost the first year is estimated at $2.9 million.

Other bills sent to the House included:

The Perennial measure to authorize sale of liquor by the drink at Lambert-St. Louis Airport.

Put the St. Louis school system under one administrative head instead of four independent administrators.

Allow the State Park Board to acquire the few remaining covered bridges in the state and maintain them as historic sites.

Raise the pay of Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter from $15,000 a year to $19,000 and Employment Security Director Herman Julien from $14,200 to $18,000.

Allow 3rd and 4th class counties to set up cheaper alternative forms of government.

Wednesday night the House Judiciary Committee heard testimony but took no action on a constitutional change to require only a 60 per cent instead of a two-thirds majority to pass general obligation bonds.

The proposal already has passed the Senate, which settled for the 60 per cent figure although Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had recommended a

ANKARA (AP) - For several years observers have been noting the decline and predicting the fall of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO).

The dire predictions increased with the appearance in 1964 of Regional Cooperation for development, an economic and cultural pact signed by CENTO's regional members, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. This agreement pointedly excluded CENTO's western partners, the United States and Great Britain.

In April 1966 when the CENTO Council of Ministers met, it was picked as a likely time for the final act. But the curtain did not come down.

In a remarkably healthy - sounding final statement, the CENTO ministers "agreed that the need for collective security is imperative in present world circumstances," and reaffirmed their determination to maintain the defensive strength of CENTO."

Last December, CENTO economic experts met here to discuss economic aid side of the pact. And in January the foreign minister of Iran, Pakistan and Turkey met here as the RCD Council of Ministers - and studiously avoided any mention of CENTO.

CENTO certainly does not carry the same importance as it did in 1955 when it was organized as the Baghdad Pact, a mutual pact against Russian expansionism. CENTO's military aspect was based on fear of the Soviet Union.

Now Iran is buying arms from Russia. Turkey has recently been host to Alexei Kosygin. Pakistan is much more concerned with Indian than with Russia. As the fear subsides, the pact declines in importance.

Economically, CENTO's Western partners have made large contributions to the area. Expensive microwave relay and air navigation systems as well as transport links have been completed or are in the process of completion.

Although CENTO in continuing an extensive technical aid program, there are no big new projects in sight. The regional members are quick to point this out. Finding new economic projects is the "major challenge" facing CENTO, said the head of the Turkish delegation at the economic meeting.

The regional countries all have a gripe against their Western partners.

-- Turkey, because they did not support Turkey against Greece in the Cyprus question.

--Pakistan because CENTO did not support her against India in the Kashmir question.

-- Iran, because CENTO won't turn its attention sufficiently to what it fears most: pro-Nassar subversion in the Persian Gulf.

For internal political reasons, all three prefer to play down the relation through CENTO with the U.S. and Great Britain.

But for all the criticism and calls for "reviewing" CENTO, there is no indication that any of the regional members is ready to pull out. Nor is there an indication that they are ready to turn RCD into a military pact to take the place of CENTO -- a military pact they could use in such regional problems as Cyprus, Kashmir and subversion in the Persian Gulf.

Pakistan has been credited with this desire. But while here, Pakistan Foreign Minister Sharifuddin Pirzada emphatically denied that Pakistan wanted to give RCD a military function. CENTO officials and some RCD officials insist that the two pacts are not competitive or redundant.

CENTO does for the regional members things they cannot do for themselves -- sending experts, equipment and providing scholarships. RCD does what the members can do for themselves through cooperation. The pact is limited by the smiliarity of the economies in the member countries. They are complementary in only limited fields.

RCD seems to be making progress toward a goal which Pirzada expressed as "a sort of common market." There is even a possibility that Afghanistan and Iraq may join up.

Meanwhile, CENTO continues to creak along.

Three Burglaries Reported

Three burglaries and the vandalism of an elementary school in Sikeston were reported to police today.

Clothing and other items valued at a total of $462 were taken from a car parked at the Holiday Inn sometime between 5 p.m. Wednesday and early today, police said.

Air Force Lt. Ronald E. Klipsch, Indianapolis, Ind., and his wife reported a suit, a sport coat, several pairs of slacks, underwear, maternity clothing, a camera, a raincoat and other items were taken.

Police said the burglar apparently forced a wire between the top door glass and the rubber weather stripping on the right side of the car and unlocked the door.

A red basket- weave purse with envelopes containing at least $111 was reported taken between 9 a.m. and 10:05 p.m. Wednesday from the residence of Leonard Campbell, 520 Coleman.

The house was unlocked. Campbell reported that the key broke off when he attempted to lock the house before leaving.

Burglars entered Daughtery's Tavern, 109 West Malone, through an exhaust fan in the roof by bending one of the fan blades for an opening. Between $25 and $30 was reported taken from the cigarette machine and the jukebox. Five boxes of cigars, six or seven boxes of gum, cigarette lighter, a pipe wrench and other tools were taken.

A lock on the inside of a rear door was broken, apparently when the burglars left, police reported.

A breakin was reported today at Lincoln school, 229 Westgate. Donald Fulton, 109 Thompson, principal, showed police where vandals entered through a south window. Books and papers were scattered on the floors in southwest section of the building. Milk was taken from the kitchen and poured on the kitchen and gymnasium floors. Two windows in the building were broken, police reported.

Part of the decoration in the gymnasium for an area talent show "Omega Showboat" to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday were torn down, Fulton said.

In other police activity, Everett Masters, foreman at

Stone Assigned To 3 Counties

POPLAR BLUFF -- T. J. Greer, liquor agent for the state department of liquor control in seven counties including Butler for the past 14 months, has been reassigned.

Greer, who lives in Fredericktown, is being replaced in Butler and Ripley counties by J. E. "Bud" Stone, a new agent who is a former Sikeston police officer.

Stone will be in charge of Dunklin, Butler and Ripley counties.

Greer formerly was the agent in Ripley, Butler, Wayne Stoddard, Carter and Bollinger counties. He now will lose Ripley and Butler and gain Madison.

Four Injured are Given Treatment

Four persons received injuries Wednesday and were given treatment in the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

Randy Paul Green, injured left ankle while playing at school; Glen Leslie Merick, injured right hand in fall at school; Pamela Duke, fell on doorstep and cut her head; Richard Landers, Canalou, received burns on both hands from flaming gasoline.

Contact Excuses Juror

CINCINNATI, Ohio. AP -- A Cincinnati woman was being questioned Wednesday by a court attorney for possible jury duty.

"Have you ever come in contact with any police?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

"In what way?"

"I've been married to one for 34 years."

The woman, Helen Stone, is the wife of patrolman Ralph Stone. She was excused from the jury.

Spooning Fine Rejected

FOX POINT, WIS. (AP) - A proposed extra $3 fee for spooners who favor the parked car for romance has been rejected by the Fox Point Village Board.

Village attorney Fraley Weidner said police urged him to ask the council for an ordinance providing a $6 fine for illegal parking when persons are using the offending vehicle for nocturnal kissing.

Dexter Hospital Given Inspection

DEXTER - Federal and state inspectors were here today to inspect the Dexter Memorial hospital under construction.

The hospital has reached the 25 per cent completion stage of construction costs: If approved by the inspectors the Hill - Harris fund will send the hospital funds for 49 per cent of matchable items that have been spent. This includes construction materials, architects fees and labor.

The inspectors left at 2 p.m.

The hospital needs $130,000 in pledges or money to reach the goal to provide Stoddard county with modern hospital facilities.

Sleeping Driver Strikes Culvert

A 1965 GMC tractor - trailer, driven by William Barker, 51, Kingsland, Ark., struck a concrete culvert this morning at 12:30 a.m. on Interstate 55 four miles north of Sikeston.

The driver apparently went to sleep, and entered the median, the state patrol reported.

A four-car collision Wednesday at 1:10 p.m. on highway 67 north of Poplar Bluff, resulted in the arrest of one driver for failure to yield the right-of-

Trailways Bus Line Faces Strike

ALEXANDRIA, La. AP -- A federal mediator called both sides together today in an effort to avert a strike against Continental Southern Trailways Bus Line, scheduled to start at midnight.

The walkout by about 350 bus drivers and 100 terminal employes would affect company operations in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Missouri.

Robert Cummings, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union's Local 1534, said there was little progress in negotiating sessions Wednesday and little hope of a settlement before the deadline.

Jaycees Plan Reception for Peter Myers

Area residents are invited by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to attend a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Myers of Canalou from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday at the Country Club.

Myers has been selected as one of four of the nation's outstanding young farmers in 1967 by the National Awards Congress, sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The award is expected to draw recognition of the Sikeston area in farm publications.

Myers is the only farmer in Missouri to achieve the honor.

Queen for a Day

SPRINGFIELD AP -- Janet Bernice Musick, 18, lost her title as Miss Springfield of 1967 after a reign of only a day.

After Miss Musick was crowned Saturday night, officials of the annual pageant discovered an error in tabulating the votes of the judges. The title was transferred to her runner - up, Linda Roller, 21.

"My reign was short," Miss Musick moaned. "I was just queen for a day."

She and Miss Roller are students at Southwest Missouri State College and belong to the same sorority.

Armory Festooned

The Armory is being decorated for the Chamber of Commerce man of the Year banquet at 6:30 p.m. next Thursday.

Gen. Maxwell Taylor, special adviser to the president on Vietnam, will speak.

His remarks will deal specifically with the war and what lies ahead. The public is invited to present questions for General Taylor to answer by mailing them to the Chamber of Commerce office. Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber office.

Entertainment will be provided by members of the cast of "South Pacific," who will give glimpses of the Little Theater's production. The play will open the following night at junior high school.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

APRIL'S BIG BIRTHDAY

Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826). Born April 13 in Virginia. Lawyer, architect, inventor, statesman; best known as author of the Declaration of Independence, written in 1776. Served as governor of Virginia, minister to France, and Secretary of State in Washington's first administration. Vice-President during John Adams' administration. Wrote his own epitaph, but neglected to mention that he had been President.

The public issues and problems of Jefferson's time were really no different from the basic issues of today: The centralization of government power at the expense of individual liberty; the excessive influence of foreign powers on our foreign policy; and, the political alliance of the pressure groups against the wage-earners, farmers and businessmen.

TIME TO PAY UP

It's that time of year again. Like the mythical sword of Damocles, Monday, April 17 - hangs ominously over the heads of all Americans who have income, whatever the source.

Almost every day of the year, we read that someone has been indicted - someone convicted or sentenced - for income tax evasion. That knowledge adds shivers to the thought: "What if I should make a mistake?" Of course, we know that the taxpayer doesn't go to prison for mistakes, that he is only assessed a fairly reasonable penalty; but we also know that cheating is punished severely. What if an honest mistake were to be mistaken for intentional cheating?

Too, there is the knowledge that many of those income tax returns are audited every year - carefully checked for mistakes or cheating. Probably every taxpaper "just knows" that his is one that will be audited.

Exaggerating? Perhaps some, but not much. Americans do worry - some entirely too much - about those income tax returns. Yet, Uncle Sam is no ogre; has no desire to punish good citizens for mistakes.

And mistakes there are; a surprisingly large number of them. Of the returns received last year, nearly 4 million were found in error. The surprising thing is that almost as many taxpayers had cheated themselves by honest mistakes as had tried to cheat their Uncle Sam. Just about 2 million had mistakes in their own favor, and 1.9 million erred in old Uncle's favor.

The federal government paid back those who had overpaid, and you can bet your next week's tax take he collected from those who erred in their own favor - collected about $100 million more than he paid back.

And $100 million can pay for a lot of returns auditing. Even so, the auditing is far less strict than most taxpayers think.

If the 1965 auditing ratio holds true this year, your chances of having your income tax returns audited - beyond the quick checkover it may receive at the hands of one of the Internal Revenue Service clerks - is about one in 23. And even that check it receives at the hands of the clerk who opens your returns occurs to only about one of every three returns.

So the chances are two to one that your return won't even receive so much as a quick audit by a pressure-harassed clerk; 23 to one that it won't be run through those computers which have added so much to the efficiency of IRS in recent years. As a matter of fact, if you're one of the "little guys" with just a modest income, your chances of computerized auditing are even less - far less.

And it pays: With 4 percent fewer computerized auditings in 1965 than in 1964, that careful auditing paid off for old Uncle who collected about $2.4 billion extra for his careful pains - "quality audits", the IRS prefers to call them - $1.1 billion from individuals and $1.3 billion from corporations.

Honest mistakes don't usually cause any flurry. A friend told us once that he had been caught in error in two different years. The first time brought him a check - he had overpaid - and the second time brought him a notice that he still owed a trifling amount. Nothing more said about it. If there is honest doubt, the individual may be called into an IRS office to explain; but again, the results are far from disastrous - if it is an obvious mistake.

As for deliberate cheating - now that's something else, something highly inadvisable. Remember those stories you see frequently in your newspapers. Cheaters may get by for a year or so, but almost everyone can expect an audit of his return at some time.

FREEDOM FROM FREEMAN

Congressman Tom Curtis' bill to end government controls on whest and feed grains, referred to by columnist Holmes Alexander is one of the most significant measures to be introduced in the Ninetieth Congress.

Passage of this measure would do what Orville Freeman probably dreads - return the farm to the farmer. But it would be the best thing that could possibly happen to American agriculture.

The urgent need now is for greatly expanded farm production. Controls no longer should be tolerated. There hasn't been an opportunity like this in decades to end the costly, bungling Agriculture Department controls.

These costly subsidies, incidentally, have gone mainly to the big farmers and farm corporations, who needed them the least.

The Curtis bill also would stop the dumping of government-purchased wheat and feed grains to depress farm prices - a move that should be applauded by farmers harassed by the practice.

This measure, H. R. 7326, could signal a return to free enterprise farming - a great victory for all Americans. - Globe Democrat

Summertime travel for parents of very young babies has usually meant loading the car up like a moving van with all of the furniture, formula-making and bottling equipment, and other paraphernalia a baby needs.

It wasn't much trouble for the baby - who is usually just as comfortable in one place as another - so long as Mom is there. But for Mother - and Father - it meant far less room in the car and much more work and bother than caring for the baby at home. By the time they got where they were going, the enjoyment was pretty well gone from the outing.

With many of today's conveniences, however, traveling with a baby is far less bulky business. Modern disposable products and handy rental services really cut down on the packing.

Take the formula, for example. Instead of carting along measuring, mixing, bottling and sterilizing equipment, Mom can use a disposable, prefilled bottle of baby formula. Called Enfamil Nursette, the unit does not need refrigeration (or heating before use) and eliminates any danger of mixing the wrong ingredients or amounts. When baby has finished the meal, the bottle can be thrown away.

Another product that is ideal for travel is the disposable diaper. There's no need to take along a huge supply for a lengthy trip either. You'll be able to stock up almost any place you go. (Shop as you go for the disposable bottles of formula, baby foods and other items, too.)

You'll also be able to find throw-away baby bibs and other baby products, such as individually wrapped bars of baby soap, that will make your trip a little more convenient.

Don't take any more baby furniture than you will actually need on the way. A car bed will double nicely as a bed, play pen, and general resting spot for the baby. If you want larger furniture at your destination, write ahead (or ask your host to call) the local rental agency.

If this is your first long trip in a car with a small baby, don't worry about it. Babies are rarely car-sick, and the hum of the wheels usually lulls them to sleep quite easily. If your baby should eat less on the trip, just feed him a little more often.

Traveling with a baby really is no longer much of a problem. This year, you may even find that you enjoy it almost as much as he seems to.

LONDON (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Prince Charles is subduing the persistent comment that Britain's royal family is uninterested in the arts.

It was seldom bruited about publicly, but often — usually in arty, arty circles — one heard such acid remarks as:

"Music? Why, my dear, the queen's favorite music is Housewives Choice."

Housewives Choice is a morning radio feature of British Broadcasting Corp.

"Painting? Why, my dear, they're no more interested in serious painting than I am in comic strips."

"Literature? Why, my dear chap, everyone knows their interest goes no deeper than James Bond."

Now Prince Charles' talents have stopped some of this talk.

In public within the last few months he has sung, acted, played the trumpet and knocked off a bit of Mozart and Schumann and Benjamin Britten on the viola. A music master says he possesses perfect pitch.

Prince Charles started slowly, first by mastering the drums, the bagpipe and then the electric guitar, even to the point of performing with a pop group at the palace.

Then at Gordonstoun School in Scotland he played Macbeth, sang in a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance, became accomplished on the viola and said that he is fascinated by Shakespeare.

As to the rumors that the royal family is uninterested in culture — persons who know them well dismiss the rumors as wild exaggerations, but admit there may be a germ of truth in the gossip.

The queen inherited one of the greatest art collections and can talk with interest and considerable knowledge about old masters.

But, aside from her family and her job her main interest is in horses. Prince Philip's mind is scientific and mechanical.

When it comes to the theater, the royal ladies are most often seen at comedies and farces.

33 YEARS AWAY AND ALREADY A PROBLEM

We have just turned 1967 and some people are already worrying about turning the century.

The question is, when does the next century begin - Jan. 1, 2000, or Jan. 1, 2001? There was the same controversy back in 1900.

It seems natural that the 21st century should begin with 2000, yet logic shows that it can't. The 1st century started with the year 1, not 0. The 2nd century began 100 (not 99) years later on Jan. 1, 101 - and so on down the halls of time.

But logic is one thing and a sense of rightness another. A Londoner named John Goodwin has started an organization called "WACY 2000" and, wacky as WACY sounds, it has members from Hong Kong to Nigeria, reports Read magazine. The initials stand for "World Association for the Celebration of the Year 2000."

"Not only do we intend to be here in 2000," says Goodwin, who is 37, "but we intend to be here celebrating."

There are others who have more than an emotional interest in the upcoming century. Twentieth Century-Fox, for example, plans to change its name to Twenty-first Century-Fox on Jan. 1, 2000. They will undoubtedly inaugurate the new century with a 19th-century horse opera.

The CBS television network isn't going to wait that long. It has changed its documentary program, "The Twentieth Century," to "The Twenty-first Century."

In Denver, however, Twentieth Century Painters and Decorators isn't going to change to Twenty-first Century Painters and Decorators, says Read, because "it's not very romantic and it's hard to pronounce." The Twentieth Century Market in Seattle is going to get around the "sound barrier" by calling itself Century Twenty-one Market.

For the rest of us, the question is academic and will be so for the next 33 years.

Or is it 34?

When Charles A. Beard, the famous historian, was asked if he could summarize the lessons of history in a single volume, he said he could do it in four sentences:

1. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad with power.

2. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small.

3. The bee fertilizes the flower it robs.

4. When it is dark enough, you can see the stars.

The trouble with opportunity knocking at the door is that it so often turns out to be house-to-house canvasser.

An insanely jealous woman compelled her husband to undergo a rigid inspection after every "night out with the boys." If she discovered a single hair on his clothes, there would be a terrible row. One night, having found nothing, not even a single hair, she burst into tears and cried: "Even bald-headed women, now!"

H. L. Hunt Says

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - # 5

Valuable time should not be spent arguing with the enemy. The atheist and dictator-minded are likely to be better trained in debate than you. If you can reach their dupes, often they can be converted by stating the case for Christianity and Freedom and leaving them to think it over. When patriots become active in promoting Christianity and Freedom, everything they do will remind others of things they can do and will wish to do.

Liberty Legions must not take time out from their great mission for any bitterness and hate. "Hate" belongs to the enemies which assail patriots. They use it effectively, but let them have it. Freedomists must rely on truth and reason.

There is power in prayer. More than 100 million prayers each day are offered in our country. The independence of our Nation can be safeguarded if many will include these simple words or their substance in every prayer they utter, "Guide us in the best ways to save the independence of our Nation." Commend clergymen for the battle they must wage against atheistic communism and equally atheistic socialism.

A clergyman's words are more than law to his congregation; if he is willing to preach against sin, communism and crime simultaneously, he is entitled to the largest audience and will be rewarded with a larger number of converts through his ministry. The clergyman who extols freedom, condemns atheism and causes the choir to sing a patriotic song, will gain twice as many new members as if he treated the communist menace as something which should not be mentioned. Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It's the smallest, poorest countries which have the most to gain from hemispheric cooperation but which are absent from the summit conference now meeting in Uruguay.

They knew, of course, that the conference was precooked--like a TV dinner -- with everything decided by the technicians in advance. They also knew that no important political questions would be discussed.

Bolivia, the poorest nation in South America, is absent because access to the sea is not specifically on the agenda, though it could have been discussed privately at Punta Del Este.

Haiti, the poorest country in the Caribbean, which needs economic help from the larger nations of the western hemisphere, is absent partly because President Francois Duvalier is nursing a grudge against the USA, partly because he fears revolution will break loose if he leaves the country.

Haiti is the biggest political problem in the western hemisphere and could flare up into another Dominican Republic. It illustrates the weakness of the present Pan American machinery for dealing with emergencies and points to one problem which the presidents of Punta Del Este must remedy.

In Washington, the state department's "ready room" is constantly alert for any sign of Haitian revolution. In Haiti, President Duvalier, a graduate of the University of Michigan medical school and at one time an expert on yaws, sits isolated, bitter against the United States, ruling over a country which could become the Congo of the Caribbean. Suffering from diabetes and a heart condition, Duvalier's formerly robust figure has dwindled to toothpick size.

When he dies or is removed from office, a blood bath is almost certain between the wealthy Mulattoes, who once ruled the country, and the poverty-stricken blacks. Meanwhile, the U. S. S. boxer lies at anchor off the coast, ready to repeat in Haiti what caused so much bitterness against the United States when we landed troops in the Dominican Republic.

ADVANCE PRECAUTIONS

To head off similar embarrassment, the state department last fall warned the Organization of the American States that trouble was brewing in Haiti. As a result, the former President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, was drafted from his farm near Quito to go to Haiti for talks with Duvalier.

Plaza is an expert troubleshooter. He acted on behalf of the United Nations in Lebanon when the Eisenhower administration landed troops in 1958; and also on the beleaguered island of Cyprus when the U.N. intervened to prevent war between Greece and Turkey in 1964.

In Haiti, Galo Plaza persuaded President Duvalier to accept a formula by which the United States would send road-building equipment to Haiti, and in return Haiti would permit the O. A. S. to send troops -- officially for the purpose of guarding the bulldozers, actually to prevent the expected blood bath between blacks and Mulattoes.

"You have been accused of swiping road - building equipment in the past," Plaza half joked to President Duvalier. "This will be protection for you."

PHILEGMATIC BUREAUCRAT

Duvalier agreed, but the proposal was never carried out. It went to the O. A. S., where it ran up against philegmatic Dr. Jose Mora, the charming, do - nothing secretary general. Dr. Mora held a few conferences with other ambassadors who apparently did not care whether a Haitian blood bath occurred or not. In the end, the carefully worked out plan of Galo Plaza was put on the shelf.

Haiti is the second oldest republic in the western hemisphere, having obtained its independence from France in 1804. But it has also seen some of the bloodiest wars in hemispheric history. Thousands of blacks have been murdered by fellow blacks in the past. Nothing but the ominous shadow of the U. S. S. boxer at anchor off the coast can now prevent chaos after Duvalier dies -- unless President Johnson this week can work out an advance commitment from his fellow Presidents.

Ex-President Galo Plaza is now operating the biggest Holstein dairy farm in the northern part of South America. He is milking 400 cows and shares ownership in a famous $26,000 North American bull, "Grayview Chris Crown," developed by the Curtis Candy Company. This bull is kept in Illinois, but its semen has been distributed by air to 2,000 cows in Puerto Rico, the Caribbean, and South America at a cost of $350 per insemination.

In Quito last month, Galo Plaza drove out to the Equador with Chief Justice Earl Warren to have his picture taken with the Chief Justice, one foot in the northern hemisphere, one foot in the southern hemisphere.

Galo is enjoying life where he is in Ecuador, takes a few trips each year to New York where he was born, and sometimes to the west coast of the United States where he studied at the University of California, with additional studies in animal husbandry at the University of Maryland. He is not looking for trouble, having been the first president to Ecuador to live out his term without being killed or deposed by revolution.

However, a man of his ability should not be wasted on dairy cows, high caliber as they may be, thanks to Grayview Chris Brown. So there has been talk among Latin American diplomats of drafting him to become Secretary General of the O.A.S. And until the O. A. S. gets a dynamic executive who will head off trouble before it becomes acute, we will probably continue having crisis in Latin America. It will take a man of the stature of Galo Plaza, ex - President Lleras Camargo of Colombia, or ex - President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela, to put the comatose O. A. S. back into effective business.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Trucker's Strategy Against Big Teamsters Will Set Pace For Rail, Auto, Steel Battles

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Those trucking operators, some of whom are tough enough to match pre-prison Jimmy Hoffa - muscle for muscle, mind for mind, strategem for strategem, dollar for dollar - have become the midwives of a new era inside labor.

By calling the first national lockout since the great foundry feud of 1887, they're providing industry's first effective counterthrust to the truly awesome power of some unions and to the irresistible labor technique of whipsawing.

The lockout strategy will spread soon enough - to the airlines, the railroads, the auto industry and even big steel, to mention just a few.

It took courage for the truckers to shut down. Hoffa not too long ago had told some of them with spitting contempt, they had "no guts." For some of them this is true even if Hoffa said so.

It took courage because trucking is a gypsy's world. There are 40,000 Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) licensed operators. True, the Trucking Employers, Inc. -- 1,500 operators, some of them men with vast fleets ranging up to 15,000 vans --hire some 250,000 Teamsters.

But the lockout-breakers are all over the lot. They'll haul anything. And they'll roll with impugnity. The TEI's operators aren't the old robber barons. They'll not unleash trucks to smash the gypsy fleets. The only muscle they have comes from driving on the greens.

Furthermore, the Teamsters can retaliate. Make no mistake about Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons. He's out of Hoffa own Detroit home local. He's worked the lines with Hoffa. He's been playing it cool and standing up quietly - nerveless under pressure. And there is no contact with Hoffa. There isn't enthusiastic support from some of the other vice-presidents who are organizing to "dump" him as soon as possible.

So it took courage from the men of the mansions to decide to fight it out.

Their decision was well planned. It was formulated during the past four years when many did not know the difference between TEI and TVA.

As this column was the first to report in the fall of 1963, the truck operators were awed by the Teamsters' power. So the owners organized Trucking Employers, Inc. - virtually in secret - for an eventual showdown with Hoffa.

At first they had no address. Just a post office box. The executive secretary was anonymous. There was a 70-man high command. They moved their meetings from hotel to hotel. They knew their talks eventually would leak. So they set up headquarters in Washington.

They were faced with what many other giant industries face - a union so powerful it could not be stopped. And whipsawing! This means that the pressure would be put on weaker firms for higher rates and then these would be used as a basis for contracts with the others. It's happened on the rails, on the airlines, in the publishing field, on the waterfront, in the auto industry.

So the truckers decided to get compulsory arbitration. But how?

By getting the government and the union to fight. But how to contrive this?

The strategem was simple. When the Teamsters began putting pressure on the truckers by shutting down some terminals, just shut down as much of the industry as possible. Trucking is more vital than rails. Trucks move food, fuel and material (including war logistics) from the factory door to the food store, from the warehouses to the docks. Bottle up the trucks, you bottle up the land.

Obviously the government would have to move, they reasoned. First would come Secretary of Labor Wirtz. Undersecretary Reynolds, Secretary of Transportation Boyd and even Defense Secretary McNamara. They did come in.

So the battle would be between the government and the union. If the strikes ended, the lockout would be ended. If Taft-Hartley came, there would be an 80-day cool. If there was a new special law, the result would be the same - enforced arbitration.

The truckers had consulted with leaders of other industries. Their fleets would be the vanguards.

Although fewer than 10,000 of the 250,000 Teamsters had gone on selected strikes, they locked the boys out. Fitz was not the issue. Hoffa was not the issue. The power of the Teamsters to force a $1.2 billion increase was the issue - without much argument. Thus now the lockout has become the issue and will be for a long time.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. F. F. Collins, 503 Maple St.

Buying Strips Shelves

NEW YORK AP - A wave of panic buying stripped some supermarket shelves in Chicago this week in the wave of the trucking industry contract dispute.

The same thing happened during the winter snowstorms.

Whether it was weather or labor problems, the effect may be the same in the supermarkets; limited supplies and higher prices.

Wholesale milk prices went up this week.

Egg prices rose sharply - 1 to 4 cents a dozen in New York City - after weeks of decline.

Canned orange juice prices also were raised.

Frozen limeade concentrate, canned corn and apricot prices also are headed higher. But there may be bargains on frozen brussel sprouts, frozen dinners and pies, tomato sauce, catsup, dietetic fruit cocktail and canned apple, grape, orange, cherry and fruit punches.

Beef steaks and roasts, bacon and hams are featured at meat counters this week, along with turkeys.

Dry onions are moving to market in the southwest and lower Rocky Mountains, where head lettuce prices are up sharply.

Strawberries from eastern Texas and watermelons from Florida also are showing up in the markets.

Michael Holden Is Two Years Old

Michael Holden, who was two years old Tuesday, celebrated his birthday Saturday at a party given at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holden.

A birthday cake decorated with a miniature train, ice cream and sodas were served. Balloons and suckers were favors.

Attending were Bradley Scott, Liz McCall, Lisa Johnson, Cindy, Donna and Joey Hubbert, Mrs. Gene Scott, Mrs. Tom Johnson, Mrs. Ray Hubbert; Miss Dianna Holden and Miss Barbara Ramsey, the honoree's aunts; and Mrs. Dewey Ramsey, his maternal grandmother.

Sending gifts were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Holden, the honoree's uncle and aunt and Mrs. Mildred Purlee, his paternal grandmother.

The following correction appeared in a small-town paper: "Our paper carried the notice last week that Mr. John Jones is a defective in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Jones is really a detective in the police farce."

Jerry Robinson.

WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

There are 10 little fingers and
10 little toes
That I count at the close of each
day;
And how I adore her two cheeks
like a rose
As she kneels by her bed to pray.
She looks like an angel as she drifts off to sleep--
I wonder what makes up her
dreams;
As she holds close to her heart
the old teddybear
That is falling apart at the seams.

Senators Whip Yankees; Boston, Detroit Win First

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Young Joe Coleman, a minor league flop with a major league future, figured Senatorial backing would keep him in Washington this year.

So far, the 20-year-old right-hander has received all the support he's needed — from the fumbling New York Yankees.

The Senators poured across nine unearned runs — the last four on Ken McMullen's grand slam homer — in the second inning Wednesday night and whipped New York 10-4 as Coleman breezed to his fourth victory in as many big league appearances.

Rico Petrocelli drove in four runs, leading Boston past the Chicago White Sox 5-4 in their season opener, and Detroit trimmed California 6-3 behind Mickey Lolich's six-hitter in the only other American League games. Cleveland was rained out at Kansas City.

In National League play, Philadelphia edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings and Houston topped Atlanta 4-2.

Coleman, whose father Joe, Sr., pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics 20 years ago, was a 19-game loser at York, Pa., in the Eastern League last season. He came to the Senators' training camp this spring with an overall minor league mark of 9-29.

But he had hurled complete-game victories in three late-season starts for Washington over the past two years -- a four-hitter, five-hitter and six-hitter.

The 6-foot-3 rookie from Natick, Mass., failed to finish Wednesday night, giving way to reliever Dick Lines with two out in the ninth after yielding eight hits.

Coleman can't account for the major league-minor league dilemma. But he thinks part of his success in the majors has been due to the Senators' defensive support. "I have more confidence when I pitch with Washington because they have the guys who make the big plays," he said.

The Yankees' failure to make the plays cost them in the big second inning Wednesday night. Washington managed only four hits during the uprising, but three New York errors and four walks kept the rally alive before McMullen capped it with his bases-loaded blast.

Successive errors by shortstop John Kennedy and first baseman Ray Barker opened the gates before three walks, Cap Peterson's two-run double, Fred Valentine's two-run single and another boot by left fielder Tom Tresh drove Yankee starter Fritz Peterson from the mound.

Jim Bouton came out of the bullpen, walked Frank Howard intentionally and then served up the grand slam to McMullen.

Petrocelli staked the Red Sox to an early 4-0 lead by delivering a run-scoring single in the second inning and lashing a three-run homer off Chicago starter John Buzhardt in the third.

The White Sox fell behind 5-1 before knocking out winner Jim Lonborg with a three-run burst in the seventh. Relievers John Wyatt and Don McMahon then slammed the door.

Lolich pitched hitless ball through four innings, gave up two runs in the fifth and then finished strong as the Tigers won their first of the year.

Gates Brown rapped his second homer in two nights for Detroit and Bill Freehan, Lolich's batterymate, drove in three runs with a double and ground out.

THE BASEBALL game between Sikeston and Oran was postponed yesterday afternoon, due to rain.

It is doubtful that the game will be rescheduled due to the playing of sub-district and district playoffs beginning next week.

The Dogs meet Cape Girardeau this afternoon at Cape.

SPECIAL TRYOUTS for all boys who missed Sunday afternoon's trials will be held Friday at 7 p.m. on Puckett field.

These tryouts are for those boys who missed tryouts and for those whose managers told them to report for tryouts.

WARREN E. HEARNES will be the banquet speaker at the Annual Convention of the Conservation Federation of Missouri on April 22.

The announcement was made by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the 21,000 member organization.

Stegner said since Hearnes' election as Governor of Missouri, he has been in the forefront of the worthwhile conservation issues, many of them sponsored by the Federation.

Stegner pointed out that Hearnes established a Wild Rivers Commission, personally presented the first Missouri Conservationist of the Year Award at a Federation-sponsored dinner, and has been a leader in the fight to keep the Eleven Point River in Missouri and Arkansas a free-flowing stream.

The Federation's convention will begin Friday night, April 21st, and will conclude Sunday afternoon with the consideration by the delegates of resolutions which will form the basis of the Federation's policy for the ensuing year.

The meeting will be in Jefferson City.

WITHOUT DOUBT, America's most popular freshwater sport fish is the largemouth bass. And, for very good reasons... its fighting ability is superb, its endurance long, and it will strike anything that resembles food. Besides, it is usually good fare on the dinner table.

Here are the important things to know about this fish. . .

World Record: 22 1/4 pounds, caught in Montgomery Lake, Ala., in June of 1932. There is a possibility, although slight, this record will be broken.

Range: Now found in all the United States except Alaska, thanks to judicious transplanting and this fish's excellent ability to tolerate environmental extremes.

Habitat: Look for it around such cover as logs, rocks, bushes, fallen trees, gravel bars, pilings, deep holes, undercut banks, weed beds, lily pads, etc.

Lures: It can be caught on worms, minnows, hellgrammites, crawfish, frogs, and other live bait; most any artificial lure, properly presented, will produce a jolting strike and battle.

Tackle: All types, fly, spinning, spincasting, and bait casting. For all-around bass fishing.

Fishing tip: First, fish shore cover. If no fish are found, then tie on a floating-wiggling lure, and attach a keel sinker 15" ahead of this. Troll slowly until you catch a bass, then anchor and fish the area carefully for additional fish.

THE MISSISSIPPI COUNTY Recreation Association is in its second year, but it can boast a paid up membership of more than 500, and what is more important, an impressive list of do-it-yourself accomplishments.

"I suppose you could say that we simply got tired of waiting for someone else to do things for us, and that we decided to do what needed to be done ourselves," comments Sam Jones, the sportsman-landowner president of the outfit.

Most of the down-to-earth activities undertaken by the Association during its first year of operation consisted of improving inlet roads to various fishing areas, the so-called "Blue Holes" along the Mississippi River, and several chutes, notably Wolf Island, No. 7 and No. 3.

It might be well to explain what a Blue Hole is. These relatively small lakes of varying size and depth were created when flood waters of the Mississippi breached the levee and gouged out thousands of cubic yards of earth and sand. Since the cost of filling such lakes would be prohibitive, "ring levees" were built around the hole or lake, and after the mud and sand had settled out the resulting clear water reflected the blue sky. . .hence the name "Blue" hole.

Available membership money was greatly augmented or stretched by obtaining free-will labor, and donated power machinery and materials.

Neatly painted signs at each of the improved locations ask for the cooperation of visitors and fishermen not to abuse the facilities, and to avoid dumping and littering. So far this program has met with unusual success.

The Association has also initiated a yearly cleanup campaign.

One low cost activity that has resulted in good will for the Association is the publication of a small map showing primary roads and access raods to the riverfront.

CHARLES W. DEWITT, former co-owner of the old St. Louis Browns baseball team, died Tuesday night. He suffered a fatal heart attack in his home in suburban Clayton.

Dewitt, 66, was an insurance executive and civic leader in addition to his sports activities.

He and his brother, William, bought controlling interest in the Browns in 1949. Dewitt served as club vice president until 1951.

Dewitt was traveling secretary for the Browns 14 years before becoming an owner.

He also was chairman of the olympic soccer committee for the 1962 international games.

Title Fight Canceled

CHICAGO (AP) — Herbert Muhammad, Cassius Clay's Black Muslim adviser, has ruled out any title bout at any location between the heavyweight champion and Floyd Patterson.

Muhammad, in Chicago, lashed out with a torrent of bitter words at the order Wednesday of Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania directing that state's athletic commission to eliminate Pittsburgh as a site of the bout scheduled April 25.

Shafer's order came after a ruling Tuesday by the Nevada State Athletic Commission rejecting a proposal to hold the bout in Las Vegas.

Muhammad charged officials of the two states with religious and racial prejudice and said: "If Mohammad Ali (Clay) was a white Christian champion I don't think the fight would have been stopped."

He said he had told trainers to break up Clay's training camp in Las Vegas, come home and "forget about the whole thing."

Clay promptly boarded a plane and left the state. On his way through the air terminal at Las Vegas he told reporters he would definitely go into the Army April 28 as his draft board has ordered because "It would break my mother's heart if I didn't."

Clay's attorney in Cincinnati took another legal step to stop the Army from drafting Clay.

In a motion filed with the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals the attorney, Hayden Covington, asked for an injunction to halt Clay's scheduled induction in Houston pending an appeal from a decision by U.S. District Judge James Gordon of Owensboro, Ky.

Judge Gordon had rejected Clay's plea for exemption from service on the grounds he is a Black Muslim minister.

Muhammad said Clay would not fight Patterson at any location and said there were no plans for a title defense with any other challenger.

"If the governor (of Pennsylvania) knew the champion was going to be beaten by Patterson," Muhammad said, "he would have let the fight go on."

"They are trying to stop it because the champion is a Muslim and a Negro. This has given the whole country a black eye."

"This is how we still live in a land where we have to endure religious and race prejudice. We are not enjoying our own rights while we are being asked to fight overseas for the rights of others."

The scheduled 15-round match between Clay and the former two-time world heavyweight champion was at first approved by the Pennsylvania commission when talk of Pittsburgh as a possible site first came up five weeks ago.

Shafer said that when word came from Las Vegas that Gov. Paul Laxalt had ordered the fight out of Nevada he telephoned him and asked for his reasons.

Shafer said Laxalt told him that since he felt the first Clay-Patterson bout — won by Clay with a 12th-round technical knockout in Las Vegas in 1965 — was not a good fight there was no reason to stage a rematch.

Tigers On Road

COLUMBIA - Determined to caulk a leaky infield, Coach John (Hi) Simmons made two changes ahead of this weekend's vital baseball series with perky Kansas State at Manhattan.

The Wildcats dumped Nebraska three times, twice by shutouts, last week at Lincoln-while Mizzou booted away a similar opportunity at Stillwater and wound up with just one victory in three chances against the fast-finishing Cowboys.

Now, the Tigers must rebound sharply to avoid early extinction in the 1967 Big Eight race. Changes are in the offing at shortstop and second base. The Bengals collected 30 hits and 19 runs in three games against O.S.U. but erred grievously at crucial times.

They won the opener 6-5, lost the next two, 7-6 and 8-7.

Ken Meinert, sophomore from Moberly, takes over at short for veteran Rudy Stroupe. At second base, letterman Billy Griffin displaces rookie Kurt Boenker.

Outfielders Barry Lubeck (.379), Del Blunk (.333) and Ray Thorpe (.326) have led Mizzou's assault against rival pitching - with Jerry Hurt (3-0) the most reliable hurler.

Right-hander Hurt, carrying a 0.63 earned run average, will open against Coach Bob Brasher's gang Friday - with lefty Al Thomure (0-2) likely to pitch the second game. Dan Sharp, football quarterback from Kansas City, Kan., to go with its ace, Wade Johnson, in Friday's opener. The 6-3 righthander beat Mizzou, 7-1, here last year.

Probable M. U. lineup: Ray Thorpe, lf (.326); Gene Stephenson, 1b (.238); Jim Juras, 3b (.281); Del Blunk, cf (.333) Barry Lubeck, rf (.379); Ken Meinert, ss (.444); Billy Griffin, 2b (.111); Al Chettle, c (.143); and Jerry Hurt, p (3-0).

Hawks' Guerin Ends 11 Year Career As Player

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Warriers, fresh from a rugged victory over St. Louis for the Western Division title, find the towering Philadelphia 76ers and Wilt Chamberlain blocking their road to a national Basketball Association championship.

Coach Bill Sharman of the Warriors said after Wednesday night's 112-107 victory over St. Louis that "I think we've got an excellent chance of upsetting Philadelphia."

A second-half surge, led by Rick Barry, gave the Warriors their victory in the best-of-7 playoff series 4-2. Barry made 41 points.

Philadelphia dethroned defending champion Boston 4-1 to win the Eastern Division crown Tuesday night.

confine himself to coaching from the sidelines.

Sharman wanted to talk about the upcoming championship series with Philadelphia. "I think we've got an excellent chance... We won only two of seven games with them during the regular season, but we were really out of only one game."

Besides Barry's 41 points, Jeff Mullins, a Hawk castoff, scored 26 points for San Francisco. Nate Thurmond of San Francisco led both teams in rebounding with 21.

St. Louis, which outrebounded the taller Warriors 74-65, had a 28-point performance from Zelmo Beaty. Little Len Wilkens, the St. Louis captain and backcourt ace, kept the Hawks in the game with 21 points.

The first game of the best-of-7 championship series will be played Friday night in Philadelphia.

San Francisco trailed throughout the first half and didn't take the lead until Fred Hetzel's lay-up put the Warriors in front 75-73 midway in the third period.

"We just lost our momentum," Richie Guerin, the player-coach of the Hawks, said. "We didn't do anything offensively in the second half."

He added that in the closing minutes when the Hawks made a determined bid for victory that "we were trying to do too many things with the ball instead of just going for the basket."

The loss closed Guerin's 11-year playing career. He has announced that next year he will

Houston Beats Atlanta,. Extra Inning Duel To Phils

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Dierker was almost perfect at the end of last season and lost.

He wasn't quite that good Wednesday night, but won.

Dierker was rapped for three hits and a pair of runs in the first inning against the Braves but hung on and wound up with a 4-2 victory as Houston beat the Braves for the second straight night.

It was a far cry from the young right-hander's final appearance last year when he pitched eight innings of perfect ball against the New York Mets, only to lose his perfect game, no-hitter, shutout and finally, the ball game in the ninth.

The only thing Dierker lost in the ninth this time was his edge. After the shaky first inning, he set the Braves down on two singles until there were two out in the ninth.

Then singles by Joe Torre and Rico Carty put him in a jam but catcher John Bateman bailed him out by picking Carty off first base for the game's final out.

In the only other National League game played, Bill Hands' wild pitch with two out in the 11th inning allowed Tony Taylor to score with the winning run as Philadelphia shaded Chicago 5-4.

In the American League, Washington scored nine unearned runs in the second inning and trounced New York 10-4. Boston edged Chicago 5-4 and Detroit trimmed California 6-3. Cleveland and Kansas City were rained out.

The Braves, who beat Houston 12 straight times at the end of last season, jumped off to a 2-0 lead against Dierker in the first inning on singles by Denis Menke and Torre sandwiched around Hank Aaron's triple.

But Houston bounced right back on a walk to Joe Morgan, a single by Jim Wynn, Ed Mathews' sacrifice fly and Rusty Staub's double.

Staub walked with one out in the sixth, moved up on an infield out and scored on Bob Aspromonte's single for the tie-breaking run. Jim Landis' eighth-inning single following a walk and a steal produced the Astros' final run.

Hands' wild pitch with the bases loaded in the 11th allowed the Phillies to snap a tie which had existed from the seventh inning when Rich Allen cracked a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Cookie Rojas also smashed a two-run shot for the Phillies and Ernie Banks connected for the Cubs. Banks' homer was the 420th of his career.

Netmen Meet Poplar Bluff

The Bulldog tennis team will travel to Poplar Bluff Friday to compete in a dual meet against the Mules. The match will begin at 3 p.m.

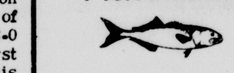

The Poplar Bluff squad took first place in the district meet last year. The Mules lost their number one man, Brooks, but they will have one boy back who took second in district competition last year.

The Bulldogs defeated the Mules in their last match of the season last year, so the Dogs' first victory could be on the way. The netmen have lost matches to Caruthersville and Kennett this season.

The boys who will make the trip for Sikeston include Miller, McCord, Lippert, Dickerson, Crumpecker, and Mills.

Block By "Garden" Block

From 7 "garden" blocks in 1953, Philadelphia now has 452 in which neighbors clear lots, plant window boxes and gardens to beautify their homes. Here a resident gets advice on window box plants.

Two years ago a trash-filled vacant lot was cleared, soil brought in and a teaching garden was built to demonstrate what could be done in cities. Now it boasts a new garden house too.

Since 1953 beautification has crept block by block throughout parts of the city of Philadelphia, Pa. until, from 7 blocks in 1953, there are now 452 "garden" blocks.

Residents of these blocks, helped by members of suburban garden clubs, beautified their neighborhoods. They started by making their own window boxes, painting them and filling them with plants of annual flowers that would bloom all summer.

Gradually, not only were there boxes at the windows, but little brick bays were added against house walls so that climbing roses could be planted in them and would be protected. Where space permits there are also dooryard gardens, especially in housing developments. In these, in 1966, dooryard gardens totaled 1200!

As a by-product of these community efforts, in which neighbors learned to work together for their common good, streets are kept clean and free of litter and there is new paint on the trim of many house fronts.

Neighborhood leaders have emerged; teenagers have learned to work to better their communities; youngsters have learned cooperation, respect for the property of others and the fun of growing vegetables and flowers. Thirty-three 4-H Clubs have been formed and in 1966 there were 297 individual 4-H Club project gardens.

All these results reward members of the sponsoring group, the Neighborhood Garden Association. Culmination of their efforts is a demonstration garden opened 2 years ago on a once trash-filled vacant lot at the corner of 38th and Mount Vernon Streets in West Philadelphia.

This garden helps teach block and 4-H Club project leaders and, through them, of course, affects hundreds of other gardeners.

This demonstration garden, complete with garden house, is a cooperative effort of the Neighborhood Garden Association and the Extension Service of Pennsylvania State University.

On one side of a wide center path are the Extension Service' gardens: of annuals from seed, a combination of annual and perennial flowers, vegetable and cutting gardens, plus turf plots.

On the other side are gardens, most 10-feet-square, planted by garden club members of roses, herbs, perennials, shrubs and a garden raised above damage by children or dogs. A labeled plot identifies most plants in the garden. Displays of window boxes and hanging baskets are in the garden house.

Delegations from Boston, Brooklyn, Chattanooga, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Omaha, St. Louis, Washington and Wilmington have come to observe the miracles of the Garden Block program. Perhaps your city should send delegates too?

HINTS FOR TEENAGERS

... From your Sewing Editor

WAY-OUT WAYS WITH SHIRTS

The shirt is not what is used to be. It has lost its decorum and given up the proper pin-stripe. Girls began invading the men's shop a long time past. Now the men are retaliating by taking to the wild ways of color, long suppressed in men's fashions.

We have called a truce in the battle of the shirt and happily matched a pair of madcap Mods. This set of his and her shirts might have been purchased on Carnaby Street during your last stop-over in London. The real truth is that you can make one for yourself (Simplicity Pattern No. 6929) and another for a friend (Simplicity Pattern No. 6955).

The styling is purely classic with a faced yoke, forward shoulder seams and back pleats. The set-in sleeves end in neatly buttoned cuffs, the collar has button-down points and the button closing goes from top to bottom on a front band. The fun-part is filling in the spaces between the top-stitched seam lines with the most way-out fabric around. Indulge in gay Roman stripes, giant polka dots, a rich paisley or bold print. We have selected a striped cotton in circus colors of yellow, blue, white and cherry pink.

A wide tie is up to you. Pick a solid color to match a predominant one in the shirt fabric; be reckless and select a striped tie for a polka dot shirt; or go way out with a print on a print.

AN INTEREST IN INTERFACING

The very Englishness of the shirt is emphasized by starchy, white collar and cuffs. Interfacing is the secret of this crisp freshness. It is also essential for proper reinforcement under the front band with buttonholes because this area will receive extra stress. There are many types of interfacing on the market today and it is wise to ask the advice of the salesperson at your local fabric center. The choice depends on the type of fabric selected for the shirt and the parts of the garment to be interfaced.

If your shirt fabric is washable, the same quality is needed for the interfacing. Also, the interfacing should not be heavier than the garment fabric with which it is to be used. Consider what you want the interfacing to do for the styling of the garment. For example, the piqué collar and cuffs on the shirt we show require a heavier interfacing fabric for body and stiffness than the front band which needs buttonhole reinforcement, but not a starched effect.

POINTS FOR PERFECTION

Aim for impeccably finished collar and cuffs by careful attention to inside details. These will be well explained in your pattern instruction sheet and each step is important for the perfection you want in the completed shirt. In making collars and cuffs, try to eliminate unnecessary bulk by removing all excess fabric. Cut corners off the interfacing before stitching to the wrong side of the collar. After the collar unit and facing are stitched together, trim the seam allowances in graduated layers beginning by cutting the interfacing closest to the stitching line, next the collar seam allowance and then the facing seam allowances; and clip V-notches in the curves. The same techniques should also be applied to the cuffs.

Pressing each seam as you construct a garment is a dressmaking habit worth acquiring. For a neat, sharp edge on your collar and cuffs, press open the layered seam and then press all layers toward the facing. When you turn the collar, gently work the points out as far as possible. A flat bodkin or a letter opener is a handy tool to use for this job.

If you want to learn more about facings and interfacings, I have a leaflet explaining the whole story. You may obtain a copy by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Sewing Editor of this newspaper. I am sure that your smashing success with your first shirt will be the start of a new shirt wardrobe made by you. You might try a western style with a curved front yoke, a military shirt distinguished by epaulets and flap pockets or a simple short sleeve style (all included in the same pattern) to go with your collection of mini-skirts and hipster pants.

Charles F. Kettering, industrialist, Dayton, Ohio: "Whenever we start something new, and anybody comes to me and says, 'Don't you think you are going to have a lot of trouble?" I say, 'Sure, any time you start to do anything new, we will guarantee the trouble.' Success depends on whether you get through the trouble or not."

CHRISTIAN HARVEST

But one plants love, the other pain.
And later in the harvest years,
The one reaps joy, the other tears.

Dresshirts Growing Down

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Skirts may be getting shorter but shirts are getting longer.

The shirt has grown up by growing down. And now we have the dashing debut of a new, practical sportwear look—the Dresshirt.

Combining the effect of a smartly tailored shirt with the wearability of a dress, the Dresshirt is the best of both worlds. This shirt—gone to great lengths to be a dress—is perfect garb for at home, shopping, strolling, beaching, vacationing and you name it. As a matter of fact it even turns tunic when worn with slim pants.

These shirts are styled to flatter the figure. They are easy-to-wear, modified A-line tents, slightly nipped at the waist. Hemlines top the knee.

Some have classic long sleeves, some roll sleeves and others are sleeveless. Collars spread or button down.

You'll find pleats, tucks, lace, stitching and plackets. A strategically hip-placed pocket shows up on many of the core-tailored styles.

The color chart includes orange, yellow and green as well as red, white and blue.

For the starker set, dramatic Dresshirts come in black and white. These colors all emerge in dots, stripes, Paisleys, geometrics and, of course, solids.

The Dresshirt should be a popular, cool and comfortable new fashion for spring and summer.

THE GROWN-DOWN DRESSHIRT is an authentically detailed shirt—only longer—for at-home wear, shopping or beaching. Designed to hit just above the knee, the cotton, lace-trimmed model (left) has pleated front treatment. It comes in bright orange, blue and green. Classic stripe model (right) has a button-down collar, front placket and pocket. Designs are by Lady Van Heusen.

FINDING THE WAY

Let's Make Up Our Minds

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

We are a bundle of contradictions and honest people know it. Our real tragedy occurs when we simply accommodate ourselves to life without any sense of conflict. From the vantage point of Easter we ought to look at our contradictions:

- Honest men have adamantly opposed any changes in the laws concerning abortion and yet, using the same logic, they bless war or, at least, do not oppose it. How do you apply the standards concerning the sanctity of human life?
- There is a general support of any attempts which can encourage reduction of governmental expenditures until it affects us locally. Then we protest, even though the continuance of the project may be wasteful. How do we apply the standards of honesty?
- We deplore growing crime rates and yet we tolerate slums, inferior housing and continue the conditions of poverty. How do we apply the standards of concern for our neighbor? And who is my neighbor?

A few years ago a national convention of one of our larger religious denominations was delayed in its discussions for several hours because of a debate which arose out of one of its reports. The framers of the resolution had said that if a churchman prayed on Sunday that he should be rid of all hatred and prejudice and then went out of the church continuing the same prejudice as before, this prayer was blasphemy. The use of that word touched off the heated debate. Finally, the matter was resolved by a rewording which stated that to continue the prejudice after praying that it be removed was a contradiction.

So, blasphemy or contradiction, the issue is before each person.

St. Paul stated it in practical terms: "I often find that I have the will to do good, but not the power. That is, I don't accomplish the good I set out to do and the evil I don't really want to do I find I am always doing . . . In my mind I am God's willing servant but in my own nation I am bound fast to the law of sin and death. It is an agonizing situation!" Paul found a way out of this situation by the very nature of his faith.

Our danger is that these contradictions will be accepted as normal. When we erode any consciousness of struggle or understanding of this paradox of our values, we've come to the place where there is moral breakdown. Then sin is only a word and morality only a consensus of behavior.

Recognizing this, those who proclaim the importance of a faith which produces a new way of life have to take a look at the contradictions we tolerate. We may not rule them out of life. We can know the tension of the struggle, for the awareness of that tension can be the beginning of a new way of life. We won't be satisfied with the contradictions.

New Plan for Selective Service

A presidential message to Congress in which new draft proposals were outlined shed new light on some old facts about selective service, including who actually serves and how much manpower is available. It also outlines a new plan of selection, as depicted in the bottom chart above, in which youths would become draft-eligible by lottery at the age of 19. After that, until age 26, they would be gradually less subject to call.

General Maxwell Taylor, former United States Ambassador to South Vietnam and Special Advisor to the President, will be the speaker for the annual Sikeston chamber of Commerce Man of the Year Banquet in Sikeston April 20.

Following the banquet, General Taylor will hold a news conference with newsmen representing this country's major mass news media. You can take part in that news conference. If you have a question concerning the war in Vietnam, write it in the space below and send it to the Sikeston Chamber of Commerce, Box 99, Sikeston, Missouri, 63801.

Your question will be evaluated for possible submission to General Taylor.

Background for Taylor Speech in Library Book

A new book on the shelves of the public library gives residents the opportunity to bone up on the background of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's speech at the Chamber of Commerce banquet April 20 at the armory.

The book, titled "Responsibility and Response," is the general's own conception of the strategy this country needs to follow in response to what Communists call "wars of liberation" such as the conflict in Vietnam. It is his second book. "The Uncertain Trumpet" was the first.

General Taylor, a Keytesville native, former ambassador to Vietnam and adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, is a principal architect of the flexible response, which replaced massive retaliation as a United States military policy.

His new book is based on lectures given at Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa., in 1966 and includes answers to questions most often asked by his audiences.

The change in military policy came in response to challenges cropping up throughout the world and the emergence of China instead of a single threat from Russia.

"As a practical matter in a world of some 136 sovereign countries it is not possible for any government to give equal attention to problems of all these states," General Taylor writes.

"There must be some selectivity."

He divides the world into troublemakers -- most of them under Communist rule, victims -- weak, new emerging nations and bystanders -- northern hemisphere nations, which do not intervene.

Maxwell D. Taylor

General Taylor calls for an immediate response to Communist threats as they arise but before involvement asks for consideration of the extent of the American interest and a determination of the chance for success.

In Vietnam he maintains that the United States was obliged to take sides until the "Communist myth of the invincibility of 'wars of liberation', is exploded." He describes this Communist method as "a new technique for crawling under the conventional defenses of the free world and of nullifying conventional and nuclear armaments."

General Taylor in his book discusses the Vietnam war, the lessons to be drawn from it and recommends a governmental organization, now being constituted, for more effectively dealing with brush wars.

TREATING BABY'S ITCHY SKIN

Prescription ointments applied after a daily soak in the tub may be the best treatment for a baby or child suffering from itchy skin due to eczema.

This recommendation comes from Dr. John A. Kenney, Jr., head of the Division of Dermatology at Howard University College of Medicine. Dr. Kenney says that children with infantile eczema often have itchy skin because their skin is very dry. To keep the skin moist, the doctor recommends a daily bath followed by lubricating creams and whatever steroid ointment the doctor prescribes. These should be applied before the skin is completely dry.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the National Medical Association, Dr. Kenney said that he feels that except for simple anti-itch drugs, drugs that are taken internally should be used only if the eczema is so severe the child faces a lengthy absence from school.

He added that avoiding woolen and rough-textured clothing, keeping the child away from dust, and substituting wooden and rubber toys for stuffed animals are other precautions parents should take to make the child comfortable.

MALES, TEENS, WANTED AS HEALTH WORKERS

Tender, loving care can be as tender and loving coming from a man as from a woman, and men are being desperately sought as nurses, according to the World Health Organization, WHO notes that if more men became nurses the whole profession would be stabilized. Many female nurses eventually leave to take care of their families. It was pointed out that in some developing nations where physical conditions are particularly rugged male nurses would be especially welcome.

Grown men are not the only ones being wooed for health work. The field in the U. S. is wide open for teenagers of both sexes, too. It has been estimated that by 1970 the current 3,000,000 health service workers in this country may increase by more than a million and may even double. The need for health workers is so great that the National League for Nursing is sponsoring Future Nurses Clubs in communities around the country. There are 5,000 such clubs at present. They usually meet in high schools, and members hear talks by public health experts, doctors, therapists, nurses, and others. Members also work as volunteers in hospitals and with the poor in Project Head Start.

A MEDICAL LOOK AT COFFEE

Are you one of the eight out of ten Americans who drink coffee? If so, you've probably wondered as you've sipped your fifth cup, how it affects your health. Here are some answers from the American Medical Association's TODAY'S HEALTH:

One or two cups will raise the temperature inside your stomach, make your heart beat faster, cause certain glands to become more active and force your kidneys to work harder. Fortunately, most of these effects wear off within an hour.

In moderation, coffee doesn't make people nervous. But nervous people shouldn't drink excessive amounts of it since caffeine may effect them adversely.

Coffee seems to have some effect on sleep. One experiment showed that those who drank two or three cups before retiring found it difficult to fall asleep. But for others a single cup helped them sleep better.

DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD
Sikeston, Missouri

Individuals and entities seeking rewards of a little more power, repute or profit, selfishly chose to agitate some self-centered minorities and encouraged them to take actions against the best interests of the great "majority" comprising the people. These agitators are now finding the results of their agitations coming home to roost in their own endeavors and enterprises. They are suffering greatly in loss of respect and "welfare." The "agitators" cannot run away from their past foolishness. It plagues them whether at home or abroad. The agitation which has been created may finally result in a re-evaluation of human relations and the attainment of more wholesome social practices. Then, advocates of law and order and love of country may no longer be condemned as "extremists" or "divisive reactionaries."

FT. BELVOIR, VA. (AHTNC) -- Private First Class Billy R. Beck, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Beck, Morehouse, Mo., completed an 11-week engineer equipment repair course at the Army Engineer School, Ft. Belvoir, Va., April 1.

He was trained in the maintenance of engineer construction and earthmoving equipment. Instruction was also given in the repair of gasoline and diesel engines, air compressors, tractors, graders, crane shovels, and other engineer equipment.

Cab and Rental Cars Meters Being Tested

JEFFERSON CITY -- Taxicab meters and odometers of rental cars operating in Missouri will be tested for accuracy under a new consumer protection program of the Missouri department of agriculture weights and measures division.

A "Fifth Wheel," a precision measuring device calibrated and certified by the National Bureau of Standards, has been purchased for use in the program. The device attaches to the rear bumper of the vehicle to accurately measure the distance traveled. Inspector Louis A. Stephens, Hannibal, is in charge of the new program.

Dexter D. Davis, state commissioner of agriculture, said that taxicabs and rental cars will be inspected periodically in areas where no program of this type exists. He said that the division will also work with weights and measures officials in cities that have jurisdiction over taxicabs and rental cars, but do not have this type of testing equipment.

Other customer protection activities of the Department's weights and measures division includes the periodic testing of various scales and measuring devices and checking the weights and prices of prepackaged food items sold in grocery stores such as meats, milk and bread. John H. Wilson is the director of the division.

Children to Draw Pictures of Mothers

The Buckner-Ragsdale Company is sponsoring a drawing contest, designed for four age groups, from three to nine years, with winners for each age group to be given a Mother's Day award.

The children are asked to draw a likeness of their mother. The pictures must be drawn in pen and ink on a plain sheet of paper. Sketches must be signed by the child and brought to the store no later than May 9.

CAPTAIN FRED LOGAN and his cage of jungle fighting lions will be a feature of the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Psychology Used in Training Wild Animals

The variety and scope that wild animal performers have today would make the heavily mustached and muscular trainer of 30 to 40 years ago gasp with amazement.

The wild animal trainer Capt. Fred Logan with the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus who will appear at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday has evolved his own training techniques and become virtually a wild animal psychologist. While the Madison Avenue psychologist will question his patient to find out the motives of his thoughts and actions, the animal psychologist must watch his charges with a Job like patience to know their actions, reactions, impulses and individualities.

Captain Logan both performs in his own lion act and supervises the leopard and panther act worked by Empress Leota.

His description of the psychology of lions and leopards and other felines is that they all possess some play instinct. Like household cats, these beasts have a conscious or unconscious vanity which delights in elegant, movement and statuesque poses. All the tricks that the wild animal is taught to do come naturally to him. In their natural habitat, lions and leopards sit, stand and paw the air, they jump over bushes and drive through gaps in tangled thorns and when hungry, often have to jump over blazing fire to secure their prey. Fred Logan has cultivated their natural traits into a series of evolutions which make them spectacular. They are asked to do no more than simple tricks in the circus ring.

A few of the other features with the circus are the Estrada Troupe from Portugal, acrobatic stars; the Gibsons, tight wire artists; the Riding Loyals, bareback riders, and Empress Leota, trainer of leopards, wolves and panthers. Underneath the huge canvas tent, over 100 people and countless animals will perform in the three rings, two stages, mammoth hippodrome track and in the giant steel arena.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The school census is now in progress and we appreciate the cooperation of all citizens in helping us to accomplish this project. It is very essential that we count all children and youth under twenty years of age, whether or not they are in school and whether or not they are in Sikeston. Just so long as they count a home in this district as their residence. Some county and state funds are allocated on the basis of those in this category and the school losses, in the event that any person is missed. We hope to complete the census during this month.

Planning is going forward on the building additions to be financed by the bond issue approved by the district voters March 7th. To the $1,350,000 of the bond issue, will be added approximately $200,000 of Federal funds which the district will get on a matching basis for additions to the Vocation school.

The buildings to be included in the first phase of the program will be additions and new buildings for the Vocational school and Senior High additions: including expansion of the cafeteria; an addition to the kitchen; two more rooms to the Math - Science building and approximately 2,200 square feet added to the library.

We hope to have plans complete and out for bids around the middle of May. Contracts will probably be let around the middle of June.

Faculty committees and lay members of the community are being consulted for their ideas and suggestions as the planning continues.

The elementary school and the field house planning will probably continue simultaneously as the second and final phase of the building program. It may be possible to have these plans ready for prospective bidders sometime during July.

If the program continues as planned, and without unforeseen delays, most of the buildings should be ready for use by fall of 1968.

Better education was the number one need of the Ozark region if the economy of this area is to be improved and poverty to be overcome, a study of 115 counties in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Missouri revealed.

The study was made by the Agricultural-Economic and Rural Sociology Department at the University of Arkansas under contracts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"The greatest single potential to helping to solve the problems of the people of the region is a heavy investment in education and training" the study states.

"Because labor force requirements, nationally and within the region, are changing so rapidly, existing rates of improvement in education in the Ozarks will have to be much more rapid simply to keep up" the study continued and goes on to say, "Investments to create superior schools is of great importance to the region in establishing superior labor forces in industry".

Obviously, to some degree, the same conclusions are applicable to Southeast Missouri's "Bootheel", just as they would be to any area wishing to develop economically.

The community college program, properly developed, in the Bootheel could do much to give this area an economic "shot in the arm" to say nothing of the cultural, social, and political betterment of the area.

Currently, we will not realize the educational potential of approximately 60%, or even more, of our high school graduates. Few of this 60% are now getting formal education above the high school and it is a brutal fact of life today that most jobs require more than high school training except where the graduate was heavily specialized in vocational education in the high school. Even these would benefit by additional job skill training. Certainly the ability to compete and to adapt to the environment in which they will live would, in addition, be helped by more education.

We commend those who made an effort to establish a junior college in the lower Bootheel, even though unsuccessful at first. We assume they will not stop until better education for the youth and adults of this area becomes a fact.

We hope that an adequate community college district, within reasonable driving distance for its students, can be established in our area. We believe that in the long run, the citizens of Southeast Missouri will become convinced that our people too, are entitled to educational opportunities and that eventually we will act to make them possible.

According to the National Consumer Finance Association, technicans are among the fastest growing occupational groups. Growth in demand for this type of worker will be three times that of the total labor force.

Technicans are the grouping which usually supports scientists and engineers in designing, developing, producing and maintaining machines and materials.

Department of Labor projections are that life-science technicans will be the fastest growing demand and that this will be primarily in the field of Biology. Demands will also be greater for engineering, physical science technicans and draftsmen.

April 16-22 is National Library Week.

In addition to state and local support of library facilities in the nation, Federal monies to the extent of about $500 million is being provided in 1966-67.

The theme of National Library Week is that "An informed community makes for a strong nation" and the program is to remind everyone of the values of reading and, of course, of libraries in this connection.

Buildings, teaching materials, the "things" of education are important, but the teacher stands at the heart of the educational process. The teacher is the basic factor in fixing the quality of our schools. We need in every classroom a teacher so well prepared, educated and so dedicated as to deserve an excellent rating. Fortunately, we have many in this category but every student is entitled to quality instruction. We will get more of them when we make the profession of such status, financial and otherwise, that it will attract and retain our best people.

District Sewing Event in Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- A total of 175 girls are entered in the district Sew-With-Cotton contest April 22, at the junior high school.

Mrs. Donald Simmons, supervisor of the Poplar Bluff home economics department, will be hostess. Activities will begin at 9 a.m.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, director, from the Patricia Stevens School of Modeling, Memphis, will instruct the girls in modeling, grooming, and general apperance.

Miss Emalyn Turner, textiles and clothing specialist from the University of Missouri and Miss Virginia Twitty, extension home economist, both from Columbia, will be two of the speakers heard during the mornin session.

The afternoon program, beginning at 1:10 p.m. is open to the public. J. M. Ragsdale, marketing specialist, University of Missouri, Columbia, will give a talk "Cotton Now And In The Future."

Highlighting the day's activities will be the style show beginning at 2:20 p.m. when each of the girls, 10 through 18, will model garments they have made. The top 15 girls will be announced at the close of the day's activities.

The district contestants are the winners in the county contests. The Sew-With-Cotton contest, sponsored by the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, in cooperation with home economic teachers, 4-H leaders, extension home economists and others.

Fertilizer Plant Goes Up In Vanduser

VANDUSER -- Construction has begun on a 200-ton capacity bulk fertilizer plant to be operated by Southeast Missouri Farmers Gin Company, for marketing fertilizers.

The facility will handle pelletized fertilizers. All products will come from the agricultural chemical division of Arkla Chemical Corporation's new fertilizer plant at Helena, Ark.

The gin company is a cooperative organized three years ago. It has 52 members. John Watkins is manager and Morris Alfultis is ginner.

The bulk plant will be 24-feet square, and more than 37 feet high with 16-foot girder supports. A 56-foot tall elevator will feed fertilizer materials into the plant's four bins from rail cars or truck transports.

A gravity feed system is an advantage of the plant's design. It provides fast loading of the customer's truck or spreader.

Spreaders will be available for customer use. A four-ton spreader can be pulled by a half-ton truck or tractor while broadcasting fertilizer. Such a spreader can put down fertilizer at the rate of about 35 acres an hour.

Arkla Chemical Corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, a diversified gas distribution company.

Private Enterprise And Public Responsibility In A Free Economy

I believe the majority of our problems are susceptible only to local diagnosis and treatment by local people who, in the Quakers' term, "have a concern." Being close to local conditions and activities by nature, businessmen should be able to spot potential problems before they become acute, and propose workable solutions before they become acute and propose workable solutions before social reformers step forward with grandiose government schemes.

Every time we delegate a job to government, we add another picket to the fence of authority that is shutting us off from concern for our neighbor and his concern for us. Every time a citizens' group takes on such a job, it is doing its part to reverse this trend. Examples of what businessmen can do when they feel strongly about community problems may be seen in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Atlanta, and Newark. In these cities and many more, private, nonpolitical groups of businessmen have given revitalized leadership to projects for the well-being of all the people of the community.

The most recent example is New York City's new Economic Development Council, made up of executives from insurance companies, banks and industrial firms under the alert chairmanship of Clarence Francis, former head of General Foods. These are some of the busiest men in New York. But they are not too busy to devote a substantial portion of time and personal attention to finding ways of improving the business climate -- of keeping existing industries in the city and developing new enterprises.

One of the first ideas generated by the Council was a plan for an "early warning" system among the banks to detect businesses that might be in trouble and considering moving out of town. More than 500 branch banks throughout the five boroughs will report to the Council periodically on economic conditions in their communities and how they can be improved. In this way, the group hopes to learn much more than is currently known about economic trends so that it can take positive steps to make the business environment more attractive.

The businessman's personal involvement in activities, of this kind is more important than ever now that state and local government has become our largest "growth industry." It seems to me we should think seriously of applying on local and state levels the concept of the Hoover Commission of the 1940's and 1950's. You'll recall that a bipartisan group headed by former President Herbert Hoover made two exhaustive studies of the organization of the Executive Branch of the Federal government, and came up with a series of recommendations that saved the taxpayers some $10 billion a year. More than that, it furnished perhaps the greatest education of the American people in civil government since the original debate on the Constitution.

And thoughtful approach could be applied to state and local government operations, I am confident the result would be better government at a better price.

Concentration. . . selectivity . . . personal involvement. These, as I see them, are key factors to consider in deciding what areas might be appropriate for creative competition between business and government. The exact ground rules for business' participation in this competition encounter will need defining, perhaps with some trial and error. But I am convinced that these things can be worked out once a company freely acknowledges the importance of its social responsibility.

Tips On How To Buy Grass Seed

Easter signifies the coming of spring to many folks. . . and spring, to homeowners, means lawn care time.

How do you choose the proper grass seed? First, advises the U. S. Department of Agriculture, ask yourself a few questions about the kind of lawn wanted and your locale. Then--READ THE LABELS.

One of the first questions to consider is, what will the lawn be used for. It takes a different type of grass to make a carpet-like lawn than to cover an area where children frequently play.

Climate plays an important role in selecting lawn seed, too. Some grasses do better in northern states, while others are more suitable for warm regions.

How much shade or sunlight falls on the area is important to remember, too.

Armed with this information, you are ready to look over the assortment of seed offered in your area. . . and to begin reading for the facts you want.

The label on a box or bag of grass seed will tell:

+ What kind of fine and coarse grasses are included in the blend and the percentage, by weight, of each.

+ Percentage of weed seeds and inert matter -- such as dirt, chaff and stones.

+ Percentage of seeds of each variety likely to germinate.

+ Date on which the seeds were tested for germination. (Germination is considered reliable up to six months after testing.)

Such information is required under many states' laws and by the Federal Seed Act, a truth-in-labeling law, administered by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. The Federal law applies to seed sold in interstate commerce.

Returning now, to the question of what kind of lawn is wanted. A back lot which children use as a multi-purpose playground is probably best seeded with a fast-growing, coarse grass. This seed usually is cheaper per pound than fine grass seed.

Fine grasses are slow to grow, and more costly per pound, but they are the key to carpet-like lawns.

In northern states, Kentucky bluegrass, rough bluegrass (often called POA TRIVIALIS), red fescue and bentgrass are suitable for lawns. These all are fine-textured grasses with narrow, soft leaves.

Warmer regions will find bermudagrass, carpetgrass, zoysia and St. Augustine grass appropriate.

Grasses that tolerate shady areas include red fescue, rough bluegrass and St. Augustine grass. Bentgrasses, Kentucky bluegrass, bermudagrass and carpetgrass require more sun.

Red and chewings fescue and rough bluegrass (not really rough, but similar to Kentucky bluegrass) often are mixed with Kentucky bluegrass for shady areas of a lawn.

Most seeds used for lawns are perennial, surviving from year to year. A major exception is annual ryegrass which dies out after one season.

A blend of coarse and fine grasses is often recommended for a new lawn. The coarse grass, growing faster, will thus provide cover until the finer grass matures. Stick to the preferred type once your lawn is established, but in need of thickening.

Experts frequently recommend a blend of various suitable grasses to guard against some disease attacking a lone variety and ruining a lawn.

Because the proper blend of grasses varies according to an area, and even according to soil within an area, it is best to consult your county agricultural extension agent or advisor. They will know about town and suburban areas as well as farmland.

Community Betterment Rewards Parma

By Don Roberts

PARMA - The Missouri Community Betterment program has rewarded Parma with industry that every town in the MCB program wishes to acquire.

The factory, a division of the Inland Shoe Manufacturing Company of Clayton, is now operating on a small basis but has plans to expand.

The factory, Mayor Randell Ramsey notes, was accomplished through Parma's community betterment program.

Everett Lee of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development at Jefferson City worked with Parma as he has done with many towns to acquire industry.

Lee recommended Parma to Inland as a site for expansion. He learned that Parma had an empty building for such a factory when he worked with city officials in their MCB program.

The vacant building was Southeast elementary school, which was vacated last May because of integration of Parma schools.

Ivan Francis of Advance, general manager of Inland for this area, said there were four influencing factors in choosing Parma for the factory site:

First, a labor survey was conducted in the MCB program to find out what labor force was available in the area. This survey was directed to the female labor force only. The results were 1,200-1,400 women, who said they would work if industry were to come to their area. This survey covered an area about 25 miles around Parma.

The second reason was the lack of other industry in the area.

The third reason was Parma had an empty building with adequate facilities.

Fourth, Parma was participating in the MCB program, proving it was a progressive community.

Otis Johnson, plant manager, said the factory now employs 32 persons and is expected to add about 48 more by this summer. The building has a capacity for about 100 workers and is expected to reach that number within 1-1/2 years, Johnson said.

A new line of production including about 30 new machines, has been added to the factory, Johnson explained. The factory now has about 70 machines.

The Parma MCB program was started in February of 1966. A new sewage system was completed last November.

Three major projects are in the designing stages now. They are a complete lighting system, a community building and a public library.

In the MCB five star program Parma qualifies in the categories of sewage, street lighting, industrial, planning and zoning in the state's 701 plan of health services and fire protection.

A water treatment plan is now being designed. When it is completed, Parma will qualify in that MCB category.

Improvement is being planned for leisure time activities, police protection and air markings.

Parma like most small towns lacks the support to promote major improvement projects in a short time; but even under these circumstances and following the guidance of the MCB program, many things have become possible.

As Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says, "Eighty-five per cent of the industries located in Missouri go to communities that have employed a community betterment program."

Parma is a living example of this.

State Highway Commission Sets April 28 For Bid Call Totaling $11,250,000

The Missouri State Highway Commission has issued a request for bids on April 28 for construction and improvements covering 58.6 miles of the state's highways extending into 23 counties and the cities of Clinton, Sedalia, Kansas City and Jefferson City. Estimated cost of this work is $11,-250,-000.

Work in the bid call includes 4.6 miles of Interstate system projects estimated to cost $5,-500,000; for 37.1 miles of Primary system and 4.4 miles of Urban system projects estimated to cost $3,750,000; and for 12½ miles of Secondary (farm to market) system work estimated to cost $2,000,000.

Interstate system work includes:

PLATTE: Interstate Route 29 -- 3 miles grading, culverts, bridging, signing, lighting, laying two 36 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavements on part and widening and resurfacing one 36 - foot wide pavement with asphaltic concrete on part. The work is both north and south of Platte Woods. Two bridges are included.

PLATTE: Interstate Route 29 -- 1.6 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying two 36 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavements from near Platte Woods southeast of proposed Interstate Route 635. Five bridges are included.

JACKSON: Interstate Route 70 -- highway beautification (the planting of trees and shrubs) in Kansas City from Broadway Street east of Charlotte Street.

ST. CHARLES: Interstate Route 70 -- highway beautification (the planting of trees and shrubs) from Wentzville east to St. Peters.

JEFFERSON: Interstate Route 55 -- highway signing along a 9.8 mile stretch from about 2½ miles north of Route M to about 0.8 mile south to the Herculaneum spur.

Primary system work includes:

HARRISON: U. S. Route 69 -- 5.8 miles widening to 24 feet and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete pavement from Bethany north to the Interstate Route 35 connection.

CARROLL -- LAFAYETTE: U. S. Route 65 -- cleaning and painting the Missouri River bridge at Waverly.

CASS: Route 7 -- 9.7 miles of 20 to 32 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, south of Pleasant Hill, southwest to Harrisonville.

HENRY: Route 52 -- 15.2 miles of 20 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing from St. Clair county north to Montrose then east to Route 13 at Deepwater.

OZARK: Route 5 -- 3.9 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying one 24 - foot wide asphaltic concrete pavement both north and south of Wilhoit. Includes a 210 - foot continuous girder bridge over Barren Fork Creek.

DALLAS - GREENE: U. S. Route 65 -- 2.4 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying one 24 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavement which will provide a dual lane facility from north of Route AA, in Dallas county, south to south of Route AF, in Greene county. Includes a 394 - foot continuous plate girder structure over the Pomme de Terre River.

Urban system improvements are:

HENRY: Route 18 (A) -- 1.2 miles grading, storm sewers and 39 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Clinton on Ohio Street from 2nd Street east to relocate Route 13.

PETTIS: U. S. Route 50 -- 1 mile grading, storm sewers, widening to 52 feet and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete pavement in Sedalia from east of the west city limits to U. S. Route 65.

PLATTE: Route 45 -- 2.2 miles grading, culverts and laying one 24 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavement in Kansas City north from Route 9, about a half mile north of Parkville, east of Interstate Route 29.

COLE: U. S. Route 50 -- highway signing from the west city limits of Jefferson City east to McCarty Street and lighting of the interchange of U. S. Routes 50, 54 and 63 and Dix Road interchange.

COLE: U. S. Route 54 -- highway signing from present U. S. Route 50 in Jefferson City to south of Ellis Boulevard and lighting the Ellis Boulevard and Stadium Drive interchanges.

DISTRICT 10, SIKESTON

MADISON: Route CC -- install an 89½ - foot precast concrete slab bridge over Trace Creek, a half mile west of Route C, along with 0.1 mile of necessary grading and surfacing of approaches.

MADISON: Route NN -- install a double 15 by 8½ - foot concrete box culvert at Dry Creek, a half mile north of Route J, along with 0.1 mile of necessary grading and surfacing of approaches.

Letters Oppose Toll Road Bill

ST. LOUIS -- "Toll roads do not serve local traffic needs," said the Automobile Club of Missouri in letters to each of the 163 members of the Missouri House of Representatives.

In requesting defeat of Senate Perfected Bill No. 2 as amended by the House Roads and Highways Subcommittee, the Auto Club said: "both interstate traffic and local traffic needs must be considered in determining solutions to highway needs.

The experience of other states has shown that toll roads do not serve local traffic needs since access points cannot be located to serve most small communities. Smaller communitues do not generate sufficient traffic for the toll road to pay the cost of operating a toll station.

[illegible] it feasible [illegible] for the local traffic because of the probability of the traffic using the free road instead of the toll road. As a result, many of the residents in a toll road corridor are forced to use an inferior roadway."

The Automobile Club said: "A thorough study should be made of the entire highway structure before any precipitate action is taken to disturb the present highway system in Missouri."

The letter of opposition also reiterated a number of points cited in the AAA testimony at Senate and House Committee hearings.

These included:

1. Use of Highway User Funds to pay principal and interest on toll road bonds would be contrary to the intent of the Missouri Constitution;

2. The State Highway Commission and the Turnpike Authority, if approved, should be kept separate because their functions are fundamentally diverse;

3. A Turnpike Authority should not be allowed to lease a toll road to the State Highway Commission because they would be the same body and leases should be negotiated at arms length for the protection of the public;

4. Relocation of public utility facilities should not be paid by a Turnpike Authority because it would place another burden on the motorists and the Highway User Funds;

5. A turnpike Authority should not be given power to set speed limits 20 per cent higher than those existing on the free highway system because traffic could not move safely at 84 miles per hour on a roadway with a design speed of 70 mph;

6. A study should be made to determine why Missouri maintains such a disproportionately high amount of state highways on the lowest gas tax rate in the nation. (Missouri maintains 32,000 miles of state highways Illinois and New York maintain only 16,-000 and 15,000 miles respectively.)

The Auto Club noted that Senate Bill No. 170 provides for a state tax study commission to study all fiscal operations in Missouri and suggests that this could include a study of the various methods of financing highway construction before a move is made to undertake the construction of high- cost toll roads.

I couldn't help but be amused by the young man ahead of me in line to register for an adult-education course. After he signed up for the class in how to invest your money, he explained that he had only one dollar of the seven-dollar fee and would like to pay the rest later in the week when he got paid.

'Please Pass The Olives!'

The olive began its odyssey in Syria, made history in Greece and Rome, adventured to America with the Spanish explorers and had a holy introduction to California. And it's still traveling -- around your dinner table, perhaps?

Ever since Noah's dove returned to the Ark carrying an olive twig, the olive has been one of the traveling - est fruits known to man.

The olive tree is thought to have originated in Syria, and traveled to Greece, Africa, Spain and throughout the Mediterranean. Olives are mentioned in the Iliad, in the Bible, and in Pliny's history of Rome. A cask of pickled olives was found when the lost city of Pompeii was rediscovered. The olive traveled to America with the Spanish explorers. Credit the Franciscan fathers with its introduction to California.

In the very earliest days, olives were a staple food, used primarily for their oil. An olive press was one of man's earliest food processing inventions.

Today, olives can be bought in any food store and you can buy them green, black, stuffed, pitted, thrown or placed, home cured, halved, sliced, chopped, or in a salad pack.

Some people keep olives around the house as a special treat when guests drop in. Many people use them regulary in family meals or keep them on hand for snacks.

Why is this program of pickled product so popular? Once a person learns to appreciate the finer points of olivetry, he is hooked for life.

THE OLIVE FAMILY

There are basically two types of olives: canned ripe olives, usually black in color, and green olives, stuffed or otherwise. To be edible, all olives must be treated to remove a characteristic bitterness.

Canned ripe olives are parepared from partially - mature olives that have been specially treated to remove the bitterness and cured in a salt brine solution. They are oxidized -- to produce a uniform black color -- and packed in hermetically sealed containers.

Green ripe olives are similar to canned ripe olives in all respects except that they have not been oxidized in the curing process. As a result they range in color from yellow-green to green and are usually spotted, or mottled.

Tree - ripened or "home canned olives made from fully-matured fruit that are not oxidized in processing but have a tan or light bronze color.

Greek-type olives are mature olives that have been salt cured and coated with olive oil.

The category of green olives refers to cured olives of a suitable maturity that have been specially treated, cured and allowed to pickle in acidified brine. Unlike the canned ripe olives, green olives may be packed in jars - either in a neat pattern or randomly placed. Pitted green olives are usually stuffed with pimiento, zucca melon, onion, anchovies, or almonds. Because most of them are imported from Spain, stuffed green olives often are called "Spanish olives."

HOME OF THE OLIVE

California is the home of our domestic olive industry. In1966 the State produced 58,000 tons, surpassing the previous year's crop by about 8,000 tons. The California crop goes primarily into canned ripe olives.

In an effort to broaden the market and improve consumer acceptance of their product the California olive industry has instituted a Federal marketing agreement and order. Marketing agreements and orders are a means through which farmers can organize for marketing--increase their bargaining strength, fit supplies to demand, and generally work together to solve marketing problems they cannot solve individually.

Producers and handlers of olives approved the marketing order in the summer of 1965. What this means to consumers is that, beginning with the 1966-67 pack, they will have the assurance that their California ripe olives have been inspected under supervision of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service on two separate occassions.

Before processing, olives are size graded. The marketing order requires that all size grading of fresh olives for processing be overseen by a Federal-State inspector. Since the difference in diameter between adjacent olive sizes is small, it takes precise measurement and scientific aids to determine the size classifications.

After processing, olives are checked for quality and size by C&MS inspectors against specifications set forth in the marketing order for the processed product.

The quality specifications are based on the U. S. Standards for Grades of Canned Ripe Olives, which detail requirements for color, number of defects, character, style and uniformity of size for each of three grades: U. S. Grade A (or U. S. Fancy), U. S. Grade B (or U. S. Choice), and U. S. Grade C (or U. S. Standard). If olives do not meet the minimum Grade C requirements, they cannot be sold under the terms of the marketing order.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

California is the cradle of the motion picture industry as well as the domestic olive cpaital. Some cynics, noting the contemporary aspects of the development of the size names of olives, have been known to speculate, "Did the movie industry borrow from the olive industry the descriptive terms 'mammoth,' 'jumbo,' and 'super colossal,' or was it the other way around?"

The size names for olives were defined in a California State code before the first U.S. olive standards were developed. The sizes are determined by the approximate number of olives in a pound. The U. S. Standards, incorporating the size requirements and illustrations of the California code, say it takes about 135 "Small or Select or Standard" olives to make a pound, while it takes 28 or fewer "Special Super Colossal" canned ripe olives to make a pound.

LABEL TELLS ALL

Labeling of canned ripe olives is a big help to shoppers. The same California code that puts forth the size names of canned ripe olives also requires that labels carry an outline picture the same size as the olives in the can, along with a statement telling how many olives of that size are packed in the can.

Federal Food and Drug regulations require additional information on the label, such as listing of any added spices and garnishes, the manufacturer's name and address, and a statement of net weight. Consumers can shop with ease when they buy canned ripe olives.

What about stuffed green olives? Practically all of these are imported since in this country the necessary handstuffing is too costly. In 1965, the U. S. imported about 37,000 tons of olives from Spain, Greece and other areas. More recent figures indicate an even greater volume of imports.

Imported olives are shipped to this country in large barrels and then are repacked in jars and other containers. They are subject to the same Federal Food and Drug labeling and and wholesomeness regulations that apply to domestic olives. In addition, any olives imported into this country for repacking may be checked for quality, at the option of the repacker, by C&MS inspection personnel.

As with canned ripe olives, quality of green olives is judged according to U.S. standards. Ever on the alert to keep the standards up to date, C&MS revised the U. S. Standards for Grades of Green Olives this past January.

You have to be ready for action when you're dealing with the globe-trotting olive.

Circuit Court

BENTON: Judge Craig heard these CIVIL CASES here recently:

Polly Dean Riley vs. E. S. Smith, PERSONAL INJURIES. Both parties in Court with their attorneys, and announce their readiness for trial. A jury is called, qualified and the case is submitted to them.

Instructions are read to the jury and the plaintiff presents his case. Then the defendant presents his side of the suit.

At the close of the defendant's defense, the defendant's attorney's make oral Motion For Directed Verdict, which the Judge overrules.

Then plaintiff's attorney file Motion For Judgment, at the close of the case, which is overruled by Judge Craig.

The Judge procedes to give instructions to the jury, after which they retire to consider their verdict, at 5:02 p.m.

At 6:17 p.m., the same day, the jury returns to the Courtroom and announce they have reached a verdict.

"We, the jury, find the issues in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant and assess the plaintiff's damages at $30,000."

The jury is discharged and verdict ordered filed.

Judge Craig renders judgment in accordance with verdict.

Mo. Utilities Co. vs. Sally Juden Reed, et. al., CONDEMNATION.

Parties in Court, by their respective attorneys.

Two Commissioners, Walter Dohogne and E. J. Jarvis, are sworn in and given instructions by Judge Craig.

Rules for Cotton Research Plan Okayed

MEMPHIS -- Proposed regulations designating the first buyer as collecting handler of a $1 bale assessment to finance a cotton research and promotion program have been approved by the cotton board which administers the program, the Department of Agriculture announced.

The first buyer who will collect the assessment from producers would include persons, firms, or associations who assume the producer's interest in a bale of cotton through outright purchase, an advance or loan, or by crediting a producer's account with the value of his cotton.

The rules and regulations adopted by the board will be published in the Federal Register and comments may be filed up to April 24. They should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Copies of the rules and regulations may be obtained from the Cotton Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

School of Ozarks Gets Science Grants

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) - Science facilities at the School of the Ozarks will be enlarged with the use of money from two grants.

Each grant was for $490,800. They were announced Tuesday by the president of the college, Dr. M. Graham Clark.

One is from Mrs. W. Alton Jones of Easton, Md. Her gift will endow a chair of science in memory of her husband, once chairman of the Cities Service Co. The new $1.5 million Nettie Marie Jones Learning Center, to be dedicated April 23, is named for Mrs. Jones.

The other grant is from the Gustavus and Louise Pfeiffer Research Foundation of New York for construction of a new science building.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE ENIGMATIC SMILE

Mary Lou was as pretty as a picture. Unfortunately, like the Mona Lisa, her attractiveness depended upon her smiling with her mouth closed. For behind her subtle smile, Mary Lou concealed a set of Texas teeth; wide open spaces.

To remedy her dental situation, Mary Lou finally went to see Dr. I. Straightenum. After examining her teeth, the conscientious dentist set upon a course of treatment that lasted for two years. At the end of that time, Mary Lou's teeth remained as disorganized as ever. Becoming an impatient patient, Mary Lou sued the unsuccessful dentist for malpractice.

"I paid him to do a job," she complained in court, "and he didn't do it. After two years, I still look like a picket fence every time I laugh."

"It's not my fault," answered the dentist. "I did everything possible. Certainly, a dentist can't be held liable for teeth that aren't pliable.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dentist pay for not fixing Mary Lou's Texas teeth?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in the absence of a specific agreement to the contrary, when a physician or dentist undertakes to treat a case, he does not guaranty a cure, nor is any such promise implied. He is simply required to use ordinary skill and care in carrying out the treatment.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for the young woman whose house was a mess and company dropped in unexpectedly just as she was trying to get a new baby ready for bed. Her husband mumbled something to the guests about how awful the place looked and ended up saying, "My wife hasn't cleaned the house since the baby came."

I agree that the husband should not have said this, but it seems to me too much emphasis is placed on the looks of the house these days and not enough is said about warm-hearted hospitality.

I, for one, feel greatly flattered when unexpected company drops in. I couldn't care less about the hour or the looks of the house. I love people and I figure they are real friends if they feel they can come by without a formal invitation. Do you agree with me, Ann? --- OPEN DOOR, OPEN HEART

Dear Open Open: No, I do not. But I'll get back to you later. For now here is a letter from a woman who does agree with you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was upset with your reply to the husband who apologized for the looks of their apartment when unexpected guests dropped in. You said the GUESTS should apologize, since they were the ones who barged in.

Our home is open to anyone and everyone who wishes to enter. I make no pretense of being the world's greatest housekeeper. I happen to like people better than I like cleaning house.

Several years ago we had a sign printed. I placed this sign in our entrance way. It reads: "Although you will find the house a mess, please come in and enjoy yourself. The place doesn't always look like this. Some days it's worse." ---EDITH C.

Dear Edith: Thanks for letting us know how it is at your house. And now I will respond to both you and the writer of the first letter.

If you believe an open door means an open heart, you must also believe a closed door means a closed heart. This I feel is unjust. More often than not a closed door simply means, "I am busy."

Since you shared your sign with me, I would like to share one with you. A writer who lives in Michigan told me about it several years ago. It was nailed to the door of his home and read: "If you are uninvited and unexpected you are also unwelcome. Please go away and let me do my work."

I agree with the wit who said, "The most difficult thing about leisure time is to keep people from using yours."

Dear Ann Landers: Remember the letter from the girl whose Navy boy friend got himself transferred to another part of the world when he learned she was pregnant? She advised all girls whose steadies want to play house to ask them to sign a paper they had slept together on such and such a night. This, she said, would do wonders to diminish (if not kill) the sex drive.

When our daughter turned 16 her father gave her this advice: "If a boy asks you to go the limit to prove your love, tell him he'll have to speak to your father because your father is responsible for you as long as you live under his roof."

Our daughter followed his instructions and said it produced the most shocked expressions she had ever seen. ---MRS. J.

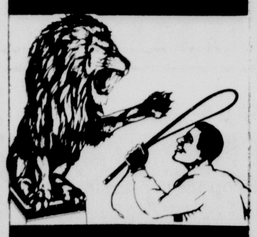

Dear Mrs.: I'm not surprised. If there's anything a guy doesn't want to be reminded of at a time like that it's a girl's father.

Alcohol is not shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Bell City News

The awarding of God and Country awards in Scout tropp No. 1780 by the Rev. John W. Jerrell and the Rev. John P. Wray, was held Sunday morning at the Bell City Methodist Church, with visitors present from Dexter, Bloomfield and Advance.

Mrs. Wayne French was at the organ for the prelude and processional where the honored scouts escorted their parents to reserved seats.

Scouts Terry Eakin and Fred Brown posted the flags and joined the audience in the pledge of allegiance to the flags.

Scout Johnny Holifield of Bloomfield, accompanied by his brother James, at the organ, was soloist.

Scoutmaster of troop no. 178, Tyree Brown, congratulated the scouts on their accomplishments and also their parents for their help and cooperation and introduced Mr. Dwight Rusnogtle of Dexter, Scout Executive of the Sioux District, who gave an inspirtational address to the young men and to all Scouts present.

Mr. Wallace Stephens, president of the sponsoring Methodist Men's Club, introduced the scouts and presented them with the awards.

The Rev. Jarrell, pastor of the local Methodist church, and the Rev. John P. Whay, pastor of the General Baptist Church of Bell City, each gave a very interesting address before presenting each boy with the award.

Those receiving the Coveted Award earned by their helpfulness in the churches and other worthwhile projects of the community, were John and Michael Johnson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Johnson, Max Eakin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Othel Eakin, Rocky Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim D. Jeffress, Billy Knuderce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Knuderce, and Braddy Henson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Henson.

The Stoddard County Sew with Cotton Contest, sponsored by the University Extension Service, and the Stoddard County Cotton Gins with Mrs. Blair Dalton, Bell City, program chairman, and Mrs. Louis Rankin of Dexter, Event Chairman and the High School Home Economics Depts., at the Bell City gymnasiums Saturday, April 8. Mrs. Helen Calhoren, director of Bell City Home Economics instructor.

The Judges were Mrs. Wayne French, Mrs. Jimmy Goforth, Mrs. Leon Dannenmueller, Mrs. Lee Trammell, Mrs. R. M. Limbaugh, Mrs. Harold Lumsden, Mrs. Halter and Miss Peggy Gaines.

Introduction of sponsor representatives, Mr. Thomas A. Brown, Jr., Dexter, University of Missouri Extension Director, and Mr. James E. Spain, Dexter.

Miss Gloria Dunlap and Miss Betty Kinder were narrators for the fashion show held in the afternoon, Miss Patricia Bollinger was pianist. All three girls were from Bell City High School. More than 100 girls of the Stoddard County High School and 4-H Clubs were contestants. Dexter led the schools in winners with Essex second place. The winners will compete at a district event, to be held at Poplar Bluff April 22, at the Junior High School.

David Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Dalton, left Monday for a tour of duty with the U.S. Army. He was accompanied to St. Louis by his parents, where he entrained for Fort Leonard Wood, and will be assigned to another base in the near future.

At Acapulco it's "in" to go out in a cool, crisp Viracle suit by Hart Schaffner & Marx

When a well-dressed man follows the sun, he packs a Viracle suit. It won't develop travel fatigue. Won't crease, slump or wrinkle in steamy weather. Viracle stays neat, you stay cool.

Viracle is an altogether neat suit. In many patterns and more colors than the Braniff planes to Acapulco. For a handsome example: Quebrada Gray, with an appropriate shirt of Las Brisas Pink.

Easy-going as it is, Viracle isn't a play suit. This lightweight blend of Dacron* and worsted is carefully tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx to look as trim in a board room as on a beach. The look you buy is the look you keep.

Anywhere under the sun, you're at ease in a cool HS&M Viracle suit from our new collection. $95.00

As sketched at Las Brisas Hotel, Acapulco, Mexico

Today In U. S. History

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, April 13, the 103rd day of 1967. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1743, Thomas Jefferson, the third president, was born at Shadwell, Va.

On this date:

In 1818, the U.S. flag, as approved by Congress, was first raised over the House of Representatives.

In 1852, merchant Frank Woolworth was born in Rodman, N. Y.

In 1870, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York was incorporated.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington.

In 1945, a funeral train bore President Roosevelt's body to Washington from Warm Springs, Ga.

Ten years ago—Mail service was drastically curtailed as Congress considered a Post Office Department request for a $47 million deficiency appropriation to meet expenses for the rest of the fiscal year.

Five years ago — President John F. Kennedy's victory over steel companies that raised their prices began to take shape as the firms began to rescind the price hikes.

One year ago — South Vietnam's military junta agreed to hold general elections for a civilian government within 3 to 5 months.

Concluding a TV interview with Sammy Davis, Jr., Mike Wallace said, "You want people to like you."

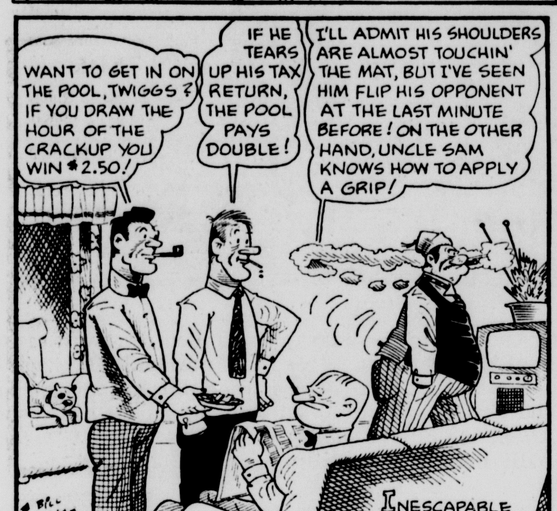

"Yes," replied Davis, "but that's just the frosting on the cake. In its simplest form: I don't want people to dislike me before I've earned it."

Another House committee approved bills to make galena the official state mineral and mozarkite the official state rock. Galena is lead ore. Mozarkite, unique to Missouri, is a form of chert.

Earlier a House committee heard conflicting testimony on a resolution to set up a special committee to investigate student disturbances at Lincoln University in Jefferson City.

Rep. Henry Ross, D-Kansas City, sponsor of the resolution, said "unless this body goes into the university with investigative powers and corrects the grave situation that exists, I'm afraid we're going to be sorry we didn't."

Rep. DeVerne Calloway, D-St. Louis, disagreed.

"An investigation would be irrelevant at this time," she said, "because the mechanics for investigation of grievances have been set under way."

Robert Newton, student body president, said "There is a great potential for a recurrence" of last week's demonstrations "if we don't get any help."

"We don't know whether or not we will continue to attend classes," he said, "of if we will just get another batch of promises which the student body no longer has any faith in."

The committee deferred action.

A Senate committee approved a bill to exempt 10-cent vending machine sales from the sales tax and another to put a six-year limit on the time actions may be brought against income taxpayers.

Political Platform Wins Student Approval

PORTLAND, OREGON (AP)- Larry Smith is campaigning for student body president at Portland State College on a love slate.

At a campaign rally Wednesday, there was bussing, hugging, laughing and passing out lollipops. Supporters handed out campaign buttons that said, "We love you."

"Other candidates' slates are running on platform of integrity, student voice, responsibility, etc.," Smith said. "We think the students are more interested in love - all kinds of it - and will show this when they vote.

"We figure that if love can make the world go 'round, it can make the campus go 'round too."

He is running against five other candidates.

Johnson Calls for Action

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — President Johnson challenged his Latin colleagues at the summit today to make this "a decade of urgency" for the hemisphere.

In his first formal speech at the 19-nation meeting, Johnson called for 10 years of intensive efforts on a broad front to speed the social and economic development of the Americas.

"I speak to you as a ready partner in that effort," he said.

Actually, Johnson's formal remarks were less attention-getting and significant than those he delivered Wednesday at a private session with his summit colleagues.

His earlier, informal statement had the look of a dramatic bid to still the clamor for more direct aid to Latin - American nations.

In his formal speech, the U.S. chief executive ticked off areas in which he said the United States was ready and eager to help—to support a proposed Latin-American common market, to help build big projects cutting across national boundaries (highways are an example), explore tariff advantages for all developing countries, to help modernize agriculture, and to promote better health and education.

"I pledge to you today," he said, "that I will do all I can, in my time of leadership, to help you meet these challenges."

Johnson's speech and his promises seemed to inject new life into a meeting that had been marked by backstage bickering among foreign ministers in the presummit negotiations.

A high source said the presidents were in agreement that establishment of a common market should be completed by 1985 with automatic tariff cuts leading to it.

Another source said Chile, Colombia and Venezuela were in accord on formation of a subregional market within the Latin American free trade area.

The U.S. President called on the Latin Americans to act "boldly — wisely — and now," and added:

"If we do, we can create a new America where the best in man may flourish in freedom and dignity. If our rhetoric is not followed by action, we shall fail not only the Americans of this generation, but hundreds of millions of others."

The passage was indicative of what was on Johnson's mind: an apprehensive feeling that all the oratory and high-flown words at this summit might go for nothing if steam could not be generated behind the Latin American governments.

Even with the new signs of life at this conference, there was no assurance that Johnson's promise would satisfy the Latin American governments.

Johnson apparently had gone just about as far as he could within the confines of the possible, what with the attitude of the U.S. Senate at this moment and the U.S. unfavorable balance of trade and the outflow on gold.

In his first conference statement at a private meeting Wednesday, Johnson touched on two of the touchiest points at issue — the Latin Americans' desire for preferential treatment for their products in the U.S. market and their desire for relaxation of Washington's requirement that equipment purchased with U.S. loans and grants be bought in the U.S. market.

The President promised his Latin-American colleagues he would try to gain worldwide tariff concession for developing nations and would consider granting them freedom to spend certain kinds of U.S. aid money outside the United States. While Johnson's statement was calculated to put his fellow presidents in a receptive mood, he had no firm commitments.

Touching on the question of trade, he promised to explore the possibility of "temporary tariff advantages for all developing countries by all industrialized countries."

On aid, he promised to "try to establish whether we can agree that aid funds for capital projects and related technical assistance can be used in Alliance for Progress countries in ways which will protect the U.S. balance of payments."

This type of trade is believed to amount to no more than $250 million a year.

At the preliminary meeting Wednesday, President Arthur da Costa e Silva of Brazil said Latin America could not delay any longer the achievement of liberty, progress and attainment of human rights. He said Brazil was ready to help "eliminate from our countries conditions which are undeserved and incompatible with the dignity of man."

President Fernando Belaunde Terry of Peru announced a plan to check the flow of capital escaping by the millions of dollars from Latin America. He said the Latin American presidents plan a hemisphere-wide common stock market to provide an outlet for domestic capital and to attract new capital from industrialized nations.

More GIs Die on Patrol Duty Than in Big Battles

SAIGON (AP) — An American infantryman in Vietnam is more likely to be killed or wounded on patrol than in a big battle. In two out of three cases, shell fragments rather than bullets will inflict the wounds.

Even in the big engagements, most allied casualties are taken in the first sudden minutes of action.

The enemy strikes when he figures he has the advantage, wrests what he can from the initial confusion of battle, then fades off as superior American firepower is brought to bear.

The wounds a U.S. soldier receives in Vietnam are remarkably similar in percentage and type to those of World War II and the Korean War.

These conclusions have been reached in casualty surveys conducted by the U.S. Marine Corps and the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division. They are borne out by estimated percentages in some other U.S. outfits in Vietnam.

About 65 per cent of American casualties are inflicted on small unit patrols, ranging in size from a 12-man squad to a 30-man platoon, the surveys determined.

In the central highlands the sharpened bamboo punji stake, described by one analyst as "the guerrilla land mine," caused 21.7 per cent of the wounds of the 5,218 cavalrymen wounded in action from September, 1965, to January, 1967.

In populated regions along the coast, south of the demilitarized zone and around Saigon, use of Communist copies of the U.S. Claymore mine is increasing.

About 5 per cent of all battle casualties among Americans in Vietnam are estimated to be from these mines, which can be aimed to spew thousands of pellets in the direction of advancing troops.

Land mines, booby traps and firing devices detonated by hidden enemy troops account for 16 per cent of all U.S. Marine injuries. Weapons in these categories killed 203 Marines and wounded 2,174 in 1966.

Other American units figure they suffer 10 to 15 per cent of all casualties from mines and booby traps, particularly infantry attached to armored columns. Communist War Zones D and C, in an arc north and northwest of Saigon, are laced with mines used against armored vehicles and trucks.

Casualties from nonhostile causes are lower in Vietnam than in other wars, according to military doctors, because of the low incidence of psychiatric trouble and the elaborate hygienic measures taken with food.

However, malaria has inflicted a heavy toll on the cavalry. A total of 4,000 cases have been reported among the troopers since they arrived in September, 1965. Nine have died. The remainder have returned to duty after treatment.

Newspaper Becomes Target for Arson

ALTON, Ill. (AP) - Police today were investigating four fires set during the night at the Alton Evening Telegraph building.

The newspaper's editor and publisher, Paul Cousley, said he thinks the vandalism might be in retaliation for stories published recently in the paper.

Cousley said the newspaper has been writing stories on loan company practices including the recent beating of a man in debt to a loan firm. Also the paper has been reporting a labor dispute.

A newspaper spokesman said two fires had been started in the basement of the building. The other two were set on the second floor.

Officials said damage to the building in the heart of downtown Alton was minor.

Children Greeting Newest Public Park

The newest public park is taking shape with installation of a space platform sliding board and five saddle mate rocking animals.

It is located at Prairie and Edmondson.

Other equipment which will be installed is a merry go round, seesaws, two swing sets and a horizontal ladder.

Equipment was purchased with $900 from the Junior Woman's club matched by the park board.

Proceeds from the club's annual talent and variety show at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the junior high school auditorium will purchase more playground equipment.

The new park was acquired by the city Jan. 1, 1966. Clearning of old buildings, grading and planting has taken place since. Tennis courts were installed last spring and lights, which stay on until 10 p.m., were erected last summer.

Crowded conditions prevail on the courts almost every night of favorable weather.

10th District 2 Per Cent Below Norm

Long Debated Redistricting Bill Gains Senate Approval

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A controversial congressional redistricting bill passed the Missouri Senate today, 28-5.

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, said the districts varied from 2.5 per cent over the norm of 431,981 in the 1st District to 2 per cent under in the 10th of southeastern Missouri — a total variation of only 4.5 per cent.

A federal court ordered the reapportionment because the present districts were much further from the one man-one vote rule.

Sen. Thomas G. Wollsey, R-Versailles, one of those voting against the bill, called it "a charade not of your choosing." He noted the proposed new districts are based on the 1960 census and therefore are more out of balance than the present ones.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, also voiced objection to the bill because his airport township would put him in the Republican 2nd District of St. Louis County instead of the 1st represented by Rep. Frank M. Karsten, D-St. Louis.

The other dissenters were Sens. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, John J. Johnson, D-Sappington, and Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis.

Under the plan, most of the St. Louis Negro wards would go into the 1st District, giving Negroes a chance to consolidate their vote and perhaps elect Missouri's first Negro congressman.

The political complexion of outstate districts would be relatively unchanged.

Also passed and sent to the House was a bill to base state aid to schools on estimated average daily attendance for the current school year instead of on last year's actual attendance.

It is intended primarily to aid fast growing districts in urban areas. The cost the first year is estimated at $2.9 million.

Other bills sent to the House included:

The Perennial measure to authorize sale of liquor by the drink at Lambert-St. Louis Airport.

Put the St. Louis school system under one administrative head instead of four independent administrators.

Allow the State Park Board to acquire the few remaining covered bridges in the state and maintain them as historic sites.

Raise the pay of Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter from $15,000 a year to $19,000 and Employment Security Director Herman Julien from $14,200 to $18,000.

Allow 3rd and 4th class counties to set up cheaper alternative forms of government.

Wednesday night the House Judiciary Committee heard testimony but took no action on a constitutional change to require only a 60 per cent instead of a two-thirds majority to pass general obligation bonds.

The proposal already has passed the Senate, which settled for the 60 per cent figure although Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had recommended a

ANKARA (AP) - For several years observers have been noting the decline and predicting the fall of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO).

The dire predictions increased with the appearance in 1964 of Regional Cooperation for development, an economic and cultural pact signed by CENTO's regional members, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. This agreement pointedly excluded CENTO's western partners, the United States and Great Britain.

In April 1966 when the CENTO Council of Ministers met, it was picked as a likely time for the final act. But the curtain did not come down.

In a remarkably healthy - sounding final statement, the CENTO ministers "agreed that the need for collective security is imperative in present world circumstances," and reaffirmed their determination to maintain the defensive strength of CENTO."

Last [illegible]mber, CENTO economic experts met here to discuss economic aid side of the pact. And in January the foreign minister of Iran, Pakistan and Turkey met here as the RCD Council of Ministers - and studiously avoided any mention of CENTO.

CENTO certainly does not carry the same importance as it did in 1955 when it was organized as the Baghdad Pact, a mutual pact against Russian expansionism. CENTO's military aspect was based on fear of the Soviet Union.

Now Iran is buying arms from Russia. Turkey has recently been host to Alexei Kosygin. Pakistan is much more concerned with Indian than with Russia. As the fear subsides, the pact declines in importance.

Economically, CENTO's Western partners have made large contributions to the area. Expensive microwave relay and air navigation systems as well as transport links have been completed or are in the process of completion.

Although CENTO in continuing an extensive technical aid program, there are no big new projects in sight. The regional members are quick to point this out. Finding new economic projects is the "major challenge" facing CENTO, said the head of the Turkish delegation at the economic meeting.

The regional countries all have a gripe against their Western partners.

-- Turkey, because they did not support Turkey against Greece in the Cyprus question.

--Pakistan because CENTO did not support her against India in the Kashmir question.

-- Iran, because CENTO won't turn its attention sufficiently to what it fears most: pro-Nassar subversion in the Persian Gulf.

For internal political reasons, all three prefer to play down the relation through CENTO with the U.S. and Great Britain.

But for all the criticism and calls for "reviewing" CENTO, there is no indication that any of the regional members is ready to pull out. Nor is there an indication that they are ready to turn RCD into a military pact to take the place of CENTO -- a military pact they could use in such regional problems as Cyprus, Kashmir and subversion in the Persian Gulf.

Pakistan has been credited with this desire. But while here, Pakistan Foreign Minister Sharifuddin Pirzada emphatically denied that Pakistan wanted to give RCD a military function. CENTO officials and some RCD officials insist that the two pacts are not competitive or redundant.

CENTO does for the regional members things they cannot do for themselves -- sending experts, equipment and providing scholarships. RCD does what the members can do for themselves through cooperation. The pact is limited by the smiliarity of the economies in the member countries. They are complementary in only limited fields.

RCD seems to be making progress toward a goal which Pirzada expressed as "a sort of common market." There is even a possibility that Afghanistan and Iraq may join up.

Meanwhile, CENTO continues to creak along.

Contact Excuses Juror

CINCINNATI, Ohio. AP -- A Cincinnati woman was being questioned Wednesday by a court attorney for possible jury duty.

"Have you ever come in contact with any police?" he asked.

"Yes," she replied.

"In what way?"

"I've been married to one for 34 years."

The woman, Helen Stone, is the wife of patrolman Ralph Stone. She was excused from the jury.

Spooning Fine Rejected

FOX POINT, WIS. (AP) - A proposed extra $3 fee for spooners who favor the parked car for romance has been rejected by the Fox Point Village Board.

Village attorney Fraley Weidner said police urged him to ask the council for an ordinance providing a $6 fine for illegal parking when persons are using the offending vehicle for nocturnal kissing.

Dexter Hospital Given Inspection

DEXTER - Federal and state inspectors were here today to inspect the Dexter Memorial hospital under construction.

The hospital has reached the 25 per cent completion stage of construction costs: If approved by the inspectors the Hill - Harris fund will send the hospital funds for 49 per cent of matchable items that have been spent. This includes construction materials, architects fees and labor.

The inspectors left at 2 p.m.

The hospital needs $130,000 in pledges or money to reach the goal to provide Stoddard county with modern hospital facilities.

Sleeping Driver Strikes Culvert

A 1965 GMC tractor - trailer, driven by William Barker, 51, Kingsland, Ark., struck a concrete culvert this morning at 12:30 a.m. on Interstate 55 four miles north of Sikeston.

The driver apparently went to sleep, and entered the median, the state patrol reported.

A four-car collision Wednesday at 1:10 p.m. on highway 67 north of Poplar Bluff, resulted in the arrest of one driver for failure to yield the right-of-

Trailways Bus Line Faces Strike

ALEXANDRIA, La. AP -- A federal mediator called both sides together today in an effort to avert a strike against Continental Southern Trailways Bus Line, scheduled to start at midnight.

The walkout by about 350 bus drivers and 100 terminal employes would affect company operations in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Missouri.

Robert Cummings, president of the Amalgamated Transit Union's Local 1534, said there was little progress in negotiating sessions Wednesday and little hope of a settlement before the deadline.

Three Burglaries Reported

Three burglaries and the vandalism of an elementary school in Sikeston were reported to police today.

Clothing and other items valued at a total of $462 were taken from a car parked at the Holiday Inn sometime between 5 p.m. Wednesday and early today, police said.

Air Force Lt. Ronald E. Klipsch, Indianapolis, Ind., and his wife reported a suit, a sport coat, several pairs of slacks, underwear, maternity clothing, a camera, a raincoat and other items were taken.

Police said the burglar apparently forced a wire between the top door glass and the rubber weather stripping on the right side of the car and unlocked the door.

A red basket- weave purse with envelopes containing at least $111 was reported taken between 9 a.m. and 10:05 p.m. Wednesday from the residence of Leonard Campbell, 520 Coleman.

The house was unlocked. Campbell reported that the key broke off when he attempted to lock the house before leaving.

Burglars entered Daughtery's Tavern, 109 West Malone, through an exhaust fan in the roof by bending one of the fan blades for an opening. Between $25 and $30 was reported taken from the cigarette machine and the jukebox. Five boxes of cigars, six or seven boxes of gum, cigarette lighter, a pipe wrench and other tools were taken.

A lock on the inside of a rear door was broken, apparently when the burglars left, police reported.

A breakin was reported today at Lincoln school, 229 Westgate. Donald Fulton, 109 Thompson, principal, showed police where vandals entered through a south window. Books and papers were scattered on the floors in southwest section of the building. Milk was taken from the kitchen and poured on the kitchen and gymnasium floors. Two windows in the building were broken, police reported.

Part of the decoration in the gymnasium for an area talent show "Omega Showboat" to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday were torn down, Fulton said.

Jaycees Plan Reception for Peter Myers

Area residents are invited by the Junior Chamber of Commerce to attend a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Myers of Canalou from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday at the Country Club.

Myers has been selected as one of four of the nation's outstanding young farmers in 1967 by the National Awards Congress, sponsored by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The award is expected to draw recognition of the Sikeston area in farm publications.

Myers is the only farmer in Missouri to achieve the honor.

Queen for a Day

SPRINGFIELD AP -- Janet Bernice Musick, 18, lost her title as Miss Springfield of 1967 after a reign of only a day.

After Miss Musick was crowned Saturday night, officials of the annual pageant discovered an error in tabulating the votes of the judges. The title was transferred to her runner - up, Linda Roller, 21.

"My reign was short," Miss Musick moaned. "I was just queen for a day."

She and Miss Roller are students at Southwest Missouri State College and belong to the same sorority.

Armory Festooned

The Armory is being decorated for the Chamber of Commerce man of the Year banquet at 6:30 p.m. next Thursday.

Gen. Maxwell Taylor, special adviser to the president on Vietnam, will speak.

His remarks will deal specifically with the war and what lies ahead. The public is invited to present questions for General Taylor to answer by mailing them to the Chamber of Commerce office. Tickets may be purchased at the Chamber office.

Entertainment will be provided by members of the cast of "South Pacific," who will give glimpses of the Little Theater's production. The play will open the following night at junior high school.

Children Greeting Newest Public Park

The newest public park is taking shape with installation of a space platform sliding board and five saddle mate rocking animals.

It is located at Prairie and Edmondson.

Other equipment which will be installed is a merry go round, seesaws, two swing sets and a horizontal ladder.

Equipment was purchased with $900 from the Junior Woman's club matched by the park board.

Proceeds from the club's annual talent and variety show at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the junior high school auditorium will purchase more playground equipment.

The new park was acquired by the city Jan. 1, 1966. Clearning of old buildings, grading and planting has taken place since. Tennis courts were installed last spring and lights, which stay on until 10 p.m., were erected last summer.

Crowded conditions prevail on the courts almost every night of favorable weather.

10th District 2 Per Cent Below Norm

Long Debated Redistricting Bill Gains Senate Approval

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A controversial congressional redistricting bill passed the Missouri Senate today, 28-5.

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, said the districts varied from 2.5 per cent over the norm of 431,981 in the 1st District to 2 per cent under in the 10th of southeastern Missouri — a total variation of only 4.5 per cent.

A federal court ordered the reapportionment because the present districts were much further from the one man-one vote rule.

Sen. Thomas G. Wollsey, R-Versailles, one of those voting against the bill, called it "a charade not of your choosing." He noted the proposed new districts are based on the 1960 census and therefore are more out of balance than the present ones.

Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St. Ann, also voiced objection to the bill because his airport township would put him in the Republican 2nd District of St. Louis County instead of the 1st represented by Rep. Frank M. Karsten, D-St. Louis.

The other dissenters were Sens. John E. Downs, D-St. Joseph, John J. Johnson, D-Sappington, and Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis.

Under the plan, most of the St. Louis Negro wards would go into the 1st District, giving Negroes a chance to consolidate their vote and perhaps elect Missouri's first Negro congressman.

The political complexion of outstate districts would be relatively unchanged.

Also passed and sent to the House was a bill to base state aid to schools on estimated average daily attendance for the current school year instead of on last year's actual attendance.

It is intended primarily to aid fast growing districts in urban areas. The cost the first year is estimated at $2.9 million.

Other bills sent to the House included:

The Perennial measure to authorize sale of liquor by the drink at Lambert-St. Louis Airport.

Put the St. Louis school system under one administrative head instead of four independent administrators.

Allow the State Park Board to acquire the few remaining covered bridges in the state and maintain them as historic sites.

Raise the pay of Welfare Director Proctor N. Carter from $15,000 a year to $19,000 and Employment Security Director Herman Julien from $14,200 to $18,000.

Allow 3rd and 4th class counties to set up cheaper alternative forms of government.

Wednesday night the House Judiciary Committee heard testimony but took no action on a constitutional change to require only a 60 per cent instead of a two-thirds majority to pass general obligation bonds.

The proposal already has passed the Senate, which settled for the 60 per cent figure although Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had recommended a

ANKARA (AP) - For several years observers have been noting the decline and predicting the fall of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO).

The dire predictions increased with the appearance in 1964 of Regional Cooperation for development, an economic and cultural pact signed by CENTO's regional members, Iran, Turkey and Pakistan. This agreement pointedly excluded CENTO's western partners, the United States and Great Britain.

In April 1966 when the CENTO Council of Ministers met, it was picked as a likely time for the final act. But the curtain did not come down.

In a remarkably healthy - sounding final statement, the CENTO ministers "agreed that the need for collective security is imperative in present world circumstances," and reaffirmed their determination to maintain the defensive strength of CENTO."

Last December, CENTO economic experts met here to discuss economic aid side of the pact. And in January the foreign minister of Iran, Pakistan and Turkey met here as the RCD Council of Ministers - and studiously avoided any mention of CENTO.

CENTO certainly does not carry the same importance as it did in 1955 when it was organized as the Baghdad Pact, a mutual pact against Russian expansionism. CENTO's military aspect was based on fear of the Soviet Union.

Now Iran is buying arms from Russia. Turkey has recently been host to Alexei Kosygin. Pakistan is much more concerned with Indian than with Russia. As the fear subsides, the pact declines in importance.

Economically, CENTO's Western partners have made large contributions to the area. Expensive microwave relay and air navigation systems as well as transport links have been completed or are in the process of completion.

Although CENTO in continuing an extensive technical aid program, there are no big new projects in sight. The regional members are quick to point this out. Finding new economic projects is the "major challenge" facing CENTO, said the head of the Turkish delegation at the economic meeting.

The regional countries all have a gripe against their Western partners.

-- Turkey, because they did not support Turkey against Greece in the Cyprus question.

--Pakistan because CENTO did not support her against India in the Kashmir question.

-- Iran, because CENTO won't turn its attention sufficiently to what it fears most: pro-Nassar subversion in the Persian Gulf.

For internal political reasons, all three prefer to play down the relation through CENTO with the U.S. and Great Britain.

But for all the criticism and calls for "reviewing" CENTO, there is no indication that any of the regional members is ready to pull out. Nor is there an indication that they are ready to turn RCD into a military pact to take the place of CENTO -- a military pact they could use in such regional problems as Cyprus, Kashmir and subversion in the Persian Gulf.

Pakistan has been credited with this desire. But while here, Pakistan Foreign Minister Sharifuddin Pirzada emphatically denied that Pakistan wanted to give RCD a military function. CENTO officials and some RCD officials insist that the two pacts are not competitive or redundant.

CENTO does for the regional members things they cannot do for themselves -- sending experts, equipment and providing scholarships. RCD does what the members can do for themselves through cooperation. The pact is limited by the smiliarity of the economies in the member countries. They are complementary in only limited fields.

RCD seems to be making progress toward a goal which Pirzada expressed as "a sort of common market." There is even a possibility that Afghanistan and Iraq may join up.

Meanwhile, CENTO continues to creak along.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
APRIL'S BIG BIRTHDAY

Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826). Born April 13 in Virginia. Lawyer, architect, inventor, statesman; best known as author of the Declaration of Independence, written in 1776. Served as governor of Virginia, minister to France, and Secretary of State in Washington's first administration. Vice-President during John Adams' administration. Wrote his own epitaph, but neglected to mention that he had been President.

The public issues and problems of Jefferson's time were really no different from the basic issues of today: The centralization of government power at the expense of individual liberty; the excessive influence of foreign powers on our foreign policy; and, the political alliance of the pressure groups against the wage-earners, farmers and businessmen.

TIME TO PAY UP

It's that time of year again. Like the mythical sword of Damocles, Monday, April 17 - hangs ominously over the heads of all Americans who have income, whatever the source.

Almost every day of the year, we read that someone has been indicted - someone convicted or sentenced - for income tax evasion. That knowledge adds shivers to the thought: "What if I should make a mistake?" Of course, we know that the taxpayer doesn't go to prison for mistakes, that he is only assessed a fairly reasonable penalty; but we also know that cheating is punished severely. What if an honest mistake were to be mistaken for intentional cheating?

Too, there is the knowledge that many of those income tax returns are audited every year - carefully checked for mistakes or cheating. Probably every taxpaper "just knows" that his is one that will be audited.

Exaggerating? Perhaps some, but not much. Americans do worry - some entirely too much - about those income tax returns. Yet, Uncle Sam is no ogre; has no desire to punish good citizens for mistakes.

And mistakes there are; a surprisingly large number of them. Of the returns received last year, nearly 4 million were found in error. The surprising thing is that almost as many taxpayers had cheated themselves by honest mistakes as had tried to cheat their Uncle Sam. Just about 2 million had mistakes in their own favor, and 1.9 million erred in old Uncle's favor.

The federal government paid back those who had overpaid, and you can bet your next week's tax take he collected from those who erred in their own favor - collected about $100 million more than he paid back.

And $100 million can pay for a lot of returns auditing. Even so, the auditing is far less strict than most taxpayers think.

If the 1965 auditing ratio holds true this year, your chances of having your income tax returns audited - beyond the quick checkover it may receive at the hands of one of the Internal Revenue Service clerks - is about one in 23. And even that check it receives at the hands of the clerk who opens your returns occurs to only about one of every three returns.

So the chances are two to one that your return won't even receive so much as a quick audit by a pressure-harassed clerk; 23 to one that it won't be run through those computers which have added so much to the efficiency of IRS in recent years. As a matter of fact, if you're one of the "little guys" with just a modest income, your chances of computerized auditing are even less - far less.

And it pays: With 4 percent fewer computerized auditings in 1965 than in 1964, that careful auditing paid off for old Uncle who collected about $2.4 billion extra for his careful pains - "quality audits", the IRS prefers to call them - $1.1 billion from individuals and $1.3 billion from corporations.

Honest mistakes don't usually cause any flurry. A friend told us once that he had been caught in error in two different years. The first time brought him a check - he had overpaid - and the second time brought him a notice that he still owed a trifling amount. Nothing more said about it. If there is honest doubt, the individual may be called into an IRS office to explain; but again, the results are far from disastrous - if it is an obvious mistake.

As for deliberate cheating - now that's something else, something highly inadvisable. Remember those stories you see frequently in your newspapers. Cheaters may get by for a year or so, but almost everyone can expect an audit of his return at some time.

FREEDOM FROM FREEMAN

Congressman Tom Curtis' bill to end government controls on whest and feed grains, referred to by columnist Holmes Alexander is one of the most significant measures to be introduced in the Ninetieth Congress.

Passage of this measure would do what Orville Freeman probably dreads - return the farm to the farmer. But it would be the best thing that could possibly happen to American agriculture.

The urgent need now is for greatly expanded farm production. Controls no longer should be tolerated. There hasn't been an opportunity like this in decades to end the costly, bungling Agriculture Department controls.

These costly subsidies, incidentally, have gone mainly to the big farmers and farm corporations, who needed them the least.

The Curtis bill also would stop the dumping of government-purchased wheat and feed grains to depress farm prices - a move that should be applauded by farmers harassed by the practice.

This measure, H. R. 7326, could signal a return to free enterprise farming - a great victory for all Americans. - Globe Democrat

Summertime travel for parents of very young babies has usually meant loading the car up like a moving van with all of the furniture, formula-making and bottling equipment, and other paraphernalia a baby needs.

It wasn't much trouble for the baby - who is usually just as comfortable in one place as another - so long as Mom is there. But for Mother - and Father - it meant far less room in the car and much more work and bother than caring for the baby at home. By the time they got where they were going, the enjoyment was pretty well gone from the outing.

With many of today's conveniences, however, traveling with a baby is far less bulky business. Modern disposable products and handy rental services really cut down on the packing.

Take the formula, for example. Instead of carting along measuring, mixing, bottling and sterilizing equipment, Mom can use a disposable, prefilled bottle of baby formula. Called Enfamil Nursette, the unit does not need refrigeration (or heating before use) and eliminates any danger of mixing the wrong ingredients or amounts. When baby has finished the meal, the bottle can be thrown away.

Another product that is ideal for travel is the disposable diaper. There's no need to take along a huge supply for a lengthy trip either. You'll be able to stock up almost any place you go. (Shop as you go for the disposable bottles of formula, baby foods and other items, too.)

You'll also be able to find throw-away baby bibs and other baby products, such as individually wrapped bars of baby soap, that will make your trip a little more convenient.

Don't take any more baby furniture than you will actually need on the way. A car bed will double nicely as a bed, play pen, and general resting spot for the baby. If you want larger furniture at your destination, write ahead (or ask your host to call) the local rental agency.

If this is your first long trip in a car with a small baby, don't worry about it. Babies are rarely car-sick, and the hum of the wheels usually lulls them to sleep quite easily. If your baby should eat less on the trip, just feed him a little more often.

Traveling with a baby really is no longer much of a problem. This year, you may even find that you enjoy it almost as much as he seems to.

LONDON (AP) — Eighteen-year-old Prince Charles is subduing the persistent comment that Britain's royal family is uninterested in the arts.

It was seldom bruited about publicly, but often — usually in arty, arty circles — one heard such acid remarks as:

"Music? Why, my dear, the queen's favorite music is Housewives Choice."

Housewives Choice is a morning radio feature of British Broadcasting Corp.

"Painting? Why, my dear, they're no more interested in serious painting than I am in comic strips."

"Literature? Why, my dear chap, everyone knows their interest goes no deeper than James Bond."

Now Prince Charles' talents have stopped some of this talk.

In public within the last few months he has sung, acted, played the trumpet and knocked off a bit of Mozart and Schumann and Benjamin Britten on the viola. A music master says he possesses perfect pitch.

Prince Charles started slowly, first by mastering the drums, the bagpipe and then the electric guitar, even to the point of performing with a pop group at the palace.

Then at Gordonstoun School in Scotland he played Macbeth, sang in a performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance, became accomplished on the viola and said that he is fascinated by Shakespeare.

As to the rumors that the royal family is uninterested in culture — persons who know them well dismiss the rumors as wild exaggerations, but admit there may be a germ of truth in the gossip.

The queen inherited one of the greatest art collections and can talk with interest and considerable knowledge about old masters.

But, aside from her family and her job her main interest is in horses. Prince Philip's mind is scientific and mechanical.

When it comes to the theater, the royal ladies are most often seen at comedies and farces.

After the camel had drunk its fill and was about to lift its head out of the tank, the merchant picked up two nearby bricks, one in each hand, ran behind the camel and whacked him in the testicles.

The camel let out a gigantic "Whoosh! and sucked up what seemed like 20 gallons of water.

The American stared incredulously at the camel merchant. "My God, man!" he exclaimed, "doesn't that hurt?"

The merchant shrugged. "Only if you get your thumbs in between the bricks."

33 YEARS AWAY AND ALREADY A PROBLEM

We have just turned 1967 and some people are already worrying about turning the century.

The question is, when does the next century begin - Jan. 1, 2000, or Jan. 1, 2001? There was the same controversy back in 1900.

It seems natural that the 21st century should begin with 2000, yet logic shows that it can't. The 1st century started with the year 1, not 0. The 2nd century began 100 (not 99) years later on Jan. 1, 101 - and so on down the halls of time.

But logic is one thing and a sense of rightness another. A Londoner named John Goodwin has started an organization called "WACY 2000" and, wacky as WACY sounds, it has members from Hong Kong to Nigeria, reports Read magazine. The initials stand for "World Association for the Celebration of the Year 2000."

"Not only do we intend to be here in 2000," says Goodwin, who is 37, "but we intend to be here celebrating."

There are others who have more than an emotional interest in the upcoming century. Twentieth Century-Fox, for example, plans to change its name to Twenty-first Century-Fox on Jan. 1, 2000. They will undoubtedly inaugurate the new century with a 19th-century horse opera.

The CBS television network isn't going to wait that long. It has changed its documentary program, "The Twentieth Century," to "The Twenty-first Century."

In Denver, however, Twentieth Century Painters and Decorators isn't going to change to Twenty-first Century Painters and Decorators, says Read, because "it's not very romantic and it's hard to pronounce." The Twentieth Century Market in Seattle is going to get around the "sound barrier" by calling itself Century Twenty-one Market.

For the rest of us, the question is academic and will be so for the next 33 years.

Or is it 34?

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - # 5

Valuable time should not be spent arguing with the enemy. The atheist and dictator-minded are likely to be better trained in debate than you. If you can reach their dupes, often they can be converted by stating the case for Christianity and Freedom and leaving them to think it over. When patriots become active in promoting Christianity and Freedom, everything they do will remind others of things they can do and will wish to do.

Liberty Legions must not take time out from their great mission for any bitterness and hate. "Hate" belongs to the enemies which assail patriots. They use it effectively, but let them have it. Freedomists must rely on truth and reason.

There is power in prayer. More than 100 million prayers each day are offered in our country. The independence of our Nation can be safeguarded if many will include these simple words or their substance in every prayer they utter, "Guide us in the best ways to save the independence of our Nation." Commend clergymen for the battle they must wage against atheistic communism and equally atheistic socialism.

A clergyman's words are more than law to his congregation; if he is willing to preach against sin, communism and crime simultaneously, he is entitled to the largest audience and will be rewarded with a larger number of converts through his ministry. The clergyman who extols freedom, condemns atheism and causes the choir to sing a patriotic song, will gain twice as many new members as if he treated the communist menace as something which should not be mentioned. Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It's the smallest, poorest countries which have the most to gain from hemispheric cooperation but which are absent from the summit conference now meeting in Uruguay.

They knew, of course, that the conference was precooked -- like a TV dinner -- with everything decided by the technicians in advance. They also knew that no important political questions would be discussed.

Bolivia, the poorest nation in South America, is absent because access to the sea is not specifically on the agenda, though it could have been discussed privately at Punta Del Este.

Haiti, the poorest country in the Caribbean, which needs economic help from the larger nations of the western hemisphere, is absent partly because President Francois Duvalier is nursing a grudge against the USA, partly because he fears revolution will break loose if he leaves the country.

Haiti is the biggest political problem in the western hemisphere and could flare up into another Dominican Republic. It illustrates the weakness of the present Pan American machinery for dealing with emergencies and points to one problem which the presidents of Punta Del Este must remedy.

In Washington, the state department's "ready room" is constantly alert for any sign of Haitian revolution. In Haiti, President Duvalier, a graduate of the University of Michigan medical school and at one time an expert on yaws, sits isolated, bitter against the United States, ruling over a country which could become the Congo of the Caribbean. Suffering from diabetes and a heart condition, Duvalier's formerly robust figure has dwindled to toothpick size.

When he dies or is removed from office, a blood bath is almost certain between the wealthy Mulattoes, who once ruled the country, and the poverty-stricken blacks. Meanwhile, the U. S. S. boxer lies at anchor off the coast, ready to repeat in Haiti what caused so much bitterness against the United States when we landed troops in the Dominican Republic.

ADVANCE PRECAUTIONS

To head off similar embarrassment, the state department last fall warned the Organization of the American States that trouble was brewing in Haiti. As a result, the former President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, was drafted from his farm near Quito to go to Haiti for talks with Duvalier.

Plaza is an expert trouble-shooter. He acted on behalf of the United Nations in Lebanon when the Eisenhower administration landed troops in 1958; and also on the beleaguered island of Cyprus when the U.N. intervened to prevent war between Greece and Turkey in 1964.

In Haiti, Galo Plaza persuaded President Duvalier to accept a formula by which the United States would send road-building equipment to Haiti, and in return Haiti would permit the O. A. S. to send troops -- officially for the purpose of guarding the bulldozers, actually to prevent the expected blood bath between blacks and Mulattoes.

"You have been accused of swiping road - building equipment in the past," Plaza half joked to President Duvalier. "This will be protection for you."

PHILEGMATIC BUREAUCRAT

Duvalier agreed, but the proposal was never carried out. It went to the O. A. S., where it ran up against philegmatic Dr. Jose Mora, the charming, do - nothing secretary general. Dr. Mora held a few conferences with other ambassadors who apparently did not care whether a Haitian blood bath occurred or not. In the end, the carefully worked out plan of Galo Plaza was put on the shelf.

Haiti is the second oldest republic in the western hemisphere, having obtained its independence from France in 1804. But it has also seen some of the bloodiest wars in hemispheric history. Thousands of blacks have been murdered by fellow blacks in the past. Nothing but the ominous shadow of the U. S. S. boxer at anchor off the coast can now prevent chaos after Duvalier dies -- unless President Johnson this week can work out an advance commitment from his fellow Presidents.

Ex-President Galo Plaza is now operating the biggest Holstein dairy farm in the northern part of South America. He is milking 400 cows and shares ownership in a famous $26,000 North American bull, "Grayview Chris Crown," developed by the Curtis Candy Company. This bull is kept in Illinois, but its semen has been distributed by air to 2,000 cows in Puerto Rico, the Caribbean, and South America at a cost of $350 per insemination.

In Quito last month, Galo Plaza drove out to the Equador with Chief Justice Earl Warren to have his picture taken with the Chief Justice, one foot in the northern hemisphere, one foot in the southern hemisphere.

Galo is enjoying life where he is in Ecuador, takes a few trips each year to New York where he was born, and sometimes to the west coast of the United States where he studied at the University of California, with additional studies in animal husbandry at the University of Maryland. He is not looking for trouble, having been the first president to Ecuador to live out his term without being killed or deposed by revolution.

However, a man of his ability should not be wasted on dairy cows, high caliber as they may be, thanks to Grayview Chris Brown. So there has been talk among Latin American diplomats of drafting him to become Secretary General of the O.A.S. And until the O. A. S. gets a dynamic executive who will head off trouble before it becomes acute, we will probably continue having crisis in Latin America. It will take a man of the stature of Galo Plaza, ex - President Lleras Camargo of Colombia, or ex - President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela, to put the comatose O. A. S. back into effective business.

Inside Labor

Trucker's Strategy Against Big Teamsters Will Set Pace For Rail, Auto, Steel Battles

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Those trucking operators, some of whom are tough enough to match pre-prison Jimmy Hoffa-muscle for muscle, mind for mind, strategem for strategem, dollar for dollar - have become the midwives of a new era inside labor.

By calling the first national lockout since the great foundry feud of 1887, they're providing industry's first effective counterthrust to the truly awesome power of some unions and to the irresistible labor technique of whipsawing.

The lockout strategy will spread soon enough - to the airlines, the railroads, the auto industry and even big steel, to mention just a few.

It took courage for the truckers to shut down. Hoffa not too long ago had told some of them with spitting contempt, they had "no guts." For some of them this is true even if Hoffa said so.

It took courage because trucking is a gypsy's world. There are 40,000 Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) licensed operators. True, the Trucking Employers, Inc. -- 1,500 operators, some of them men with vast fleets ranging up to 15,000 vans --hire some 250,000 Teamsters.

But the lockout-breakers are all over the lot. They'll haul anything. And they'll roll with impugnity. The TEI's operators aren't the old robber barons. They'll not unleash trucks to smash the gypsy fleets. The only muscle they have comes from driving on the greens.

Furthermore, the Teamsters can retaliate. Make no mistake about Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons. He's out of Hoff'a own Detroit home local. He's worked the lines with Hoffa. He's been playing it cool and standing up quietly - nerveless under pressure. And there is no contact with Hoffa. There isn't enthusiastic support from some of the other vice-presidents who are organizing to "dump" him as soon as possible.

So it took courage from the men of the mansions to decide to fight it out.

Their decision was well planned. It was formulated during the past four years when many did not know the difference between TEI and TVA.

As this column was the first to report in the fall of 1963, the truck operators were awed by the Teamsters' power. So the owners organized Trucking Employers, Inc. - virtually in secret - for an eventual showdown with Hoffa.

At first they had no address. Just a post office box. The executive secretary was anonymous. There was a 70-man high command. They moved their meetings from hotel to hotel. They knew their talks eventually would leak. So they set up headquarters in Washington.

They were faced with what many other giant industries face - a union so powerful it could not be stopped. And whipsawing! This means that the pressure would be put on weaker firms for higher rates and then these would be used as a basis for contracts with the others. It's happened on the rails, on the airlines, in the publishing field, on the waterfront, in the auto industry.

So the truckers decided to get compulsory arbitration. But how?

By getting the government and the union to fight. But how to contrive this?

The strategem was simple. When the Teamsters began putting pressure on the truckers by shutting down some terminals, just shut down as much of the industry as possible. Trucking is more vital than rails. Trucks move food, fuel and material (including war logistics) from the factory door to the food store, from the warehouses to the docks. Bottle up the trucks, you bottle up the land.

Obviously the government would have to move, they reasoned. First would come Secretary of Labor Wirtz. Undersecretary Reynolds, Secretary of Transportation Boyd and even Defense Secretary McNamara. They did come in.

So the battle would be between the government and the union. If the strikes ended, the lockout would be ended. If Taft-Hartley came, there would be an 80-day cool. If there was a new special law, the result would be the same - enforced arbitration.

The truckers had consulted with leaders of other industries. Their fleets would be the vanguards.

Although fewer than 10,000 of the 250,000 Teamsters had gone on selected strikes, they locked the boys out. Fitz was not the issue. Hoffa was not the issue. The power of the Teamsters to force a $1.2 billion increase was the issue - without much argument. Thus now the lockout has become the issue and will be for a long time.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

APRIL'S BIG BIRTHDAY

Thomas Jefferson (1743-1826). Born April 13 in Virginia. Lawyer, architect, inventor, statesman; best known as author of the Declaration of Independence, written in 1776. Served as governor of Virginia, minister to France, and Secretary of State in Washington's first administration. Vice-President during John Adams' administration. Wrote his own epitaph, but neglected to mention that he had been President.

The public issues and problems of Jefferson's time were really no different from the basic issues of today: The centralization of government power at the expense of individual liberty; the excessive influence of foreign powers on our foreign policy; and, the political alliance of the pressure groups against the wage-earners, farmers and businessmen.

TIME TO PAY UP

It's that time of year again. Like the mythical sword of Damocles, Monday, April 17 - hangs ominously over the heads of all Americans who have income, whatever the source.

Almost every day of the year, we read that someone has been indicted - someone convicted or sentenced - for income tax evasion. That knowledge adds shivers to the thought: "What if I should make a mistake?" Of course, we know that the taxpayer doesn't go to prison for mistakes, that he is only assessed a fairly reasonable penalty; but we also know that cheating is punished severely. What if an honest mistake were to be mistaken for intentional cheating?

Too, there is the knowledge that many of those income tax returns are audited every year - carefully checked for mistakes or cheating. Probably every taxpaper "just knows" that his is one that will be audited.

Exaggerating? Perhaps some, but not much. Americans do worry - some entirely too much - about those income tax returns. Yet, Uncle Sam is no ogre; has no desire to punish good citizens for mistakes.

And mistakes there are; a surprisingly large number of them. Of the returns received last year, nearly 4 million were found in error. The surprising thing is that almost as many taxpayers had cheated themselves by honest mistakes as had tried to cheat their Uncle Sam. Just about 2 million had mistakes in their own favor, and 1.9 million erred in old Uncle's favor.

The federal government paid back those who had overpaid, and you can bet your next week's tax take he collected from those who erred in their own favor - collected about $100 million more than he paid back.

And $100 million can pay for a lot of returns auditing. Even so, the auditing is far less strict than most taxpayers think.

If the 1965 auditing ratio holds true this year, your chances of having your income tax returns audited - beyond the quick checkover it may receive at the hands of one of the Internal Revenue Service clerks - is about one in 23. And even that check it receives at the hands of the clerk who opens your returns occurs to only about one of every three returns.

So the chances are two to one that your return won't even receive so much as a quick audit by a pressure-harassed clerk; 23 to one that it won't be run through those computers which have added so much to the efficiency of IRS in recent years. As a matter of fact, if you're one of the "little guys" with just a modest income, your chances of computerized auditing are even less - far less.

And it pays: With 4 percent fewer computerized auditings in 1965 than in 1964, that careful auditing paid off for old Uncle who collected about $2.4 billion extra for his careful pains - "quality audits", the IRS prefers to call them - $1.1 billion from individuals and $1.3 billion from corporations.

Honest mistakes don't usually cause any flurry. A friend told us once that he had been caught in error in two different years. The first time brought him a check - he had overpaid - and the second time brought him a notice that he still owed a trifling amount. Nothing more said about it. If there is honest doubt, the individual may be called into an IRS office to explain; but again, the results are far from disastrous - if it is an obvious mistake.

As for deliberate cheating - now that's something else, something highly inadvisable. Remember those stories you see frequently in your newspapers. Cheaters may get by for a year or so, but almost everyone can expect an audit of his return at some time.

FREEDOM FROM FREEMAN

Congressman Tom Curtis' bill to end government controls on whest and feed grains, referred to by columnist Holmes Alexander is one of the most significant measures to be introduced in the Ninetieth Congress.

Passage of this measure would do what Orville Freeman probably dreads - return the farm to the farmer. But it would be the best thing that could possibly happen to American agriculture.

The urgent need now is for greatly expanded farm production. Controls no longer should be tolerated. There hasn't been an opportunity like this in decades to end the costly, bungling Agriculture Department controls.

These costly subsidies, incidentally, have gone mainly to the big farmers and farm corporations, who needed them the least.

The Curtis bill also would stop the dumping of government-purchased wheat and feed grains to depress farm prices - a move that should be applauded by farmers harassed by the practice.

This measure, H. R. 7326, could signal a return to free enterprise farming - a great victory for all Americans. - Globe Democrat

Summertime travel for parents of very young babies has usually meant loading the car up like a moving van with all of the furniture, formula-making and bottling equipment, and other paraphernalia a baby needs.

It wasn't much trouble for the baby - who is usually just as comfortable in one place as another - so long as Mom is there. But for Mother - and Father - it meant far less room in the car and much more work and bother than caring for the baby at home. By the time they got where they were going, the enjoyment was pretty well gone from the outing.

With many of today's conveniences, however, traveling with a baby is far less bulky business. Modern disposable products and handy rental services really cut down on the packing.

Take the formula, for example. Instead of carting along measuring, mixing, bottling and sterilizing equipment, Mom can use a disposable, prefilled bottle of baby formula. Called Enfamil Nursette, the unit does not need refrigeration (or heating before use) and eliminates any danger of mixing the wrong ingredients or amounts. When baby has finished the meal, the bottle can be thrown away.

Another product that is ideal for travel is the disposable diaper. There's no need to take along a huge supply for a lengthy trip either. You'll be able to stock up almost any place you go. (Shop as you go for the disposable bottles of formula, baby foods and other items, too.)

You'll also be able to find throw-away baby bibs and other baby products, such as individually wrapped bars of baby soap, that will make your trip a little more convenient.

Don't take any more baby furniture than you will actually need on the way. A car bed will double nicely as a bed, play pen, and general resting spot for the baby. If you want larger furniture at your destination, write ahead (or ask your host to call) the local rental agency.

If this is your first long trip in a car with a small baby, don't worry about it. Babies are rarely car-sick, and the hum of the wheels usually lulls them to sleep quite easily. If your baby should eat less on the trip, just feed him a little more often.

Traveling with a baby really is no longer much of a problem. This year, you may even find that you enjoy it almost as much as he seems to.

"I need a camel that can go without water for at least three weeks," the American said to an Algerian camel merchant. "Is it possible?"

"All things are possible," replied the merchant. He proceeded to take a camel out of his barn and lead him to a tank of water. After the camel had drunk its fill and was about to lift its head out of the tank, the merchant picked up two nearby bricks, one in each hand, ran behind the camel and whacked him in the testicles.

The camel let out a gigantic "Whoosh! and sucked up what seemed like 20 gallons of water.

The American stared incredulously at the camel merchant. "My God, man!" he exclaimed, "doesn't that hurt?"

The merchant shrugged. "Only if you get your thumbs in between the bricks."

33 YEARS AWAY AND ALREADY A PROBLEM

We have just turned 1967 and some people are already worrying about turning the century.

The question is, when does the next century begin - Jan. 1, 2000, or Jan. 1, 2001? There was the same controversy back in 1900.

It seems natural that the 21st century should begin with 2000, yet logic shows that it can't. The 1st century started with the year 1, not 0. The 2nd century began 100 (not 99) years later on Jan. 1, 101 - and so on down the halls of time.

But logic is one thing and a sense of rightness another. A Londoner named John Goodwin has started an organization called "WACY 2000" and, wacky as WACY sounds, it has members from Hong Kong to Nigeria, reports Read magazine. The initials stand for "World Association for the Celebration of the Year 2000."

"Not only do we intend to be here in 2000," says Goodwin, who is 37, "but we intend to be here celebrating."

There are others who have more than an emotional interest in the upcoming century. Twentieth Century-Fox, for example, plans to change its name to Twenty-first Century-Fox on Jan. 1, 2000. They will undoubtedly inaugurate the new century with a 19th-century horse opera.

The CBS television network isn't going to wait that long. It has changed its documentary program, "The Twentieth Century," to "The Twenty-first Century."

In Denver, however, Twentieth Century Painters and Decorators isn't going to change to Twenty-first Century Painters and Decorators, says Read, because "it's not very romantic and it's hard to pronounce." The Twentieth Century Market in Seattle is going to get around the "sound barrier" by calling itself Century Twenty-one Market.

For the rest of us, the question is academic and will be so for the next 33 years.

Or is it 34?

When Charles A. Beard, the famous historian, was asked if he could summarize the lessons of history in a single volume, he said he could do it in four sentences:

1. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad with power.

2. The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small.

3. The bee fertilizes the flower it robs.

4. When it is dark enough, you can see the stars.

An insanely jealous woman compelled her husband to undergo a rigid inspection after every "night out with the boys." If she discovered a single hair on his clothes, there would be a terrible row. One night, having found nothing, not even a single hair, she burst into tears and cried: "Even bald-headed women, now!"

H. L. Hunt Says

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - # 5

Valuable time should not be spent arguing with the enemy. The atheist and dictator-minded are likely to be better trained in debate than you. If you can reach their dupes, often they can be converted by stating the case for Christianity and Freedom and leaving them to think it over. When patriots become active in promoting Christianity and Freedom, everything they do will remind others of things they can do and will wish to do.

Liberty Legions must not take time out from their great mission for any bitterness and hate. "Hate" belongs to the enemies which assail patriots. They use it effectively, but let them have it. Freedomists must rely on truth and reason.

There is power in prayer. More than 100 million prayers each day are offered in our country. The independence of our Nation can be safeguarded if many will include these simple words or their substance in every prayer they utter, "Guide us in the best ways to save the independence of our Nation." Commend clergymen for the battle they must wage against atheistic communism and equally atheistic socialism.

A clergyman's words are more than law to his congregation; if he is willing to preach against sin, communism and crime simultaneously, he is entitled to the largest audience and will be rewarded with a larger number of converts through his ministry. The clergyman who extols freedom, condemns atheism and causes the choir to sing a patriotic song, will gain twice as many new members as if he treated the communist menace as something which should not be mentioned. Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- It's the smallest, poorest countries which have the most to gain from hemispheric cooperation but which are absent from the summit conference now meeting in Uruguay.

They knew, of course, that the conference was precooked -- like a TV dinner -- with everything decided by the technicians in advance. They also knew that no important political questions would be discussed.

Bolivia, the poorest nation in South America, is absent because access to the sea is not specifically on the agenda, though it could have been discussed privately at Punta Del Este.

Haiti, the poorest country in the Caribbean, which needs economic help from the larger nations of the western hemisphere, is absent partly because President Francois Duvalier is nursing a grudge against the USA, partly because he fears revolution will break loose if he leaves the country.

Haiti is the biggest political problem in the western hemisphere and could flare up into another Dominican Republic. It illustrates the weakness of the present Pan American machinery for dealing with emergencies and points to one problem which the presidents of Punta Del Este must remedy.

In Washington, the state department's "ready room" is constantly alert for any sign of Haitian revolution. In Haiti, President Duvalier, a graduate of the University of Michigan medical school and at one time an expert on yaws, sits isolated, bitter against the United States, ruling over a country which could become the Congo of the Caribbean. Suffering from diabetes and a heart condition, Duvalier's formerly robust figure has dwindled to toothpick size.

When he dies or is removed from office, a blood bath is almost certain between the wealthy Mulattoes, who once ruled the country, and the poverty-stricken blacks. Meanwhile, the U. S. S. boxer lies at anchor off the coast, ready to repeat in Haiti what caused so much bitterness against the United States when we landed troops in the Dominican Republic.

ADVANCE PRECAUTIONS

To head off similar embarrassment, the state department last fall warned the Organization of the American States that trouble was brewing in Haiti. As a result, the former President of Ecuador, Galo Plaza, was drafted from his farm near Quito to go to Haiti for talks with Duvalier.

Plaza is an expert trouble-shooter. He acted on behalf of the United Nations in Lebanon when the Eisenhower administration landed troops in 1958; and also on the beleaguered island of Cyprus when the U.N. intervened to prevent war between Greece and Turkey in 1964.

In Haiti, Galo Plaza persuaded President Duvalier to accept a formula by which the United States would send road-building equipment to Haiti, and in return Haiti would permit the O. A. S. to send troops -- officially for the purpose of guarding the bulldozers, actually to prevent the expected blood bath between blacks and Mulattoes.

"You have been accused of swiping road - building equipment in the past," Plaza half joked to President Duvalier. "This will be protection for you."

PHILEGMATIC BUREAUCRAT

Duvalier agreed, but the proposal was never carried out. It went to the O. A. S., where it ran up against philegmatic Dr. Jose Mora, the charming, do - nothing secretary general. Dr. Mora held a few conferences with other ambassadors who apparently did not care whether a Haitian blood bath occurred or not. In the end, the carefully worked out plan of Galo Plaza was put on the shelf.

Haiti is the second oldest republic in the western hemisphere, having obtained its independence from France in 1804. But it has also seen some of the bloodiest wars in hemispheric history. Thousands of blacks have been murdered by fellow blacks in the past. Nothing but the ominous shadow of the U. S. S. boxer at anchor off the coast can now prevent chaos after Duvalier dies -- unless President Johnson this week can work out an advance commitment from his fellow Presidents.

Ex-President Galo Plaza is now operating the biggest Holstein dairy farm in the northern part of South America. He is milking 400 cows and shares ownership in a famous $26,000 North American bull, "Grayview Chris Crown," developed by the Curtis Candy Company. This bull is kept in Illinois, but its semen has been distributed by air to 2,000 cows in Puerto Rico, the Caribbean, and South America at a cost of $350 per insemination.

In Quito last month, Galo Plaza drove out to the Equador with Chief Justice Earl Warren to have his picture taken with the Chief Justice, one foot in the northern hemisphere, one foot in the southern hemisphere.

Galo is enjoying life where he is in Ecuador, takes a few trips each year to New York where he was born, and sometimes to the west coast of the United States where he studied at the University of California, with additional studies in animal husbandry at the University of Maryland. He is not looking for trouble, having been the first president to Ecuador to live out his term without being killed or deposed by revolution.

However, a man of his ability should not be wasted on dairy cows, high caliber as they may be, thanks to Grayview Chris Brown. So there has been talk among Latin American diplomats of drafting him to become Secretary General of the O.A.S. And until the O. A. S. gets a dynamic executive who will head off trouble before it becomes acute, we will probably continue having crisis in Latin America. It will take a man of the stature of Galo Plaza, ex - President Lleras Camargo of Colombia, or ex - President Romulo Betancourt of Venezuela, to put the comatose O. A. S. back into effective business.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Trucker's Strategy Against Big Teamsters Will Set Pace For Rail, Auto, Steel Battles

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Those trucking operators, some of whom are tough enough to match pre-prison Jimmy Hoffa-muscle for muscle, mind for mind, strategem for strategem, dollar for dollar - have become the midwives of a new era inside labor.

By calling the first national lockout since the great foundry feud of 1887, they're providing industry's first effective counterthrust to the truly awesome power of some unions and to the irresistible labor technique of whipsawing.

The lockout strategy will spread soon enough - to the airlines, the railroads, the auto industry and even big steel, to mention just a few.

It took courage for the truckers to shut down. Hoffa not too long ago had told some of them with spitting contempt, they had "no guts." For some of them this is true even if Hoffa said so.

It took courage because trucking is a gypsy's world. There are 40,000 Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) licensed operators. True, the Trucking Employers, Inc. -- 1,500 operators, some of them men with vast fleets ranging up to 15,000 vans -- hire some 250,000 Teamsters.

But the lockout-breakers are all over the lot. They'll haul anything. And they'll roll with impugnity. The TEI's operators aren't the old robber barons. They'll not unleash trucks to smash the gypsy fleets. The only muscle they have comes from driving on the greens.

Furthermore, the Teamsters can retaliate. Make no mistake about Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons. He's out of Hoff'a own Detroit home local. He's worked the lines with Hoffa. He's been playing it cool and standing up quietly - nerveless under pressure. And there is no contact with Hoffa. There isn't enthusiastic support from some of the other vice-presidents who are organizing to "dump" him as soon as possible.

So it took courage from the men of the mansions to decide to fight it out.

Their decision was well planned. It was formulated during the past four years when many did not know the difference between TEI and TVA.

As this column was the first to report in the fall of 1963, the truck operators were awed by the Teamsters' power. So the owners organized Trucking Employers, Inc. - virtually in secret - for an eventual showdown with Hoffa.

At first they had no address. Just a post office box. The executive secretary was anonymous. There was a 70-man high command. They moved their meetings from hotel to hotel. They knew their talks eventually would leak. So they set up headquarters in Washington.

They were faced with what many other giant industries face - a union so powerful it could not be stopped. And whipsawing! This means that the pressure would be put on weaker firms for higher rates and then these would be used as a basis for contracts with the others. It's happened on the rails, on the airlines, in the publishing field, on the waterfront, in the auto industry.

So the truckers decided to get compulsory arbitration. But how?

By getting the government and the union to fight. But how to contrive this?

The strategem was simple. When the Teamsters began putting pressure on the truckers by shutting down some terminals, just shut down as much of the industry as possible. Trucking is more vital than rails. Trucks move food, fuel and material (including war logistics) from the factory door to the food store, from the warehouses to the docks. Bottle up the trucks, you bottle up the land.

Obviously the government would have to move, they reasoned. First would come Secretary of Labor Wirtz. Undersecretary Reynolds, Secretary of Transportation Boyd and even Defense Secretary McNamara. They did come in.

So the battle would be between the government and the union. If the strikes ended, the lockout would be ended. If Taft-Hartley came, there would be an 80-day cool. If there was a new special law, the result would be the same - enforced arbitration.

The truckers had consulted with leaders of other industries. Their fleets would be the vanguards.

Although fewer than 10,000 of the 250,000 Teamsters had gone on selected strikes, they locked the boys out. Fitz was not the issue. Hoffa was not the issue. The power of the Teamsters to force a $1.2 billion increase was the issue - without much argument. Thus now the lockout has become the issue and will be for a long time.

Mrs. Freeman served ice cream sodas.

Mrs. Spidell and Mrs. Ruth Turner presented a skit.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. F. F. Collins, 503 Maple St.

Buying Strips Shelves

NEW YORK AP - A wave of panic buying stripped some supermarket shelves in Chicago this week in the wave of the trucking industry contract dispute.

The same thing happened during the winter snowstorms.

Whether it was weather or labor problems, the effect may be the same in the supermarkets; limited supplies and higher prices.

Wholesale milk prices went up this week.

Egg prices rose sharply - 1 to 4 cents a dozen in New York City - after weeks of decline.

Canned orange juice prices also were raised.

Frozen limeade concentrate, canned corn and apricot prices also are headed higher. But there may be bargains on frozen brussel sprouts, frozen dinners and pies, tomato sauce, catsup, dietetic fruit cocktail and canned apple, grape, orange, cherry and fruit punches.

Beef steaks and roasts, bacon and hams are featured at meat counters this week, along with turkeys.

Dry onions are moving to market in the southwest and lower Rocky Mountains, where head lettuce prices are up sharply.

Strawberries from eastern Texas and watermelons from Florida also are showing up in the markets.

Michael Holden Is Two Years Old

Michael Holden, who was two years old Tuesday, celebrated his birthday Saturday at a party given at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holden.

A birthday cake decorated with a miniature train, ice cream and sodas were served. Balloons and suckers were favors.

Attending were Bradley Scott, Liz McCall, Lisa Johnson, Cindy, Donna and Joey Hubbert, Mrs. Gene Scott, Mrs. Tom Johnson, Mrs. Ray Hubbert; Miss Dianna Holden and Miss Barbara Ramsey, the honoree's aunts; and Mrs. Dewey Ramsey, his maternal grandmother.

Sending gifts were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Holden, the honoree's uncle and aunt and Mrs. Mildred Purlee, his paternal grandmother.

The following correction appeared in a small-town paper: "Our paper carried the notice last week that Mr. John Jones is a defective in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Jones is really a detective in the police farce."

Jerry Robinson.

There are 10 little fingers and
10 little toes
That I count at the close of each
day;
And how I adore her two cheeks
like a rose
As she kneels by her bed to pray.
She looks like an angel as she
drifts off to sleep--
I wonder what makes up her
dreams;
As she holds close to her heart
the old teddybear
That is falling apart at the
seams.

Mrs. Spidell and Mrs. Ruth Turner presented a skit.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. F. F. Collins, 503 Maple St.

Buying Strips Shelves

NEW YORK AP - A wave of panic buying stripped some supermarket shelves in Chicago this week in the wave of the trucking industry contract dispute.

The same thing happened during the winter snowstorms.

Whether it was weather or labor problems, the effect may be the same in the supermarkets; limited supplies and higher prices.

Wholesale milk prices went up this week.

Egg prices rose sharply - 1 to 4 cents a dozen in New York City - after weeks of decline.

Canned orange juice prices also were raised.

Frozen limeade concentrate, canned corn and apricot prices also are headed higher. But there may be bargains on frozen brussel sprouts, frozen dinners and pies, tomato sauce, catsup, dietetic fruit cocktail and canned apple, grape, orange, cherry and fruit punches.

Beef steaks and roasts, bacon and hams are featured at meat counters this week, along with turkeys.

Dry onions are moving to market in the southwest and lower Rocky Mountains, where head lettuce prices are up sharply.

Strawberries from eastern Texas and watermelons from Florida also are showing up in the markets.

Michael Holden Is Two Years Old

Michael Holden, who was two years old Tuesday, celebrated his birthday Saturday at a party given at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holden.

A birthday cake decorated with a miniature train, ice cream and sodas were served. Balloons and suckers were favors.

Attending were Bradley Scott, Liz McCall, Lisa Johnson, Cindy, Donna and Joey Hubbert, Mrs. Gene Scott, Mrs. Tom Johnson, Mrs. Ray Hubbert; Miss Dianna Holden and Miss Barbara Ramsey, the honoree's aunts; and Mrs. Dewey Ramsey, his maternal grandmother.

Sending gifts were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Holden, the honoree's uncle and aunt and Mrs. Mildred Purlee, his paternal grandmother.

The following correction appeared in a small-town paper: "Our paper carried the notice last week that Mr. John Jones is a defective in the police force. This was a typographical error. Mr. Jones is really a detective in the police farce."

Jerry Robinson.

WHAT DREAMS ARE MADE OF

There are 10 little fingers and 10 little toes
That I count at the close of each day;
And how I adore her two cheeks like a rose
As she kneels by her bed to pray.
She looks like an angel as she drifts off to sleep--
I wonder what makes up her dreams;
As she holds close to her heart the old teddybear
That is falling apart at the seams.

Senators Whip Yankees; Boston, Detroit Win First

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Young Joe Coleman, a minor league flop with a major league future, figured Senatorial backing would keep him in Washington this year.

So far, the 20-year-old righthander has received all the support he's needed — from the fumbling New York Yankees.

The Senators poured across nine unearned runs — the last four on Ken McMullen's grand slam homer — in the second inning Wednesday night and whipped New York 10-4 as Coleman breezed to his fourth victory in as many big league appearances.

Rico Petrocelli drove in four runs, leading Boston past the Chicago White Sox 5-4 in their season opener, and Detroit trimmed California 6-3 behind Mickey Lolich's six-hitter in the only other American League games. Cleveland was rained out at Kansas City.

In National League play, Philadelphia edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings and Houston topped Atlanta 4-2.

Coleman, whose father Joe, Sr., pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics 20 years ago, was a 19-game loser at York, Pa., in the Eastern League last season. He came to the Senators' training camp this spring with an overall minor league mark of 9-29.

But he had hurled complete-game victories in three late-season starts for Washington over the past two years — a four-hitter, five-hitter and six-hitter.

The 6-foot-3 rookie from Natick, Mass., failed to finish Wednesday night, giving way to reliever Dick Lines with two out in the ninth after yielding eight hits.

Coleman can't account for the major league-minor league dilemma. But he thinks part of his success in the majors has been due to the Senators' defensive support. "I have more confidence when I pitch with Washington because they have the guys who make the big plays," he said.

The Yankees' failure to make the plays cost them in the big second inning Wednesday night. Washington managed only four hits during the uprising, but three New York errors and four walks kept the rally alive before McMullen capped it with his bases-loaded blast.

Successive errors by shortstop John Kennedy and first baseman Ray Barker opened the gates before three walks, Cap Peterson's two-run double, Fred Valentine's two-run single and another boot by left fielder Tom Tresh drove Yankee starter Fritz Peterson from the mound.

Jim Bouton came out of the bullpen, walked Frank Howard intentionally and then served up the grand slam to McMullen.

Petrocelli staked the Red Sox to an early 4-0 lead by delivering a run-scoring single in the second inning and lashing a three-run homer off Chicago starter John Buzhardt in the third.

The White Sox fell behind 5-1 before knocking out winner Jim Lonborg with a three-run burst in the seventh. Relievers John Wyatt and Don McMahon then slammed the door.

Lolich pitched hitless ball through four innings, gave up two runs in the fifth and then finished strong as the Tigers won their first of the year.

Gates Brown rapped his second homer in two nights for Detroit and Bill Freehan, Lolich's batterymate, drove in three runs with a double and ground out.

THE BASEBALL game between Sikeston and Oran was postponed yesterday afternoon, due to rain.

It is doubtful that the game will be rescheduled due to the playing of sub-district and district playoffs beginning next week.

The Dogs meet Cape Girardeau this afternoon at Cape.

SPECIAL TRYOUTS for all boys who missed Sunday afternoon's trials will be held Friday at 7 p.m. on Puckett field.

These tryouts are for those boys who missed tryouts and for those whose managers told them to report for tryouts.

WARREN E. HEARNES will be the banquet speaker at the Annual Convention of the Conservation Federation of Missouri on April 22.

The announcement was made by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the 21,000 member organization.

Stegner said since Hearnes' election as Governor of Missouri, he has been in the forefront of the worthwhile conservation issues, many of them sponsored by the Federation.

Stegner pointed out that Hearnes established a Wild Rivers Commission, personally presented the first Missouri Conservationist of the Year Award at a Federation-sponsored dinner, and has been a leader in the fight to keep the Eleven Point River in Missouri and Arkansas a free-flowing stream.

The Federation's convention will begin Friday night, April 21st, and will conclude Sunday afternoon with the consideration by the delegates of resolutions which will form the basis of the Federation's policy for the ensuing year.

The meeting will be in Jefferson City.

WITHOUT DOUBT, America's most popular freshwater sport fish is the largemouth bass. And, for very good reasons... its fighting ability is superb, its endurance long, and it will strike anything that resembles food. Besides, it is usually good fare on the dinner table.

Here are the important things to know about this fish. . .

World Record: 22 1/4 pounds, caught in Montgomery Lake, Ala., in June of 1932. There is a possibility, although slight, this record will be broken.

Range: Now found in all the United States except Alaska, thanks to judicious transplanting and this fish's excellent ability to tolerate environmental extremes.

Habitat: Look for it around such cover as logs, rocks, bushes, fallen trees, gravel bars, pilings, deep holes, undercut banks, weed beds, lily pads, etc.

Lures: It can be caught on worms, minnows, hellgrammites, crawfish, frogs, and other live bait; most any artificial lure, properly presented, will produce a jolting strike and battle.

Tackle: All types, fly, spinning, spincasting, and bait casting. For all-around bass fishing.

Fishing tip: First, fish shore cover. If no fish are found, then tie on a floating-wiggling lure, and attach a keel sinker 15" ahead of this. Troll slowly until you catch a bass, then anchor and fish the area carefully for additional fish.

THE MISSISSIPPI COUNTY Recreation Association is in its second year, but it can boast a paid up membership of more than 500, and what is more important, an impressive list of do-it-yourself accomplishments.

"I suppose you could say that we simply got tired of waiting for someone else to do things for us, and that we decided to do what needed to be done ourselves," comments Sam Jones, the sportsman-landowner president of the outfit.

Most of the down-to-earth activities undertaken by the Association during its first year of operation consisted of improving inlet roads to various fishing areas, the so-called "Blue Holes" along the Mississippi River, and several chutes, notably Wolf Island, No. 7 and No. 3.

It might be well to explain what a Blue Hole is. These relatively small lakes of varying size and depth were created when flood waters of the Mississippi breached the levee and gouged out thousands of cubic yards of earth and sand. Since the cost of filling such lakes would be prohibitive, "ring levees" were built around the hole or lake, and after the mud and sand had settled out the resulting clear water reflected the blue sky. . . .hence the name "Blue" hole.

Available membership money was greatly augmented or stretched by obtaining free-will labor, and donated power machinery and materials.

Neatly painted signs at each of the improved locations ask for the cooperation of visitors and fishermen not to abuse the facilities, and to avoid dumping and littering. So far this program has met with unusual success.

The Association has also initiated a yearly cleanup campaign.

One low cost activity that has resulted in good will for the Association is the publication of a small map showing primary roads and access raods to the riverfront.

CHARLES W. DEWITT, former co-owner of the old St. Louis Browns baseball team, died Tuesday night. He suffered a fatal heart attack in his home in suburban Clayton.

Dewitt, 66, was an insurance executive and civic leader in addition to his sports activities.

He and his brother, William, bought controlling interest in the Browns in 1949. Dewitt served as club vice president until 1951.

Dewitt was traveling secretary for the Browns 14 years before becoming an owner.

He also was chairman of the olympic soccer committee for the 1962 international games.

Hawks' Guerin Ends 11 Year Career As Player

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Warriers, fresh from a rugged victory over St. Louis for the Western Division title, find the towering Philadelphia 76ers and Wilt Chamberlain blocking their road to a national Basketball Association championship.

Coach Bill Sharman of the Warriors said after Wednesday night's 112-107 victory over St. Louis that "I think we've got an excellent chance of upsetting Philadelphia."

A second-half surge, led by Rick Barry, gave the Warriors their victory in the best-of-7 playoff series 4-2. Barry made 41 points.

Philadelphia dethroned defending champion Boston 4-1 to win the Eastern Division crown Tuesday night.

confine himself to coaching from the sidelines.

Sharman wanted to talk about the upcoming championship series with Philadelphia. "I think we've got an excellent chance... We won only two of seven games with them during the regular season, but we were really out of only one game."

Besides Barry's 41 points, Jeff Mullins, a Hawk castoff, scored 26 points for San Francisco. Nate Thurmond of San Francisco led both teams in rebounding with 21.

St. Louis, which outrebounded the taller Warriors 74-65, had a 28-point performance from Zelmo Beaty. Little Len Wilkens, the St. Louis captain and backcourt ace, kept the Hawks in the game with 21 points.

The first game of the best-of-7 championship series will be played Friday night in Philadelphia.

San Francisco trailed throughout the first half and didn't take the lead until Fred Hetzel's lay-up put the Warriors in front 75-73 midway in the third period.

"We just lost our momentum," Richie Guerin, the player-coach of the Hawks, said. "We didn't do anything offensively in the second half."

He added that in the closing minutes when the Hawks made a determined bid for victory that "we were trying to do too many things with the ball instead of just going for the basket."

The loss closed Guerin's 11-year playing career. He has announced that next year he will

Houston Beats Atlanta,. Extra Inning Duel To Phils

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Dierker was almost perfect at the end of last season and lost.

He wasn't quite that good Wednesday night, but won.

Dierker was rapped for three hits and a pair of runs in the first inning against the Braves but hung on and wound up with a 4-2 victory as Houston beat the Braves for the second straight night.

It was a far cry from the young right-hander's final appearance last year when he pitched eight innings of perfect ball against the New York Mets, only to lose his perfect game, no-hitter, shutout and finally, the ball game in the ninth.

The only thing Dierker lost in the ninth this time was his edge. After the shaky first inning, he set the Braves down on two singles until there were two out in the ninth.

Then singles by Joe Torre and Rico Carty put him in a jam but catcher John Bateman bailed him out by picking Carty off first base for the game's final out.

In the only other National League game played, Bill Hands' wild pitch with two out in the 11th inning allowed Tony Taylor to score with the winning run as Philadelphia shaded Chicago 5-4.

In the American League, Washington scored nine unearned runs in the second inning and trounced New York 10-4. Boston edged Chicago 5-4 and Detroit trimmed California 6-3. Cleveland and Kansas City were rained out.

The Braves, who beat Houston 12 straight times at the end of last season, jumped off to a 2-0 lead against Dierker in the first inning on singles by Denis Menke and Torre sandwiched around Hank Aaron's triple.

But Houston bounced right back on a walk to Joe Morgan, a single by Jim Wynn, Ed Mathews' sacrifice fly and Rusty Staub's double.

Staub walked with one out in the sixth, moved up on an infield out and scored on Bob Aspromonte's single for the tie-breaking run. Jim Landis' eighth-inning single following a walk and a steal produced the Astros' final run.

Hands' wild pitch with the bases loaded in the 11th allowed the Phillies to snap a tie which had existed from the seventh inning when Rich Allen cracked a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Cookie Rojas also smashed a two-run shot for the Phillies and Ernie Banks connected for the Cubs. Banks' homer was the 420th of his career.

Netmen Meet Poplar Bluff

The Bulldog tennis team will travel to Poplar Bluff Friday to compete in a dual meet against the Mules. The match will begin at 3 p.m.

The Poplar Bluff squad took first place in the district meet last year. The Mules lost their number one man, Brooks, but they will have one boy back who took second in district competition last year.

The Bulldogs defeated the Mules in their last match of the season last year, so the Dogs' first victory could be on the way. The netmen have lost matches to Caruthersville and Kennett this season.

The boys who will make the trip for Sikeston include Miller, McCord, Lippert, Dickerson, Crumpecker, and Mills.

Title Fight Canceled

CHICAGO (AP) — Herbert Muhammad, Cassius Clay's Black Muslim adviser, has ruled out any title bout at any location between the heavyweight champion and Floyd Patterson.

Muhammad, in Chicago, lashed out with a torrent of bitter words at the order Wednesday of Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania directing that state's athletic commission to eliminate Pittsburgh as a site of the bout scheduled April 25.

Shafer's order came after a ruling Tuesday by the Nevada State Athletic Commission rejecting a proposal to hold the bout in Las Vegas.

Muhammad charged officials of the two states with religious and racial prejudice and said: "If Mohammad Ali (Clay) was a white Christian champion I don't think the fight would have been stopped."

He said he had told trainers to break up Clay's training camp in Las Vegas, come home and "forget about the whole thing."

Clay promptly boarded a plane and left the state. On his way through the air terminal at Las Vegas he told reporters he would definitely go into the Army April 28 as his draft board has ordered because "It would break my mother's heart if I didn't."

Clay's attorney in Cincinnati took another legal step to stop the Army from drafting Clay.

In a motion filed with the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals the attorney, Hayden Covington, asked for an injunction to halt Clay's scheduled induction in Houston pending an appeal from a decision by U.S. District Judge James Gordon of Owensboro, Ky.

Judge Gordon had rejected Clay's plea for exemption from service on the grounds he is a Black Muslim minister.

Muhammad said Clay would not fight Patterson at any location and said there were no plans for a title defense with any other challenger.

"If the governor (of Pennsylvania) knew the champion was going to be beaten by Patterson," Muhammad said, "he would have let the fight go on."

"They are trying to stop it because the champion is a Muslim and a Negro. This has given the whole country a black eye."

"This is how we still live in a land where we have to endure religious and race prejudice. We are not enjoying our own rights while we are being asked to fight overseas for the rights of others."

The scheduled 15-round match between Clay and the former two-time world heavyweight champion was at first approved by the Pennsylvania commission when talk of Pittsburgh as a possible site first came up five weeks ago.

Shafer said that when word came from Las Vegas that Gov. Paul Laxalt had ordered the fight out of Nevada he telephoned him and asked for his reasons.

Shafer said Laxalt told him that since he felt the first Clay-Patterson bout — won by Clay with a 12th-round technical knockout in Las Vegas in 1965 — was not a good fight there was no reason to stage a rematch.

Tigers On Road

COLUMBIA - Determined to caulk a leaky infield, Coach John (Hi) Simmons made two changes ahead of this weekend's vital baseball series with perky Kansas State at Manhattan.

The Wildcats dumped Nebraska three times, twice by shutouts, last week at Lincoln-while Mizzou booted away a similar opportunity at Stillwater and wound up with just one victory in three chances against the fast-finishing Cowboys.

Now, the Tigers must rebound sharply to avoid early extinction in the 1967 Big Eight race. Changes are in the offing at shortstop and second base. The Bengals collected 30 hits and 19 runs in three games against O.S.U. but erred grievously at crucial times.

They won the opener 6-5, lost the next two, 7-6 and 8-7.

Ken Meinert, sophomore from Moberly, takes over at short for veteran Rudy Stroupe. At second base, letterman Billy Griffin displaces rookie Kurt Boenker.

Outfielders Barry Lubeck (.379), Del Blunk (.333) and Ray Thorpe (.326) have led Mizzou's assault against rival pitching - with Jerry Hurt (3-0) the most reliable hurler.

Right-hander Hurt, carrying a 0.63 earned run average, will open against Coach Bob Brasher's gang Friday - with lefty Al Thomure (0-2) likely to pitch the second game. Dan Sharp, football quarterback from Kansas City, Kan., to go with its ace, Wade Johnson, in Friday's opener. The 6-3 righthander beat Mizzou, 7-1, here last year.

Probable M. U. lineup: Ray Thorpe, lf (.326); Gene Stephenson, lb (.238); Jim Juras, 3b (.281); Del Blunk, cf (.333) Barry Lubeck, rf (.379); Ken Meinert, ss (.444); Billy Griffin, 2b (.111); Al Chettle, c (.143); and Jerry Hurt, p (3-0).

Senators Whip Yankees; Boston, Detroit Win First

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Young Joe Coleman, a minor league flop with a major league future, figured Senatorial backing would keep him in Washington this year.

So far, the 20-year-old right-hander has received all the support he's needed — from the fumbling New York Yankees.

The Senators poured across nine unearned runs — the last four on Ken McMullen's grand slam homer — in the second inning Wednesday night and whipped New York 10-4 as Coleman breezed to his fourth victory in as many big league appearances.

Rico Petrocelli drove in four runs, leading Boston past the Chicago White Sox 5-4 in their season opener, and Detroit trimmed California 6-3 behind Mickey Lolich's six-hitter in the only other American League games. Cleveland was rained out at Kansas City.

In National League play, Philadelphia edged the Chicago Cubs 5-4 in 11 innings and Houston topped Atlanta 4-2.

Coleman, whose father Joe, Sr., pitched for the Philadelphia Athletics 20 years ago, was a 19-game loser at York, Pa., in the Eastern League last season. He came to the Senators' training camp this spring with an overall minor league mark of 9-29.

But he had hurled complete-game victories in three late-season starts for Washington over the past two years -- a four-hitter, five-hitter and six-hitter.

The 6-foot-3 rookie from Natick, Mass., failed to finish Wednesday night, giving way to reliever Dick Lines with two out in the ninth after yielding eight hits.

Coleman can't account for the major league-minor league dilemma. But he thinks part of his success in the majors has been due to the Senators' defensive support. "I have more confidence when I pitch with Washington because they have the guys who make the big plays," he said.

The Yankees' failure to make the plays cost them in the big second inning Wednesday night. Washington managed only four hits during the uprising, but three New York errors and four walks kept the rally alive before McMullen capped it with his bases-loaded blast.

Successive errors by shortstop John Kennedy and first baseman Ray Barker opened the gates before three walks, Cap Peterson's two-run double, Fred Valentine's two-run single and another boot by left fielder Tom Tresh drove Yankee starter Fritz Peterson from the mound.

Jim Bouton came out of the bullpen, walked Frank Howard intentionally and then served up the grand slam to McMullen.

Petrocelli staked the Red Sox to an early 4-0 lead by delivering a run-scoring single in the second inning and lashing a three-run homer off Chicago starter John Buzhardt in the third.

The White Sox fell behind 5-1 before knocking out winner Jim Lonborg with a three-run burst in the seventh. Relievers John Wyatt and Don McMahon then slammed the door.

Lolich pitched hitless ball through four innings, gave up two runs in the fifth and then finished strong as the Tigers won their first of the year.

Gates Brown rapped his second homer in two nights for Detroit and Bill Freehan, Lolich's batterymate, drove in three runs with a double and ground out.

It is doubtful that the game will be rescheduled due to the playing of sub-district and district playoffs beginning next week.

The Dogs meet Cape Girardeau this afternoon at Cape.

SPECIAL TRYOUTS for all boys who missed Sunday afternoon's trials will be held Friday at 7 p.m. on Puckett field.

These tryouts are for those boys who missed tryouts and for those whose managers told them to report for tryouts.

WARREN E. HEARNES will be the banquet speaker at the Annual Convention of the Conservation Federation of Missouri on April 22.

The announcement was made by Ed Stegner, Executive Secretary of the 21,000 member organization.

Stegner said since Hearnes' election as Governor of Missouri, he has been in the forefront of the worthwhile conservation issues, many of them sponsored by the Federation.

Stegner pointed out that Hearnes established a Wild Rivers Commission, personally presented the first Missouri Conservationist of the Year Award at a Federation-sponsored dinner, and has been a leader in the fight to keep the Eleven Point River in Missouri and Arkansas a free-flowing stream.

The Federation's convention will begin Friday night, April 21st, and will conclude Sunday afternoon with the consideration by the delegates of resolutions which will form the basis of the Federation's policy for the ensuing year.

The meeting will be in Jefferson City.

WITHOUT DOUBT, America's most popular freshwater sport fish is the largemouth bass. And, for very good reasons... its fighting ability is superb, its endurance long, and it will strike anything that resembles food. Besides, it is usually good fare on the dinner table.

Here are the important things to know about this fish. . .

World Record: 22 1/4 pounds, caught in Montgomery Lake, Ala., in June of 1932. There is a possibility, although slight, this record will be broken.

Range: Now found in all the United States except Alaska, thanks to judicious transplanting and this fish's excellent ability to tolerate environmental extremes.

Habitat: Look for it around such cover as logs, rocks, bushes, fallen trees, gravel bars, pilings, deep holes, undercut banks, weed beds, lily pads, etc.

Lures: It can be caught on worms, minnows, hellgrammites, crawfish, frogs, and other live bait; most any artificial lure, properly presented, will produce a jolting strike and battle.

Tackle: All types, fly, spinning, spincasting, and bait casting. For all-around bass fishing.

Fishing tip: First, fish shore cover. If no fish are found, then tie on a floating-wiggling lure, and attach a keel sinker 15" ahead of this. Troll slowly until you catch a bass, then anchor and fish the area carefully for additional fish.

THE MISSISSIPPI COUNTY Recreation Association is in its second year, but it can boast a paid up membership of more than 500, and what is more important, an impressive list of do-it-yourself accomplishments.

"I suppose you could say that we simply got tired of waiting for someone else to do things for us, and that we decided to do what needed to be done ourselves," comments Sam Jones, the sportsman-landowner president of the outfit.

Most of the down-to-earth activities undertaken by the Association during its first year of operation consisted of improving inlet roads to various fishing areas, the so-called "Blue Holes" along the Mississippi River, and several chutes, notably Wolf Island, No. 7 and No. 3.

It might be well to explain what a Blue Hole is. These relatively small lakes of varying size and depth were created when flood waters of the Mississippi breached the levee and gouged out thousands of cubic yards of earth and sand. Since the cost of filling such lakes would be prohibitive, "ring levees" were built around the hole or lake, and after the mud and sand had settled out the resulting clear water reflected the blue sky. . . .hence the name "Blue" hole.

Available membership money was greatly augmented or stretched by obtaining free-will labor, and donated power machinery and materials.

Neatly painted signs at each of the improved locations ask for the cooperation of visitors and fishermen not to abuse the facilities, and to avoid dumping and littering. So far this program has met with unusual success.

The Association has also initiated a yearly cleanup campaign.

One low cost activity that has resulted in good will for the Association is the publication of a small map showing primary roads and access raods to the riverfront.

CHARLES W. DEWITT, former co-owner of the old St. Louis Browns baseball team, died Tuesday night. He suffered a fatal heart attack in his home in suburban Clayton.

Dewitt, 66, was an insurance executive and civic leader in addition to his sports activities.

He and his brother, William, bought controlling interest in the Browns in 1949. Dewitt served as club vice president until 1951.

Dewitt was traveling secretary for the Browns 14 years before becoming an owner.

He also was chairman of the olympic soccer committee for the 1962 international games.

Hawks' Guerin Ends 11 Year Career As Player

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The San Francisco Warriers, fresh from a rugged victory over St. Louis for the Western Division title, find the towering Philadelphia 76ers and Wilt Chamberlain blocking their road to a national Basketball Association championship.

Coach Bill Sharman of the Warriors said after Wednesday night's 112-107 victory over St. Louis that "I think we've got an excellent chance of upsetting Philadelphia."

A second-half surge, led by Rick Barry, gave the Warriors their victory in the best-of-7 playoff series 4-2. Barry made 41 points.

Philadelphia dethroned defending champion Boston 4-1 to win the Eastern Division crown Tuesday night.

Sharman wanted to talk about the upcoming championship series with Philadelphia. "I think we've got an excellent chance... We won only two of seven games with them during the regular season, but we were really out of only one game."

Besides Barry's 41 points, Jeff Mullins, a Hawk castoff, scored 26 points for San Francisco. Nate Thurmond of San Francisco led both teams in rebounding with 21.

St. Louis, which outrebounded the taller Warriors 74-65, had a 28-point performance from Zelmo Beaty. Little Len Wilkens, the St. Louis captain and backcourt ace, kept the Hawks in the game with 21 points.

The first game of the best-of-7 championship series will be played Friday night in Philadelphia.

San Francisco trailed throughout the first half and didn't take the lead until Fred Hetzel's lay-up put the Warriors in front 75-73 midway in the third period.

"We just lost our momentum," Richie Guerin, the player-coach of the Hawks, said. "We didn't do anything offensively in the second half."

He added that in the closing minutes when the Hawks made a determined bid for victory that "we were trying to do too many things with the ball instead of just going for the basket."

The loss closed Guerin's 11-year playing career. He has announced that next year he will confine himself to coaching from the sidelines.

Houston Beats Atlanta,. Extra Inning Duel To Phils

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Dierker was almost perfect at the end of last season and lost.

He wasn't quite that good Wednesday night, but won.

Dierker was rapped for three hits and a pair of runs in the first inning against the Braves but hung on and wound up with a 4-2 victory as Houston beat the Braves for the second straight night.

It was a far cry from the young right-hander's final appearance last year when he pitched eight innings of perfect ball against the New York Mets, only to lose his perfect game, no-hitter, shutout and finally, the ball game in the ninth.

The only thing Dierker lost in the ninth this time was his edge. After the shaky first inning, he set the Braves down on two singles until there were two out in the ninth.

Then singles by Joe Torre and Rico Carty put him in a jam but catcher John Bateman bailed him out by picking Carty off first base for the game's final out.

In the only other National League game played, Bill Hands' wild pitch with two out in the 11th inning allowed Tony Taylor to score with the winning run as Philadelphia shaded Chicago 5-4.

In the American League, Washington scored nine unearned runs in the second inning and trounced New York 10-4. Boston edged Chicago 5-4 and Detroit trimmed California 6-3. Cleveland and Kansas City were rained out.

The Braves, who beat Houston 12 straight times at the end of last season, jumped off to a 2-0 lead against Dierker in the first inning on singles by Denis Menke and Torre sandwiched around Hank Aaron's triple.

But Houston bounced right back on a walk to Joe Morgan, a single by Jim Wynn, Ed Mathews' sacrifice fly and Rusty Staub's double.

Staub walked with one out in the sixth, moved up on an infield out and scored on Bob Aspromonte's single for the tie-breaking run. Jim Landis' eighth-inning single following a walk and a steal produced the Astros' final run.

Hands' wild pitch with the bases loaded in the 11th allowed the Phillies to snap a tie which had existed from the seventh inning when Rich Allen cracked a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Cookie Rojas also smashed a two-run shot for the Phillies and Ernie Banks connected for the Cubs. Banks' homer was the 420th of his career.

Netmen Meet Poplar Bluff

The Bulldog tennis team will travel to Poplar Bluff Friday to compete in a dual meet against the Mules. The match will begin at 3 p.m.

The Poplar Bluff squad took first place in the district meet last year. The Mules lost their number one man, Brooks, but they will have one boy back who took second in district competition last year.

The Bulldogs defeated the Mules in their last match of the season last year, so the Dogs' first victory could be on the way. The netmen have lost matches to Caruthersville and Kennett this season.

The boys who will make the trip for Sikeston include Miller, McCord, Lippert, Dickerson, Crumpecker, and Mills.

Block By "Garden" Block

From 7 "garden" blocks in 1953, Philadelphia now has 452 in which neighbors clear lots, plant window boxes and gardens to beautify their homes. Here a resident gets advice on window box plants.

Two years ago a trash-filled vacant lot was cleared, soil brought in and a teaching garden was built to demonstrate what could be done in cities. Now it boasts a new garden house too.

Since 1953 beautification has crept block by block throughout parts of the city of Philadelphia, Pa. until, from 7 blocks in 1953, there are now 452 "garden" blocks.

Residents of these blocks, helped by members of suburban garden clubs, beautified their neighborhoods. They started by making their own window boxes, painting them and filling them with plants of annual flowers that would bloom all summer.

Gradually, not only were there boxes at the windows, but little brick bays were added against house walls so that climbing roses could be planted in them and would be protected. Where space permits there are also dooryard gardens, especially in housing developments. In these, in 1966, dooryard gardens totaled 1200!

As a by-product of these community efforts, in which neighbors learned to work together for their common good, streets are kept clean and free of litter and there is new paint on the trim of many house fronts.

Neighborhood leaders have emerged; teenagers have learned to work to better their communities; youngsters have learned cooperation, respect for the property of others and the fun of growing vegetables and flowers. Thirty-three 4-H Clubs have been formed and in 1966 there were 297 individual 4-H Club project gardens.

All these results reward members of the sponsoring group, the Neighborhood Garden Association. Culmination of their efforts is a demonstration garden opened 2 years ago on a once trash-filled vacant lot at the corner of 38th and Mount Vernon Streets in West Philadelphia.

This garden helps teach block and 4-H Club project leaders and, through them, of course, affects hundreds of other gardeners.

This demonstration garden, complete with garden house, is a cooperative effort of the Neighborhood Garden Association and the Extension Service of Pennsylvania State University.

On one side of a wide center path are the Extension Service' gardens: of annuals from seed, a combination of annual and perennial flowers, vegetable and cutting gardens, plus turf plots.

On the other side are gardens, most 10-feet-square, planted by garden club members of roses, herbs, perennials, shrubs and a garden raised above damage by children or dogs. A labeled plot identifies most plants in the garden. Displays of window boxes and hanging baskets are in the garden house.

Delegations from Boston, Brooklyn, Chattanooga, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Omaha, St. Louis, Washington and Wilmington have come to observe the miracles of the Garden Block program. Perhaps your city should send delegates too?

WAY-OUT WAYS WITH SHIRTS

The shirt is not what is used to be. It has lost its decorum and given up the proper pin-stripe. Girls began invading the men's shop a long time past. Now the men are retaliating by taking to the wild ways of color, long suppressed in men's fashions.

We have called a truce in the battle of the shirt and happily matched a pair of madcap Mods. This set of his and her shirts might have been purchased on Carnaby Street during your last stop-over in London. The real truth is that you can make one for yourself (Simplicity Pattern No. 6929) and another for a friend (Simplicity Pattern No. 6955).

The styling is purely classic with a faced yoke, forward shoulder seams and back pleats. The set-in sleeves end in neatly buttoned cuffs, the collar has button-down points and the button closing goes from top to bottom on a front band. The fun-part is filling in the spaces between the top-stitched seam lines with the most way-out fabric around. Indulge in gay Roman stripes, giant polka dots, a rich paisley or bold print. We have selected a striped cotton in circus colors of yellow, blue, white and cherry pink.

A wide tie is up to you. Pick a solid color to match a predominant one in the shirt fabric; be reckless and select a striped tie for a polka dot shirt; or go way out with a print on a print.

AN INTEREST IN INTERFACING

The very Englishness of the shirt is emphasized by starchy, white collar and cuffs. Interfacing is the secret of this crisp freshness. It is also essential for proper reinforcement under the front band with buttonholes because this area will receive extra stress. There are many types of interfacing on the market today and it is wise to ask the advice of the salesperson at your local fabric center. The choice depends on the type of fabric selected for the shirt and the parts of the garment to be interfaced.

If your shirt fabric is washable, the same quality is needed for the interfacing. Also, the interfacing should not be heavier than the garment fabric with which it is to be used. Consider what you want the interfacing to do for the styling of the garment. For example, the piqué collar and cuffs on the shirt we show require a heavier interfacing fabric for body and stiffness than the front band which needs buttonhole reinforcement, but not a starched effect.

POINTS FOR PERFECTION

Aim for impeccably finished collar and cuffs by careful attention to inside details. These will be well explained in your pattern instruction sheet and each step is important for the perfection you want in the completed shirt. In making collars and cuffs, try to eliminate unnecessary bulk by removing all excess fabric. Cut corners off the interfacing before stitching to the wrong side of the collar. After the collar unit and facing are stitched together, trim the seam allowances in graduated layers beginning by cutting the interfacing closest to the stitching line, next the collar seam allowance and then the facing seam allowances; and clip V-notches in the curves. The same techniques should also be applied to the cuffs.

Pressing each seam as you construct a garment is a dressmaking habit worth acquiring. For a neat, sharp edge on your collar and cuffs, press open the layered seam and then press all layers toward the facing. When you turn the collar, gently work the points out as far as possible. A flat bodkin or a letter opener is a handy tool to use for this job.

If you want to learn more about facings and interfacings, I have a leaflet explaining the whole story. You may obtain a copy by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Sewing Editor of this newspaper. I am sure that your smashing success with your first shirt will be the start of a new shirt wardrobe made by you. You might try a western style with a curved front yoke, a military shirt distinguished by epaulets and flap pockets or a simple short sleeve style (all included in the same pattern) to go with your collection of mini-skirts and hipster pants.

Charles F. Kettering, industrialist, Dayton, Ohio: "Whenever we start something new, and anybody comes to me and says, 'Don't you think you are going to have a lot of trouble?" I say, 'Sure, any time you start to do anything new, we will guarantee the trouble.' Success depends on whether you get through the trouble or not."

CHILDHOOD AROUND THE WORLD

You may have worn knitted booties when you were a baby, but Sicilian tots sport wolfskin shoes! A little Korean girl may play with a doll of bamboo and grass, while the ideal gift for an African child may be a doll carved out of wood.

The greatest gift a child in the poverty-stricken areas of the world can receive is relief from deprivation and destitution. Monetary gifts from Americans help provide food, clothes and medicine for more than 40 million needy men, women and children in 80 countries. Donations made to the Catholic Bishops' Overseas Aid Fund will go to aid victims of armed conflict, poverty and disaster, regardless of race, creed or color.

Dresshirts Growing Down

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Skirts may be getting shorter but shirts are getting longer.

The shirt has grown up by growing down. And now we have the dashing debut of a new, practical sportwear look —the Dresshirt.

Combining the effect of a smartly tailored shirt with the wearability of a dress, the Dresshirt is the best of both worlds. This shirt—gone to great lengths to be a dress—is perfect garb for at home, shopping, strolling, beaching, vacationing and you name it. As a matter of fact it even turns tunic when worn with slim pants.

These shirts are styled to flatter the figure. They are easy-to-wear, modified A-line tents, slightly nipped at the waist. Hemlines top the knee.

Some have classic long sleeves, some roll sleeves and others are sleeveless. Collars spread or button down.

You'll find pleats, tucks, lace, stitching and plackets. A strategically hip-placed pocket shows up on many of the core-tailored styles.

The color chart includes orange, yellow and green as well as red, white and blue.

For the starker set, dramatic Dresshirts come in black and white. These colors all emerge in dots, stripes, Paisleys, geometrics and, of course, solids.

The Dresshirt should be a popular, cool and comfortable new fashion for spring and summer.

THE GROWN-DOWN DRESSHIRT is an authentically detailed shirt—only longer—for at-home wear, shopping or beaching. Designed to hit just above the knee, the cotton, lace-trimmed model (left) has pleated front treatment. It comes in bright orange, blue and green. Classic stripe model (right) has a button-down collar, front placket and pocket. Designs are by Lady Van Heusen.

FINDING THE WAY

Let's Make Up Our Minds

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

We are a bundle of contradictions and honest people know it. Our real tragedy occurs when we simply accommodate ourselves to life without any sense of conflict. From the vantage point of Easter we ought to look at our contradictions:

- Honest men have adamantly opposed any changes in the laws concerning abortion and yet, using the same logic, they bless war or, at least, do not oppose it. How do you apply the standards concerning the sanctity of human life?
- There is a general support of any attempts which can encourage reduction of governmental expenditures until it affects us locally. Then we protest, even though the continuance of the project may be wasteful. How do we apply the standards of honesty?
- We deplore growing crime rates and yet we tolerate slums, inferior housing and continue the conditions of poverty. How do we apply the standards of concern for our neighbor? And who is my neighbor?

A few years ago a national convention of one of our larger religious denominations was delayed in its discussions for several hours because of a debate which arose out of one of its reports. The framers of the resolution had said that if a churchman prayed on Sunday that he should be rid of all hatred and prejudice and then went out of the church continuing the same prejudice as before, this prayer was blasphemy. The use of that word touched off the heated debate. Finally, the matter was resolved by a rewording which stated that to continue the prejudice after praying that it be removed was a contradiction.

So, blasphemy or contradiction, the issue is before each person.

St. Paul stated it in practical terms: "I often find that I have the will to do good, but not the power. That is, I don't accomplish the good I set out to do and the evil I don't really want to do I find I am always doing . . . In my mind I am God's willing servant but in my own nation I am bound fast to the law of sin and death. It is an agonizing situation!" Paul found a way out of this situation by the very nature of his faith.

Our danger is that these contradictions will be accepted as normal. When we erode any consciousness of struggle or understanding of this paradox of our values, we've come to the place where there is moral breakdown. Then sin is only a word and morality only a consensus of behavior.

Recognizing this, those who proclaim the importance of a faith which produces a new way of life have to take a look at the contradictions we tolerate. We may not rule them out of life. We can know the tension of the struggle, for the awareness of that tension can be the beginning of a new way of life. We won't be satisfied with the contradictions.

Background for Taylor Speech in Library Book

A new book on the shelves of the public library gives residents the opportunity to bone up on the background of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's speech at the Chamber of Commerce banquet April 20 at the armory.

The book, titled "Responsibility and Response," is the general's own conception of the strategy this country needs to follow in response to what Communists call "wars of liberation" such as the conflict in Vietnam. It is his second book. "The Uncertain Trumpet" was the first.

General Taylor, a Keytesville native, former ambassador to Vietnam and adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, is a principal architect of the flexible response, which replaced massive retaliation as a United States military policy.

His new book is based on lectures given at Lehigh University in Behtlehem, Pa., in 1966 and includes answers to questions most often asked by his audiences.

The change in military policy came in response to challenges cropping up throughout the world and the emergence of China instead of a single threat from Russia.

"As a practical matter in a world of some 136 sovereign countries it is not possible for any government to give equal attention to problems of all these states," General Taylor writes.

"There must be some selectivity."

He divides the world into troublemakers -- most of them under Communist rule, victims -- weak, new emerging nations and bystanders -- northern hemisphere nations, which do not intervene.

Maxwell D. Taylor

General Taylor calls for an immediate response to Communist threats as they arise but before involvement asks for consideration of the extent of the American interest and a determination of the chance for success.

In Vietnam he maintains that the United States was obliged to take sides until the "Communist myth of the invincibility of 'wars of liberation', is exploded." He describes this Communist method as "a new technique for crawling under the conventional defenses of the free world and of nullifying conventional and nuclear armaments."

General Taylor in his book discusses the Vietnam war, the lessons to be drawn from it and recommends a governmental organization, now being constituted, for more effectively dealing with brush wars.

TREATING BABY'S ITCHY SKIN

Prescription ointments applied after a daily soak in the tub may be the best treatment for a baby or child suffering from itchy skin due to eczema.

This recommendation comes from Dr. John A. Kenney, Jr., head of the Division of Dermatology at Howard University College of Medicine. Dr. Kenney says that children with infantile eczema often have itchy skin because their skin is very dry. To keep the skin moist, the doctor recommends a daily bath followed by lubricating creams and whatever steroid ointment the doctor prescribes. These should be applied before the skin is completely dry.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the National Medical Association, Dr. Kenney said that he feels that except for simple anti-itch drugs, drugs that are taken internally should be used only if the eczema is so severe the child faces a lengthy absence from school.

He added that avoiding woolen and rough-textured clothing, keeping the child away from dust, and substituting wooden and rubber toys for stuffed animals are other precautions parents should take to make the child comfortable.

MALES, TEENS, WANTED AS HEALTH WORKERS

Tender, loving care can be as tender and loving coming from a man as from a woman, and men are being desperately sought as nurses, according to the World Health Organization, WHO notes that if more men became nurses the whole profession would be stabilized. Many female nurses eventually leave to take care of their families. It was pointed out that in some developing nations where physical conditions are particularly rugged male nurses would be especially welcome.

Grown men are not the only ones being wooed for health work. The field in the U.S. is wide open for teenagers of both sexes, too. It has been estimated that by 1970 the current 3,000,000 health service workers in this country may increase by more than a million and may even double. The need for health workers is so great that the National League for Nursing is sponsoring Future Nurses Clubs in communities around the country. There are 5,000 such clubs at present. They usually meet in high schools, and members hear talks by public health experts, doctors, therapists, nurses, and others. Members also work as volunteers in hospitals and with the poor in Project Head Start.

A MEDICAL LOOK AT COFFEE

Are you one of the eight out of ten Americans who drink coffee? If so, you've probably wondered as you've sipped your fifth cup, how it affects your health. Here are some answers from the American Medical Association's TODAY'S HEALTH:

One or two cups will raise the temperature inside your stomach, make your heart beat faster, cause certain glands to become more active and force your kidneys to work harder. Fortunately, most of these effects wear off within an hour.

In moderation, coffee doesn't make people nervous. But nervous people shouldn't drink excessive amounts of it since caffeine may effect them adversely.

Coffee seems to have some effect on sleep. One experiment showed that those who drank two or three cups before retiring found it difficult to fall asleep. But for others a single cup helped them sleep better.

Individuals and entities seeking rewards of a little more power, repute or profit, selfishly chose to agitate some self-centered minorities and encouraged them to take actions against the best interests of the great "majority" comprising the people. These agitators are now finding the results of their agitations coming home to roost in their own endeavors and enterprises. They are suffering greatly in loss of respect and "welfare." The "agitators" cannot run away from their past foolishness. It plagues them whether at home or abroad. The agitation which has been created may finally result in a re-evaluation of human relations and the attainment of more wholesome social practices. Then, advocates of law and order and love of country may no longer be condemned as "extremists" or "divisive reactionaries."

FT. BELVOIR, VA. (AHTNC) -- Private First Class Billy R. Beck, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Beck, Morehouse, Mo., completed an 11-week engineer equipment repair course at the Army Engineer School, Ft. Belvoir, Va., April 1.

He was trained in the maintenance of engineer construction and earthmoving equipment. Instruction was also given in the repair of gasoline and diesel engines, air compressors, tractors, graders, crane shovels, and other engineer equipment.

Cab and Rental Cars Meters Being Tested

JEFFERSON CITY -- Taxicab meters and odometers of rental cars operating in Missouri will be tested for accuracy under a new consumer protection program of the Missouri department of agriculture weights and measures division.

A "Fifth Wheel," a precision measuring device calibrated and certified by the National Bureau of Standards, has been purchased for use in the program. The device attaches to the rear bumper of the vehicle to accurately measure the distance traveled. Inspector Louis A. Stephens, Hannibal, is in charge of the new program.

Dexter D. Davis, state commissioner of agriculture, said that taxicabs and rental cars will be inspected periodically in areas where no program of this type exists. He said that the division will also work with weights and measures officials in cities that have jurisdiction over taxicabs and rental cars, but do not have this type of testing equipment.

Other customer protection activities of the Department's weights and measures division includes the periodic testing of various scales and measuring devices and checking the weights and prices of prepackaged food items sold in grocery stores such as meats, milk and bread. John H. Wilson is the director of the division.

Family Reunion Held at Perkins

PERKINS -- The family of Mrs. Curt McDaniel of Bell City had a family reunion at the home of a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schott Sunday.

All the McDaniel children were present except a son, Chester McDaniel of St. Louis.

Attending were Mrs. McDaniel; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kilmer, Reno, Nev.; Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence, Idaho City, Idaho; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Keesee, Cape Girardeau; Harold L. McDaniel and family, Delta; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cossore, Bell City; Mr. and Mrs. Charley Falk and Don Bond and family, all of Scott City; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McClanahan and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Marshall, all of Cape Girardeau; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Schott and son, Oran, and Mr. and Mrs. Eftink.

Children to Draw Pictures of Mothers

The Buckner-Ragsdale Company is sponsoring a drawing contest, designed for four age groups, from three to nine years, with winners for each age group to be given a Mother's Day award.

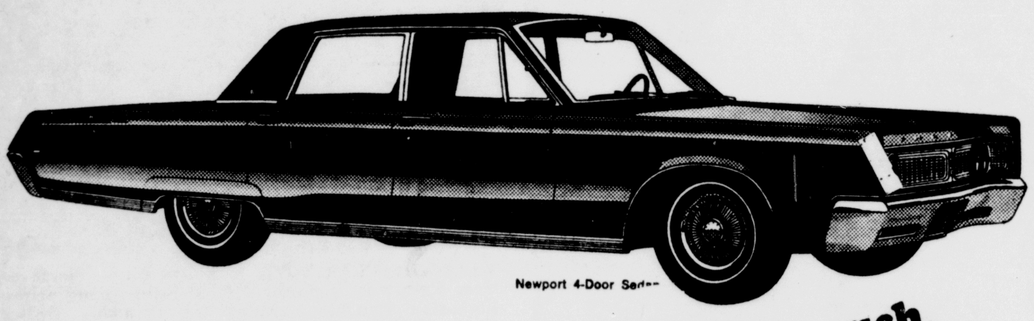

The children are asked to draw a likeness of their mother. The pictures must be drawn in pen and ink on a plain sheet of paper. Sketches must be signed by the child and brought to the store no later than May 9.

While I was waiting to get a haircut in a Detroit barbershop, I noticed a one-armed customer in the chair wince when the barber accidentally nicked him. But the barber kept right on talking and paid no attention.

Finally the barber asked, "Haven't you been in here before?"

"Hell, no," the customer replied. "I lost this arm in the war."

TREATING BABY'S ITCHY SKIN

Prescription ointments applied after a daily soak in the tub may be the best treatment for a baby or child suffering from itchy skin due to eczema.

This recommendation comes from Dr. John A. Kenney, Jr., head of the Division of Dermatology at Howard University College of Medicine. Dr. Kenney says that children with infantile eczema often have itchy skin because their skin is very dry. To keep the skin moist, the doctor recommends a daily bath followed by lubricating creams and whatever steroid ointment the doctor prescribes. These should be applied before the skin is completely dry.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the National Medical Association, Dr. Kenney said that he feels that except for simple anti-itch drugs, drugs that are taken internally should be used only if the eczema is so severe the child faces a lengthy absence from school.

He added that avoiding woolen and rough-textured clothing, keeping the child away from dust, and substituting wooden and rubber toys for stuffed animals are other precautions parents should take to make the child comfortable.

Background for Taylor Speech in Library Book

A new book on the shelves of the public library gives residents the opportunity to bone up on the background of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's speech at the Chamber of Commerce banquet April 20 at the armory.

The book, titled "Responsibility and Response," is the general's own conception of the strategy this country needs to follow in response to what Communists call "wars of liberation" such as the conflict in Vietnam. It is his second book. "The Uncertain Trumpet" was the first.

Maxwell D. Taylor

General Taylor, a Keytesville native, former ambassador to Vietnam and adviser to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson, is a principal architect of the flexible response, which replaced massive retaliation as a United States military policy.

His new book is based on lectures given at Lehigh University in Behtlehem, Pa., in 1966 and includes answers to questions most often asked by his audiences.

The change in military policy came in response to challenges cropping up throughout the world and the emergence of China instead of a single threat from Russia.

"As a practical matter in a world of some 136 sovereign countries it is not possible for any government to give equal attention to problems of all these states," General Taylor writes.

"There must be some selectivity."

He divides the world into troublemakers -- most of them under Communist rule, victims -- weak, new emerging nations and bystanders -- northern hemisphere nations, which do not intervene.

General Taylor calls for an immediate response to Communist threats as they arise but before involvement asks for consideration of the extent of the American interest and a determination of the chance for success.

In Vietnam he maintains that the United States was obliged to take sides until the "Communist myth of the invincibility of 'wars of liberation', is exploded." He describes this Communist method as "a new technique for crawling under the conventional defenses of the free world and of nullifying conventional and nuclear armaments."

General Taylor in his book discusses the Vietnam war, the lessons to be drawn from it and recommends a governmental organization, now being constituted, for more effectively dealing with brush wars.

CAPTAIN FRED LOGAN and his cage of jungle fighting lions will be a feature of the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Psychology Used in Training Wild Animals

The variety and scope that wild animal performers have today would make the heavily mustached and muscular trainer of 30 to 40 years ago gasp with amazement.

The wild animal trainer Capt. Fred Logan with the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus who will appear at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday has evolved his own training techniques and become virtually a wild animal psychologist. While the Madison Avenue psychologist will question his patient to find out the motives of his thoughts and actions, the animal psychologist must watch his charges with a Job like patience to know their actions, reactions, impulses and individualities.

Captain Logan both performs in his own lion act and supervises the leopard and panther act worked by Empress Leota.

His description of the psychology of lions and leopards and other felines is that they all possess some play instinct. Like household cats, these beasts have a conscious or unconscious vanity which delights in elegant, movement and statuesque poses. All the tricks that the wild animal is taught to do come naturally to him. In their natural habitat, lions and leopards sit, stand and paw the air, they jump over bushes and drive through gaps in tangled thorns and when hungry, often have to jump over blazing fire to secure their prey. Fred Logan has cultivated their natural traits into a series of evolutions which make them spectacular. They are asked to do no more than simple tricks in the circus ring.

A few of the other features with the circus are the Estrada Troupe from Portugal, acrobatic stars; the Gibsons, tight wire artists; the Riding Loyals, bareback riders, and Empress Leota, trainer of leopards, wolves and panthers. Underneath the huge canvas tent, over 100 people and countless animals will perform in the three rings, two stages, mammoth hippodrome track and in the giant steel arena.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The school census is now in progress and we appreciate the cooperation of all citizens in helping us to accomplish this project. It is very essential that we count all children and youth under twenty years of age, whether or not they are in school and whether or not they are in Sikeston. Just so long as they count a home in this district as their residence. Some county and state funds are allocated on the basis of those in this category and the school losses, in the event that any person is missed. We hope to complete the census during this month.

Planning is going forward on the building additions to be financed by the bond issue approved by the district voters March 7th. To the $1,350,000 of the bond issue, will be added approximately $200,000 of Federal funds which the district will get on a matching basis for additions to the Vocation school.

The buildings to be included in the first phase of the program will be additions and new buildings for the Vocational school and Senior High additions: including expansion of the cafeteria; an addition to the kitchen; two more rooms to the Math - Science building and approximately 2,200 square feet added to the library.

We hope to have plans complete and out for bids around the middle of May. Contracts will probably be let around the middle of June.

Faculty committees and lay members of the community are being consulted for their ideas and suggestions as the planning continues.

The elementary school and the field house planning will probably continue simultaneously as the second and final phase of the building program. It may be possible to have these plans ready for prospective bidders sometime during July.

If the program continues as planned, and without unforeseen delays, most of the buildings should be ready for use by fall of 1968.

Better education was the number one need of the Ozark region if the economy of this area is to be improved and poverty to be overcome, a study of 115 counties in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Missouri revealed.

The study was made by the Agricultural-Economic and Rural Sociology Department at the University of Arkansas under contracts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"The greatest single potential to helping to solve the problems of the people of the region is a heavy investment in education and training" the study states.

"Because labor force requirements, nationally and within the region, are changing so rapidly, existing rates of improvement in education in the Ozarks will have to be much more rapid simply to keep up" the study continued and goes on to say, "Investments to create superior schools is of great importance to the region in establishing superior labor forces in industry".

Obviously, to some degree, the same conclusions are applicable to Southeast Missouri's "Bootheel", just as they would be to any area wishing to develop economically.

The community college program, properly developed, in the Bootheel could do much to give this area an economic "shot in the arm" to say nothing of the cultural, social, and political betterment of the area.

Currently, we will not realize the educational potential of approximately 60%, or even more, of our high school graduates. Few of this 60% are now getting formal education above the high school and it is a brutal fact of life today that most jobs require more than high school training except where the graduate was heavily specialized in vocational education in the high school. Even these would benefit by additional job skill training. Certainly the ability to compete and to adapt to the environment in which they will live would, in addition, be helped by more education.

We commend those who made an effort to establish a junior college in the lower Bootheel, even though unsuccessful at first. We assume they will not stop until better education for the youth and adults of this area becomes a fact.

We hope that an adequate community college district, within reasonable driving distance for its students, can be established in our area. We believe that in the long run, the citizens of Southeast Missouri will become convinced that our people too, are entitled to educational opportunities and that eventually we will act to make them possible.

According to the National Consumer Finance Association, technicans are among the fastest growing occupational groups. Growth in demand for this type of worker will be three times that of the total labor force.

Technicans are the grouping which usually supports scientists and engineers in designing, developing, producing and maintaining machines and materials.

Department of Labor projections are that life-science technicans will be the fastest growing demand and that this will be primarily in the field of Biology. Demands will also be greater for engineering, physical science technicans and draftsmen.

April 16-22 is National Library Week.

In addition to state and local support of library facilities in the nation, Federal monies to the extent of about $500 million is being provided in 1966-67.

The theme of National Library Week is that "An informed community makes for a strong nation" and the program is to remind everyone of the values of reading and, of course, of libraries in this connection.

Buildings, teaching materials, the "things" of education are important, but the teacher stands at the heart of the educational process. The teacher is the basic factor in fixing the quality of our schools. We need in every classroom a teacher so well prepared, educated and so dedicated as to deserve an excellent rating. Fortunately, we have many in this category but every student is entitled to quality instruction. We will get more of them when we make the profession of such status, financial and otherwise, that it will attract and retain our best people.

District Sewing Event in Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- A total of 175 girls are entered in the district Sew-With-Cotton contest April 22, at the junior high school.

Mrs. Donald Simmons, supervisor of the Poplar Bluff home economics department, will be hostess. Activities will begin at 9 a.m.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, director, from the Patricia Stevens School of Modeling, Memphis, will instruct the girls in modeling, grooming, and general apperance.

Miss Emalyn Turner, textiles and clothing specialist from the University of Missouri and Miss Virginia Twitty, extension home economist, both from Columbia, will be two of the speakers heard during the mornin session.

The afternoon program, beginning at 1:10 p.m. is open to the public. J. M. Ragsdale, marketing specialist, University of Missouri, Columbia, will give a talk "Cotton Now And In The Future."

Highlighting the day's activities will be the style show beginning at 2:20 p.m. when each of the girls, 10 through 18, will model garments they have made. The top 15 girls will be announced at the close of the day's activities.

The district contestants are the winners in the county contests. The Sew-With-Cotton contest, sponsored by the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, in cooperation with home economic teachers, 4-H leaders, extension home economists and others.

Fertilizer Plant Goes Up In Vanduser

VANDUSER -- Construction has begun on a 200-ton capacity bulk fertilizer plant to be operated by Southeast Missouri Farmers Gin Company, for marketing fertilizers.

The facility will handle pelletized fertilizers. All products will come from the agricultural chemical division of Arkla Chemical Corporation's new fertilizer plant at Helena, Ark.

The gin company is a cooperative organized three years ago. It has 52 members. John Watkins is manager and Morris Alfultis is ginner.

The bulk plant will be 24-feet square, and more than 37 feet high with 16-foot girder supports. A 56-foot tall elevator will feed fertilizer materials into the plant's four bins from rail cars or truck transports.

A gravity feed system is an advantage of the plant's design. It provides fast loading of the customer's truck or spreader.

Spreaders will be available for customer use. A four-ton spreader can be pulled by a half-ton truck or tractor while broadcasting fertilizer. Such a spreader can put down fertilizer at the rate of about 35 acres an hour.

Arkla Chemical Corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, a diversified gas distribution company.

Private Enterprise And Public Responsibility In A Free Economy

I believe the majority of our problems are susceptible only to local diagnosis and treatment by local people who, in the Quakers' term, "have a concern." Being close to local conditions and activities by nature, businessmen should be able to spot potential problems before they become acute, and propose workable solutions before they become acute, and propose workable solutions before social reformers step forward with grandiose government schemes.

Every time we delegate a job to government, we add another picket to the fence of authority that is shutting us off from concern for our neighbor and his concern for us. Every time a citizens' group takes on such a job, it is doing its part to reverse this trend. Examples of what businessmen can do when they feel strongly about community problems may be seen in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Atlanta, and Newark. In these cities and many more, private, nonpolitical groups of businessmen have given revitalized leadership to projects for the well-being of all the people of the community.

The most recent example is New York City's new Economic Development Council, made up of executives from insurance companies, banks and industrial firms under the alert chairmanship of Clarence Francis, former head of General Foods. These are some of the busiest men in New York. But they are not too busy to devote a substantial portion of time and personal attention to finding ways of improving the business climate -- of keeping existing industries in the city and developing new enterprise.

One of the first ideas generated by the Council was a plan for an "early warning" system among the banks to detect businesses that might be in trouble and considering moving out of town. More than 500 branch banks throughout the five boroughs will report to the Council periodically on economic conditions in their communities and how they can be improved. In this way, the group hopes to learn much more than is currently known about economic trends so that it can take positive steps to make the business environment more attractive.

The businessman's personal involvement in activities, of this kind is more important than ever now that state and local government has become our largest "growth industry." It seems to me we should think seriously of applying on local and state levels the concept of the Hoover Commission of the 1940's and 1950's. You'll recall that a bipartisan group headed by former President Herbert Hoover made two exhaustive studies of the organization of the Executive Branch of the Federal government, and came up with a series of recommendations that saved the taxpayers some $10 billion a year. More than that, it furnished perhaps the greatest education of the American people in civil government since the original debate on the Constitution. Many of the recommendations have been put into effect, and the country is better governed as a result.

Now, I believe that the same kind of hard-headed and thoughtful approach could be applied to state and local government operations, I am confident the result would be better government at a better price.

Concentration. . . selectivity . . . personal involvement. These, as I see them, are key factors to consider in deciding what areas might be appropriate for creative competition between business and government. The exact ground rules for business' participation in this competition encounter will need defining, perhaps with some trial and error. But I am convinced that these things can be worked out once a company freely acknowledges the importance of its social responsibility.

Tips On How To Buy Grass Seed

Easter signifies the coming of spring to many folks. . . and spring, to homeowners, means lawn care time.

How do you choose the proper grass seed? First, advises the U. S. Department of Agriculture, ask yourself a few questions about the kind of lawn wanted and your locale. Then--READ THE LABELS.

One of the first questions to consider is, what will the lawn be used for. It takes a different type of grass to make a carpet-like lawn than to cover an area where children frequently play.

Climate plays an important role in selecting lawn seed, too. Some grasses do better in northern states, while others are more suitable for warm regions.

How much shade or sunlight falls on the area is important to remember, too.

Armed with this information, you are ready to look over the assortment of seed offered in your area. . . and to begin reading for the facts you want.

The label on a box or bag of grass seed will tell:

+ What kind of fine and coarse grasses are included in the blend and the percentage, by weight, of each.

+ Percentage of weed seeds and inert matter -- such as dirt, chaff and stones.

+ Percentage of seeds of each variety likely to germinate.

+ Date on which the seeds were tested for germination. (Germination is considered reliable up to six months after testing.)

Such information is required under many states' laws and by the Federal Seed Act, a truth-in-labeling law, administered by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. The Federal law applies to seed sold in interstate commerce.

Returning now, to the question of what kind of lawn is wanted. A back lot which children use as a multi-purpose playground is probably best seeded with a fast-growing, coarse grass. This seed usually is cheaper per pound than fine grass seed.

Fine grasses are slow to grow, and more costly per pound, but they are the key to carpet-like lawns.

In northern states, Kentucky bluegrass, rough bluegrass (often called POA TRIVIALIS), red fescue and bentgrass are suitable for lawns. These all are fine-textured grasses with narrow, soft leaves.

Warmer regions will find bermudagrass, carpetgrass, zoysia and St. Augustine grass appropriate.

Grasses that tolerate shady areas include red fescue, rough bluegrass and St. Augustine grass. Bentgrasses, Kentucky bluegrass, bermudagrass and carpetgrass require more sun.

Red and chewings fescue and rough bluegrass (not really rough, but similar to Kentucky bluegrass) often are mixed with Kentucky bluegrass for shady areas of a lawn.

Most seeds used for lawns are perennial, surviving from year to year. A major exception is annual ryegrass which dies out after one season.

A blend of coarse and fine grasses is often recommended for a new lawn. The coarse grass, growing faster, will thus provide cover until the finer grass matures. Stick to the preferred type once your lawn is established, but in need of thickening.

Experts frequently recommend a blend of various suitable grasses to guard against some disease attacking a lone variety and ruining a lawn.

Because the proper blend of grasses varies according to an area, and even according to soil within an area, it is best to consult your county agricultural extension agent or advisor. They will know about town and suburban areas as well as farmland.

CAPTAIN FRED LOGAN and his cage of jungle fighting lions will be a feature of the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Psychology Used in Training Wild Animals

The variety and scope that wild animal performers have today would make the heavily mustached and muscular trainer of 30 to 40 years ago gasp with amazement.

The wild animal trainer Capt. Fred Logan with the Al G. Kelly and Miller Bros. Circus who will appear at the rodeo grounds at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday has evolved his own training techniques and become virtually a wild animal psychologist. While the Madison Avenue psychologist will question his patient to find out the motives of his thoughts and actions, the animal psychologist must watch his charges with a Job like patience to know their actions, reactions, impulses and individualities.

Captain Logan both performs in his own lion act and supervises the leopard and panther act worked by Empress Leota.

His description of the psychology of lions and leopards and other felines is that they all possess some play instinct. Like household cats, these beasts have a conscious or unconscious vanity which delights in elegant, movement and statuesque poses. All the tricks that the wild animal is taught to do come naturally to him. In their natural habitat, lions and leopards sit, stand and paw the air, they jump over bushes and drive through gaps in tangled thorns and when hungry, often have to jump over blazing fire to secure their prey. Fred Logan has cultivated their natural traits into a series of evolutions which make them spectacular. They are asked to do no more than simple tricks in the circus ring.

A few of the other features with the circus are the Estrada Troupe from Portugal, acrobatic stars; the Gibsons, tight wire artists; the Riding Loyals, bareback riders, and Empress Leota, trainer of leopards, wolves and panthers. Underneath the huge canvas tent, over 100 people and countless animals will perform in the three rings, two stages, mammoth hippodrome track and in the giant steel arena.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The school census is now in progress and we appreciate the cooperation of all citizens in helping us to accomplish this project. It is very essential that we count all children and youth under twenty years of age, whether or not they are in school and whether or not they are in Sikeston. Just so long as they count a home in this district as their residence. Some county and state funds are allocated on the basis of those in this category and the school losses, in the event that any person is missed.

We hope to complete the census during this month.

Planning is going forward on the building additions to be financed by the bond issue approved by the district voters March 7th. To the $1,350,000 of the bond issue, will be added approximately $200,000 of Federal funds which the district will get on a matching basis for additions to the Vocation school.

The buildings to be included in the first phase of the program will be additions and new buildings for the Vocational school and Senior High additions; including expansion of the cafeteria; an addition to the kitchen; two more rooms to the Math - Science building and approximately 2,200 square feet added to the library.

We hope to have plans complete and out for bids around the middle of May. Contracts will probably be let around the middle of June.

Faculty committees and lay members of the community are being consulted for their ideas and suggestions as the planning continues.

The elementary school and the field house planning will probably continue simultaneously as the second and final phase of the building program. It may be possible to have these plans ready for prospective bidders sometime during July.

If the program continues as planned, and without unforeseen delays, most of the buildings should be ready for use by fall of 1968.

Better education was the number one need of the Ozark region if the economy of this area is to be improved and poverty to be overcome, a study of 115 counties in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Missouri revealed.

The study was made by the Agricultural-Economic and Rural Sociology Department at the University of Arkansas under contracts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"The greatest single potential to helping to solve the problems of the people of the region is a heavy investment in education and training" the study states.

"Because labor force requirements, nationally and within the region, are changing so rapidly, existing rates of improvement in education in the Ozarks will have to be much more rapid simply to keep up" the study continued and goes on to say, "Investments to create superior schools is of great importance to the region in establishing superior labor forces in industry".

Obviously, to some degree, the same conclusions are applicable to Southeast Missouri's "Bootheel", just as they would be to any area wishing to develop economically.

The community college program, properly developed, in the Bootheel could do much to give this area an economic "shot in the arm" to say nothing of the cultural, social, and political betterment of the area.

Currently, we will not realize the educational potential of approximately 60%, or even more, of our high school graduates. Few of this 60% are now getting formal education above the high school and it is a brutal fact of life today that most jobs require more than high school training except where the graduate was heavily specialized in vocational education in the high school. Even these would benefit by additional job skill training. Certainly the ability to compete and to adapt to the environment in which they will live would, in addition, be helped by more education.

We commend those who made an effort to establish a junior college in the lower Bootheel, even though unsuccessful at first. We assume they will not stop until better education for the youth and adults of this area becomes a fact.

We hope that an adequate community college district, within reasonable driving distance for its students, can be established in our area. We believe that in the long run, the citizens of Southeast Missouri will become convinced that our people too, are entitled to educational opportunities and that eventually we will act to make them possible.

According to the National Consumer Finance Association, technicans are among the fastest growing occupational groups. Growth in demand for this type of worker will be three times that of the total labor force.

Technicans are the grouping which usually supports scientists and engineers in designing, developing, producing and maintaining machines and materials.

Department of Labor projections are that life-science technicans will be the fastest growing demand and that this will be primarily in the field of Biology. Demands will also be greater for engineering, physical science technicans and draftsmen.

April 16-22 is National Library Week.

In addition to state and local support of library facilities in the nation, Federal monies to the extent of about $500 million is being provided in 1966-67.

The theme of National Library Week is that "An informed community makes for a strong nation" and the program is to remind everyone of the values of reading and, of course, of libraries in this connection.

Buildings, teaching materials, the "things" of education are important, but the teacher stands at the heart of the educational process. The teacher is the basic factor in fixing the quality of our schools. We need in every classroom a teacher so well prepared, educated and so dedicated as to deserve an excellent rating. Fortunately, we have many in this category but every student is entitled to quality instruction. We will get more of them when we make the profession of such status, financial and otherwise, that it will attract and retain our best people.

District Sewing Event in Poplar Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF -- A total of 175 girls are entered in the district Sew-With-Cotton contest April 22, at the junior high school.

Mrs. Donald Simmons, supervisor of the Poplar Bluff home economics department, will be hostess. Activities will begin at 9 a.m.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, director, from the Patricia Stevens School of Modeling, Memphis, will instruct the girls in modeling, grooming, and general apperance.

Miss Emalyn Turner, textiles and clothing specialist from the University of Missouri and Miss Virginia Twitty, extension home economist, both from Columbia, will be two of the speakers heard during the mornin session.

The afternoon program, beginning at 1:10 p.m. is open to the public. J. M. Ragsdale, marketing specialist, University of Missouri, Columbia, will give a talk "Cotton Now And In The Future."

Highlighting the day's activities will be the style show beginning at 2:20 p.m. when each of the girls, 10 through 18, will model garments they have made. The top 15 girls will be announced at the close of the day's activities.

The district contestants are the winners in the county contests. The Sew-With-Cotton contest, sponsored by the Missouri Cotton Producers Association, in cooperation with home economic teachers, 4-H leaders, extension home economists and others.

Fertilizer Plant Goes Up In Vanduser

VANDUSER -- Construction has begun on a 200-ton capacity bulk fertilizer plant to be operated by Southeast Missouri Farmers Gin Company, for marketing fertilizers.

The facility will handle pelletized fertilizers. All products will come from the agricultural chemical division of Arkla Chemical Corporation's new fertilizer plant at Helena, Ark.

The gin company is a cooperative organized three years ago. It has 52 members. John Watkins is manager and Morris Alfultis is ginner.

The bulk plant will be 24-feet square, and more than 37 feet high with 16-foot girder supports. A 56-foot tall elevator will feed fertilizer materials into the plant's four bins from rail cars or truck transports.

A gravity feed system is an advantage of the plant's design. It provides fast loading of the customer's truck or spreader.

Spreaders will be available for customer use. A four-ton spreader can be pulled by a half-ton truck or tractor while broadcasting fertilizer. Such a spreader can put down fertilizer at the rate of about 35 acres an hour.

Arkla Chemical Corporation is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company, a diversified gas distribution company.

Examples of what businessmen can do when they feel strongly about community problems may be seen in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Atlanta, and Newark. In these cities and many more, private, nonpolitical groups of businessmen have given revitalized leadership to projects for the wellbeing of all the people of the community.

The most recent example is New York City's new Economic Development Council, made up of executives from insurance companies, banks and industrial firms under the alert chairmanship of Clarence Francis, former head of General Foods. These are some of the busiest men in New York. But they are not too busy to devote a substantial portion of time and personal attention to finding ways of improving the business climate -- of keeping existing industries in the city and developing new enterprises.

One of the first ideas generated by the Council was a plan for an "early warning" system among the banks to detect businesses that might be in trouble and considering moving out of town. More than 500 branch banks throughout the five boroughs will report to the Council periodically on economic conditions in their communities and how they can be improved. A RECONVERTED SCHOOL BUILDING houses the Inland Shoe Manufacturing plant at Parma. Attracting the new industry was a result Parma participation in the Missouri Community Betterment program.

Community Betterment Rewards Parma

By Don Roberts

PARMA - The Missouri Community Betterment program has rewarded Parma with industry that every town in the MCB program wishes to acquire.

The factory, a division of the Inland Shoe Manufacturing Company of Clayton, is now operating on a small basis but has plans to expand.

The factory, Mayor Randell Ramsey notes, was accomplished through Parma's community betterment program.

Everett Lee of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development at Jefferson City worked with Parma as he has done with many towns to acquire industry.

Lee recommended Parma to Inland as a site for expansion. He learned that Parma had an empty building for such a factory when he worked with city officials in their MCB program.

The vacant building was Southeast elementary school, which was vacated last May because of integration of Parma schools.

Ivan Francis of Advance, general manager of Inland for this area, said there were four influencing factors in choosing Parma for the factory site:

First, a labor survey was conducted in the MCB program to find out what labor force was available in the area. This survey was directed to the female labor force only. The results were 1,200-1,400 women, who said they would work if industry were to come to their area. This survey covered an area about 25 miles around Parma.

The second reason was the lack of other industry in the area.

The third reason was Parma had an empty building with adequate facilities.

Fourth, Parma was participating in the MCB program, proving it was a progressive community.

Otis Johnson, plant manager, said the factory now employs 32 persons and is expected to add about 48 more by this summer. The building has a capacity for about 100 workers and is expected to reach that number within 1-1/2 years, Johnson said.

A new line of production including about 30 new machines, has been added to the factory, Johnson explained. The factory now has about 70 machines.

The Parma MCB program was started in February of 1966. A new sewage system was completed last November.

Three major projects are in the designing stages now. They are a complete lighting system, a community building and a public library.

In the MCB five star program Parma qualifies in the categories of sewage, street lighting, industrial, planning and zoning in the state's 701 plan of health services and fire protection.

A water treatment plan is now being designed. When it is completed, Parma will qualify in that MCB category.

Improvement is being planned for leisure time activities, police protection and air markings.

Parma like most small towns lacks the support to promote major improvement projects in a short time; but even under these circumstances and following the guidance of the MCB program, many things have become possible.

As Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says, "Eighty-five per cent of the industries located in Missouri go to communities that have employed a community betterment program."

Parma is a living example of this.

Letters Oppose Toll Road Bill

ST. LOUIS -- "Toll roads do not serve local traffic needs," said the Automobile Club of Missouri in letters to each of the 163 members of the Missouri House of Representatives.

In requesting defeat of Senate Perfected Bill No. 2 as amended by the House Roads and Highways Subcommittee, the Auto Club said: "both interstate traffic and local traffic needs must be considered in determining solutions to highway needs.

The experience of other states has shown that toll roads do not serve local traffic needs since access points cannot be located to serve most small communities. Smaller communitues do not generate sufficient traffic for the toll road to pay the cost of operating a toll station.

"It is not feasible to provide a good parallel free road for the local traffic because of the probability of the traffic using the free road instead of the toll road. As a result, many of the residents in a toll road corridor are forced to use an inferior roadway."

The Automobile Club said: "A thorough study should be made of the entire highway structure before any precipitate action is taken to disturb the present highway system in Missouri."

The letter of opposition also reiterated a number of points cited in the AAA testimony at Senate and House Committee hearings.

These included:

1. Use of Highway User Funds to pay principal and interest on toll road bonds would be contrary to the intent of the Missouri Constitution;

2. The State Highway Commission and the Turnpike Authority, if approved, should be kept separate because their functions are fundamentally diverse;

3. A Turnpike Authority should not be allowed to lease a toll road to the State Highway Commission because they would be the same body and leases should be negotiated at arms length for the protection of the public;

4. Relocation of public utility facilities should not be paid by a Turnpike Authority because it would place another burden on the motorists and the Highway User Funds;

5. A turnpike Authority should not be given power to set speed limits 20 per cent higher than those existing on the free highway system because traffic could not move safely at 84 miles per hour on a roadway with a design speed of 70 mph;

6. A study should be made to determine why Missouri maintains such a disproportionately high amount of state highways on the lowest gas tax rate in the nation. (Missouri maintains 32,000 miles of state highways Illinois and New York maintain only 16,000 and 15,000 miles respectively.)

The Auto Club noted that Senate Bill No. 170 provides for a state tax study commission to study all fiscal operations in Missouri and suggests that this could include a study of the various methods of financing highway construction before a move is made to undertake the construction of high- cost toll roads.

I couldn't help but be amused by the young man ahead of me in line to register for an adult-education course. After he signed up for the class in how to invest your money, he explained that he had only one dollar of the seven-dollar fee and would like to pay the rest later in the week when he got paid.

State Highway Commission Sets April 28 For Bid Call Totaling $11,250,000

The Missouri State Highway Commission has issued a request for bids on April 28 for construction and improvements covering 58.6 miles of the state's highways extending into 23 counties and the cities of Clinton, Sedalia, Kansas City and Jefferson City. Estimated cost of this work is $11,-250,-000.

Work in the bid call includes 4.6 miles of Interstate system projects estimated to cost $5,-500,000; for 37.1 miles of Primary system and 4.4 miles of Urban system projects estimated to cost $3,750,000; and for 12½ miles of Secondary (farm to market) system work estimated to cost $2,000,000.

Interstate system work includes:

PLATTE: Interstate Route 29 -- 3 miles grading, culverts, bridging, signing, lighting, laying two 36 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavements on part and widening and resurfacing one 36 - foot wide pavement with asphaltic concrete on part. The work is both north and south of Platte Woods. Two bridges are included.

PLATTE: Interstate Route 29 -- 1.6 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying two 36 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavements from near Platte Woods southeast of proposed Interstate Route 635. Five bridges are included.

JACKSON: Interstate Route 70 -- highway beautification (the planting of trees and shrubs) in Kansas City from Broadway Street east of Charlotte Street.

ST. CHARLES: Interstate Route 70 -- highway beautification (the planting of trees and shrubs) from Wentzville east to St. Peters.

JEFFERSON: Interstate Route 55 -- highway signing along a 9.8 mile stretch from about 2½ miles north of Route M to about 0.8 mile south to the Herculaneum spur.

Primary system work includes:

HARRISON: U. S. Route 69 -- 5.8 miles widening to 24 feet and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete pavement from Bethany north to the Interstate Route 35 connection.

CARROLL -- LAFAYETTE: U. S. Route 65 -- cleaning and painting the Missouri River bridge at Waverly.

CASS: Route 7 -- 9.7 miles of 20 to 32 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, south of Pleasant Hill, southwest to Harrisonville.

HENRY: Route 52 -- 15.2 miles of 20 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing from St. Clair county north to Montrose then east to Route 13 at Deepwater.

OZARK: Route 5 -- 3.9 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying one 24 - foot wide asphaltic concrete pavement both north and south of Wilhoit. Includes a 210 - foot continuous girder bridge over Barren Fork Creek.

DALLAS - GREENE: U. S. Route 65 -- 2.4 miles grading, culverts, bridging and laying one 24 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavement which will provide a dual lane facility from north of Route AA, in Dallas county, south to south of Route AF, in Greene county. Includes a 394 - foot continuous plate girder structure over the Pomme de Terre River.

Urban system improvements are:

HENRY: Route 18 (A) -- 1.2 miles grading, storm sewers and 39 - foot wide asphaltic concrete resurfacing in Clinton on Ohio Street from 2nd Street east to relocate Route 13.

PETTIS: U. S. Route 50 -- 1 mile grading, storm sewers, widening to 52 feet and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete pavement in Sedalia from east of the west city limits to U. S. Route 65.

PLATTE: Route 45 -- 2.2 miles grading, culverts and laying one 24 - foot wide portland cement concrete pavement in Kansas City north from Route 9, about a half mile north of Parkville, east of Interstate Route 29.

COLE: U. S. Route 50 -- highway signing from the west city limits of Jefferson City east to McCarty Street and lighting of the interchange of U. S. Routes 50, 54 and 63 and Dix Road interchange.

COLE: U. S. Route 54 -- highway signing from present U. S. Route 50 in Jefferson City to south of Ellis Boulevard and lighting the Ellis Boulevard and Stadium Drive interchanges.

DISTRICT 10, SIKESTON

MADISON: Route CC -- install an 89½ - foot precast concrete slab bridge over Trace Creek, a half mile west of Route C, along with 0.1 mile of necessary grading and surfacing of approaches.

MADISON: Route NN -- install a double 15 by 8½ - foot concrete box culvert at Dry Creek, a half mile north of Route J, along with 0.1 mile of necessary grading and surfacing of approaches.

A RECONVERTED SCHOOL BUILDING houses the Inland Shoe Manufacturing plant at Parma. Attracting the new industry was a result Parma participation in the Missouri Community Betterment program.

Community Betterment Rewards Parma

By Don Roberts

PARMA - The Missouri Community Betterment program has rewarded Parma with industry that every town in the MCB program wishes to acquire.

The factory, a division of the Inland Shoe Manufacturing Company of Clayton, is now operating on a small basis but has plans to expand.

The factory, Mayor Randell Ramsey notes, was accomplished through Parma's community betterment program.

Everett Lee of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development at Jefferson City worked with Parma as he has done with many towns to acquire industry.

Lee recommended Parma to Inland as a site for expansion. He learned that Parma had an empty building for such a factory when he worked with city officials in their MCB program.

The vacant building was Southeast elementary school, which was vacated last May because of integration of Parma schools.

Ivan Francis of Advance, general manager of Inland for this area, said there were four influencing factors in choosing Parma for the factory site:

First, a labor survey was conducted in the MCB program to find out what labor force was available in the area. This survey was directed to the female labor force only. The results were 1,200-1,400 women, who said they would work if industry were to come to their area. This survey covered an area about 25 miles around Parma.

The second reason was the lack of other industry in the area.

The third reason was Parma had an empty building with adequate facilities.

Fourth, Parma was participating in the MCB program, proving it was a progressive community.

Otis Johnson, plant manager, said the factory now employs 32 persons and is expected to add about 48 more by this summer. The building has a capacity for about 100 workers and is expected to reach that number within 1-1/2 years, Johnson said.

A new line of production including about 30 new machines, has been added to the factory, Johnson explained. The factory now has about 70 machines.

The Parma MCB program was started in February of 1966. A new sewage system was completed last November.

Three major projects are in the designing stages now. They are a complete lighting system, a community building and a public library.

In the MCB five star program Parma qualifies in the categories of sewage, street lighting, industrial, planning and zoning in the state's 701 plan of health services and fire protection.

A water treatment plan is now being designed. When it is completed, Parma will qualify in that MCB category.

Improvement is being planned for leisure time activities, police protection and air markings.

Parma like most small towns lacks the support to promote major improvement projects in a short time; but even under these circumstances and following the guidance of the MCB program, many things have become possible.

As Gov. Warren E. Hearnes says, "Eighty-five per cent of the industries located in Missouri go to communities that have employed a community betterment program."

Parma is a living example of this.

Letters Oppose Toll Road Bill

ST. LOUIS -- "Toll roads do not serve local traffic needs," said the Automobile Club of Missouri in letters to each of the 163 members of the Missouri House of Representatives.

In requesting defeat of Senate Perfected Bill No. 2 as amended by the House Roads and Highways Subcommittee, the Auto Club said: "both interstate traffic and local traffic needs must be considered in determining solutions to highway needs.

'Please Pass The Olives!'

The olive began its odyssey in Syria, made history in Greece and Rome, adventured to America with the Spanish explorers and had a holy introduction to California. And it's still traveling -- around your dinner table, perhaps?

Ever since Noah's dove returned to the Ark carrying an olive twig, the olive has been one of the traveling - est fruits known to man.

The olive tree is thought to have originated in Syria, and traveled to Greece, Africa, Spain and throughout the Mediterranean. Olives are mentioned in the Iliad, in the Bible, and in Pliny's history of Rome. A cask of pickled olives was found when the lost city of Pompeii was rediscovered. The olive traveled to America with the Spanish explorers. Credit the Franciscan fathers with its introduction to California.

In the very earliest days, olives were a staple food, used primarily for their oil. An olive press was one of man's earliest food processing inventions.

Today, olives can be bought in any food store and you can buy them green, black, stuffed, pitted, thrown or placed, home cured, halved, sliced, chopped, or in a salad pack.

Some people keep olives around the house as a special treat when guests drop in. Many people use them regulary in family meals or keep them on hand for snacks.

Why is this program of pickled product so popular? Once a person learns to appreciate the finer points of olivetry, he is hooked for life.

THE OLIVE FAMILY

There are basically two types of olives: canned ripe olives, usually black in color, and green olives, stuffed or otherwise. To be edible, all olives must be treated to remove a characteristic bitterness.

Canned ripe olives are parepared from partially - mature olives that have been specially treated to remove the bitterness and cured in a salt brine solution. They are oxidized -- to produce a uniform black color -- and packed in hermetically sealed containers.

Green ripe olives are similar to canned ripe olives in all respects except that they have not been oxidized in the curing process. As a result they range in color from yellow-green to green and are usually spotted, or mottled.

Tree - ripened or "home canned olives made from fully-matured fruit that are not oxidized in processing but have a tan or light bronze color.

Greek-type olives are mature olives that have been salt cured and coated with olive oil.

The category of green olives refers to cured olives of a suitable maturity that have been specially treated, cured and allowed to pickle in acidified brine. Unlike the canned ripe olives, green olives may be packed in jars - either in a neat pattern or randomly placed. Pitted green olives are usually stuffed with pimiento, zucca melon, onion, anchovies, or almonds. Because most of them are imported from Spain, stuffed green olives often are called "Spanish olives."

HOME OF THE OLIVE

California is the home of our domestic olive industry. In 1966 the State produced 58,000 tons, surpassing the previous year's crop by about 8,000 tons. The California crop goes primarily into canned ripe olives.

In an effort to broaden the market and improve consumer acceptance of their product the California olive industry has instituted a Federal marketing agreement and order. Marketing agreements and orders are a means through which farmers can organize for marketing--increase their bargaining strength, fit supplies to demand, and generally work together to solve marketing problems they cannot solve individually.

Producers and handlers of olives approved the marketing order in the summer of 1965. What this means to consumers is that, beginning with the 1966-67 pack, they will have the assurance that their California ripe olives have been inspected under supervision of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service on two separate occassions.

Before processing, olives are size graded. The marketing order requires that all size grading of fresh olives for processing be overseen by a Federal-State inspector. Since the difference in diameter between adjacent olive sizes is small, it takes precise measurement and scientific aids to determine the size classifications.

After processing, olives are checked for quality and size by C&MS inspectors against specifications set forth in the marketing order for the processed product.

The quality specifications are based on the U. S. Standards for Grades of Canned Ripe Olives, which detail requirements for color, number of defects, character, style and uniformity of size for each of three grades: U. S. Grade A (or U. S. Fancy), U. S. Grade B (or U. S. Choice), and U. S. Grade C (or U. S. Standard). If olives do not meet the minimum Grade C requirements, they cannot be sold under the terms of the marketing order.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

California is the cradle of the motion picture industry as well as the domestic olive cpaital. Some cynics, noting the contemporary aspects of the development of the size names of olives, have been known to speculate, "Did the movie industry borrow from the olive industry the descriptive terms 'mammoth,' 'jumbo,' and 'super colossal,' or was it the other way around?"

The size names for olives were defined in a California State code before the first U.S. olive standards were developed. The sizes are determined by the approximate number of olives in a pound. The U. S. Standards, incorporating the size requirements and illustrations of the California code, say it takes about 135 "Small or Select or Standard" olives to make a pound, while it takes 28 or fewer "Special Super Colossal" canned ripe olives to make a pound.

LABEL TELLS ALL

Labeling of canned ripe olives is a big help to shoppers. The same California code that puts forth the size names of canned ripe olives also requires that labels carry an outline picture the same size as the olives in the can, along with a statement telling how many olives of that size are packed in the can.

Federal Food and Drug regulations require additional information on the label, such as listing of any added spices and garnishes, the manufacturer's name and address, and a statement of net weight. Consumers can shop with ease when they buy canned ripe olives.

What about stuffed green olives? Practically all of these are imported since in this country the necessary handstuffing is too costly. In 1965, the U. S. imported about 37,000 tons of olives from Spain, Greece and other areas. More recent figures indicate an even greater volume of imports.

Imported olives are shipped to this country in large barrels and then are repacked in jars and other containers. They are subject to the same Federal Food and Drug labeling and and wholesomeness regulations that apply to domestic olives. In addition, any olives imported into this country for repacking may be checked for quality, at the option of the repacker, by C&MS inspection personnel.

As with canned ripe olives, quality of green olives is judged according to U.S. standards. Ever on the alert to keep the standards up to date, C&MS revised the U. S. Standards for Grades of Green Olives this past January.

You have to be ready for action when you're dealing with the globe-trotting olive.

'Please Pass The Olives!'

The olive began its odyssey in Syria, made history in Greece and Rome, adventured to America with the Spanish explorers and had a holy introduction to California. And it's still traveling -- around your dinner table, perhaps?

Ever since Noah's dove returned to the Ark carrying an olive twig, the olive has been one of the traveling - est fruits known to man.

The olive tree is thought to have originated in Syria, and traveled to Greece, Africa, Spain and throughout the Mediterranean. Olives are mentioned in the Iliad, in the Bible, and in Pliny's history of Rome. A cask of pickled olives was found when the lost city of Pompeii was rediscovered. The olive traveled to America with the Spanish explorers. Credit the Franciscan fathers with its introduction to California.

In the very earliest days, olives were a staple food, used primarily for their oil. An olive press was one of man's earliest food processing inventions.

Today, olives can be bought in any food store and you can buy them green, black, stuffed, pitted, thrown or placed, home cured, halved, sliced, chopped, or in a salad pack.

Some people keep olives around the house as a special treat when guests drop in. Many people use them regulary in family meals or keep them on hand for snacks.

Why is this program of pickled product so popular? Once a person learns to appreciate the finer points of olivetry, he is hooked for life.

THE OLIVE FAMILY

There are basically two types of olives: canned ripe olives, usually black in color, and green olives, stuffed or otherwise. To be edible, all olives must be treated to remove a characteristic bitterness.

Canned ripe olives are parepared from partially - mature olives that have been specially treated to remove the bitterness and cured in a salt brine solution. They are oxidized -- to produce a uniform black color -- and packed in hermetically sealed containers.

Green ripe olives are similar to canned ripe olives in all respects except that they have not been oxidized in the curing process. As a result they range in color from yellow-green to green and are usually spotted, or mottled.

Tree - ripened or "home canned olives made from fully-matured fruit that are not oxidized in processing but have a tan or light bronze color.

Greek-type olives are mature olives that have been salt cured and coated with olive oil.

The category of green olives refers to cured olives of a suitable maturity that have been specially treated, cured and allowed to pickle in acidified brine. Unlike the canned ripe olives, green olives may be packed in jars - either in a neat pattern or randomly placed. Pitted green olives are usually stuffed with pimiento, zucca melon, onion, anchovies, or almonds. Because most of them are imported from Spain, stuffed green olives often are called "Spanish olives."

HOME OF THE OLIVE

California is the home of our domestic olive industry. In1966 the State produced 58,000 tons, surpassing the previous year's crop by about 8,000 tons. The California crop goes primarily into canned ripe olives.

In an effort to broaden the market and improve consumer acceptance of their product the California olive industry has instituted a Federal marketing agreement and order. Marketing agreements and orders are a means through which farmers can organize for marketing--increase their bargaining strength, fit supplies to demand, and generally work together to solve marketing problems they cannot solve individually.

Producers and handlers of olives approved the marketing order in the summer of 1965. What this means to consumers is that, beginning with the 1966-67 pack, they will have the assurance that their California ripe olives have been inspected under supervision of USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service on two separate occassions.

Before processing, olives are size graded. The marketing order requires that all size grading of fresh olives for processing be overseen by a Federal-State inspector. Since the difference in diameter between adjacent olive sizes is small, it takes precise measurement and scientific aids to determine the size classifications.

After processing, olives are checked for quality and size by C&MS inspectors against specifications set forth in the marketing order for the processed product.

The quality specifications are based on the U. S. Standards for Grades of Canned Ripe Olives, which detail requirements for color, number of defects, character, style and uniformity of size for each of three grades: U. S. Grade A (or U. S. Fancy), U. S. Grade B (or U. S. Choice), and U. S. Grade C (or U. S. Standard). If olives do not meet the minimum Grade C requirements, they cannot be sold under the terms of the marketing order.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

California is the cradle of the motion picture industry as well as the domestic olive cpaital. Some cynics, noting the contemporary aspects of the development of the size names of olives, have been known to speculate, "Did the movie industry borrow from the olive industry the descriptive terms 'mammoth,' 'jumbo,' and 'super colossal,' or was it the other way around?"

The size names for olives were defined in a California State code before the first U.S. olive standards were developed. The sizes are determined by the approximate number of olives in a pound. The U. S. Standards, incorporating the size requirements and illustrations of the California code, say it takes about 135 "Small or Select or Standard" olives to make a pound, while it takes 28 or fewer "Special Super Colossal" canned ripe olives to make a pound.

LABEL TELLS ALL

Labeling of canned ripe olives is a big help to shoppers. The same California code that puts forth the size names of canned ripe olives also requires that labels carry an outline picture the same size as the olives in the can, along with a statement telling how many olives of that size are packed in the can.

Federal Food and Drug regulations require additional information on the label, such as listing of any added spices and garnishes, the manufacturer's name and address, and a statement of net weight. Consumers can shop with ease when they buy canned ripe olives.

What about stuffed green olives? Practically all of these are imported since in this country the necessary handstuffing is too costly. In 1965, the U. S. imported about 37,000 tons of olives from Spain, Greece and other areas. More recent figures indicate an even greater volume of imports.

Imported olives are shipped to this country in large barrels and then are repacked in jars and other containers. They are subject to the same Federal Food and Drug labeling and and wholesomeness regulations that apply to domestic olives. In addition, any olives imported into this country for repacking may be checked for quality, at the option of the repacker, by C&MS inspection personnel.

As with canned ripe olives, quality of green olives is judged according to U.S. standards. Ever on the alert to keep the standards up to date, C&MS revised the U. S. Standards for Grades of Green Olives this past January.

You have to be ready for action when you're dealing with the globe-trotting olive.

Circuit Court

BENTON: Judge Craig heard these CIVIL CASES here recently:

Polly Dean Riley vs. E. S. Smith, PERSONAL INJURIES. Both parties in Court with their attorneys, and announce their readiness for trial. A jury is called, qualified and the case is submitted to them.

Instructions are read to the jury and the plaintiff presents his case. Then the defendant presents his side of the suit.

At the close of the defendant's defense, the defendant's attorney's make oral Motion For Directed Verdict, which the Judge overrules.

Then plaintiff's attorney file Motion For Judgment, at the close of the case, which is overruled by Judge Craig.

The Judge procedes to give instructions to the jury, after which they retire to consider their verdict, at 5:02 p.m.

At 6:17 p.m., the same day, the jury returns to the Courtroom and announce they have reached a verdict.

"We, the jury, find the issues in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant and assess the plaintiff's damages at $30,000."

The jury is discharged and verdict ordered filed.

Judge Craig renders judgment in accordance with verdict.

Mo. Utilities Co. vs. Sally Juden Reed, et. al., CONDEMNATION.

Parties in Court, by their respective attorneys.

Two Commissioners, Walter Dohogne and E. J. Jarvis, are sworn in and given instructions by Judge Craig.

Rules for Cotton Research Plan Okayed

MEMPHIS -- Proposed regulations designating the first buyer as collecting handler of a $1 bale assessment to finance a cotton research and promotion program have been approved by the cotton board which administers the program, the Department of Agriculture announced.

The first buyer who will collect the assessment from producers would include persons, firms, or associations who assume the producer's interest in a bale of cotton through outright purchase, an advance or loan, or by crediting a producer's account with the value of his cotton.

The rules and regulations adopted by the board will be published in the Federal Register and comments may be filed up to April 24. They should be sent to the Hearing Clerk, Room 112-A, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., 20250.

Copies of the rules and regulations may be obtained from the Cotton Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

School of Ozarks Gets Science Grants

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) - Science facilities at the School of the Ozarks will be enlarged with the use of money from two grants.

Each grant was for $490,800. They were announced Tuesday by the president of the college, Dr. M. Graham Clark.

One is from Mrs. W. Alton Jones of Easton, Md. Her gift will endow a chair of science in memory of her husband, once chairman of the Cities Service Co. The new $1.5 million Nettie Marie Jones Learning Center, to be dedicated April 23, is named for Mrs. Jones.

The other grant is from the Gustavus and Louise Pfeiffer Research Foundation of New York for construction of a new science building.

School of Ozarks Gets Science Grants

POINT LOOKOUT, Mo. (AP) - Science facilities at the School of the Ozarks will be enlarged with the use of money from two grants.

Each grant was for $490,800. They were announced Tuesday by the president of the college, Dr. M. Graham Clark.

One is from Mrs. W. Alton Jones of Easton, Md. Her gift will endow a chair of science in memory of her husband, once chairman of the Cities Service Co. The new $1.5 million Nettie Marie Jones Learning Center, to be dedicated April 23, is named for Mrs. Jones.

The other grant is from the Gustavus and Louise Pfeiffer Research Foundation of New York for construction of a new science building.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE ENIGMATIC SMILE

Mary Lou was as pretty as a picture. Unfortunately, like the Mona Lisa, her attractiveness depended upon her smiling with her mouth closed. For behind her subtle smile, Mary Lou concealed a set of Texas teeth: wide open spaces.

To remedy her dental situation, Mary Lou finally went to see Dr. I. Straightenum. After examining her teeth, the conscientious dentist set upon a course of treatment that lasted for two years. At the end of that time, Mary Lou's teeth remained as disorganized as ever. Becoming an impatient patient, Mary Lou sued the unsuccessful dentist for malpractice.

"I paid him to do a job," she complained in court, "and he didn't do it. After two years, I still look like a picket fence every time I laugh."

"It's not my fault," answered the dentist. "I did everything possible. Certainly, a dentist can't be held liable for teeth that aren't pliable.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dentist pay for not fixing Mary Lou's Texas teeth?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in the absence of a specific agreement to the contrary, when a physician or dentist undertakes to treat a case, he does not guaranty a cure, nor is any such promise implied. He is simply required to use ordinary skill and care in carrying out the treatment.

(Based upon a 1963 Louisiana Supreme Court Decision)

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for the young woman whose house was a mess and company dropped in unexpectedly just as she was trying to get a new baby ready for bed. Her husband mumbled something to the guests about how awful the place looked and ended up saying, "My wife hasn't cleaned the house since the baby came."

I agree that the husband should not have said this, but it seems to me too much emphasis is placed on the looks of the house these days and not enough is said about warm-hearted hospitality.

I, for one, feel greatly flattered when unexpected company drops in. I couldn't care less about the hour or the looks of the house. I love people and I figure they are real friends if they feel they can come by without a formal invitation. Do you agree with me, Ann? --- OPEN DOOR, OPEN HEART

Dear Open Open: No, I do not. But I'll get back to you later. For now here is a letter from a woman who does agree with you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was upset with your reply to the husband who apologized for the looks of their apartment when unexpected guests dropped in. You said the GUESTS should apologize, since they were the ones who barged in.

Our home is open to anyone and everyone who wishes to enter. I make no pretense of being the world's greatest housekeeper. I happen to like people better than I like cleaning house.

Several years ago we had a sign printed. I placed this sign in our entrance way. It reads: "Although you will find the house a mess, please come in and enjoy yourself. The place doesn't always look like this. Some days it's worse." ---EDITH C.

Dear Edith: Thanks for letting us know how it is at your house. And now I will respond to both you and the writer of the first letter.

If you believe an open door means an open heart, you must also believe a closed door means a closed heart. This I feel is unjust. More often than not a closed door simply means, "I am busy."

Since you shared your sign with me, I would like to share one with you. A writer who lives in Michigan told me about it several years ago. It was nailed to the door of his home and read: "If you are uninvited and unexpected you are also unwelcome. Please go away and let me do my work."

I agree with the wit who said, "The most difficult thing about leisure time is to keep people from using yours."

Dear Ann Landers: Remember the letter from the girl whose Navy boy friend got himself transferred to another part of the world when he learned she was pregnant? She advised all girls whose steadies want to play house to ask them to sign a paper they had slept together on such and such a night. This, she said, would do wonders to diminish (if not kill) the sex drive.

When our daughter turned 16 her father gave her this advice: "If a boy asks you to go the limit to prove your love, tell him he'll have to speak to your father because your father is responsible for you as long as you live under his roof."

Our daughter followed his instructions and said it produced the most shocked expressions she had ever seen. ---MRS. J.

Dear Mrs.: I'm not surprised. If there's anything a guy doesn't want to be reminded of at a time like that it's a girl's father.

Alcohol is not shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze and You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Bell City News

The awarding of God and Country awards in Scout tropp No. 1780 by the Rev. John W. Jerrell and the Rev. John P. Wray, was held Sunday morning at the Bell City Methodist Church, with visitors present from Dexter, Bloomfield and Advance.

Mrs. Wayne French was at the organ for the prelude and processional where the honored scouts escorted their parents to reserved seats.

Scouts Terry Eakin and Fred Brown posted the flags and joined the audience in the pledge of allegiance to the flags.

Scout Johnny Holifield of Bloomfield, accompanied by his brother James, at the organ, was soloist.

Scoutmaster of troop no. 178, Tyree Brown, congratulated the scouts on their accomplishments and also their parents for their help and cooperation and introduced Mr. Dwight Rusnogtle of Dexter, Scout Executive of the Sioux District, who gave an inspirtational address to the young men and to all Scouts present.

Mr. Wallace Stephens, president of the sponsoring Methodist Men's Club, introduced the scouts and presented them with the awards.

The Rev. Jarrell, pastor of the local Methodist church, and the Rev. John P. Whay, pastor of the General Baptist Church of Bell City, each gave a very interesting address before presenting each boy with the award.

Those receiving the Coveted Award earned by their helpfulness in the churches and other worthwhile projects of the community, were John and Michael Johnson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Johnson, Max Eakin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Othel Eakin, Rocky Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim D. Jeffress, Billy Knuderce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Knuderce, and Braddy Henson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Henson.

The Stoddard County Sew with Cotton Contest, sponsored by the University Extension Service, and the Stoddard County Cotton Gins with Mrs. Blair Dalton, Bell City, program chairman, and Mrs. Louis Rankin of Dexter, Event Chairman and the High School Home Economics Depts., at the Bell City gymnasiums Saturday, April 8. Mrs. Helen Calhoren, director of Bell City Home Economics instructor.

The Judges were Mrs. Wayne French, Mrs. Jimmy Goforth, Mrs. Leon Dannenmueller, Mrs. Lee Trammell, Mrs. R. M. Limbaugh, Mrs. Harold Lumsden, Mrs. Halter and Miss Peggy Gaines.

Introduction of sponsor representatives, Mr. Thomas A. Brown, Jr., Dexter, University of Missouri Extension Director, and Mr. James E. Spain, Dexter.

Miss Gloria Dunlap and Miss Betty Kinder were narrators for the fashion show held in the afternoon, Miss Patricia Bollinger was pianist. All three girls were from Bell City High School. More than 100 girls of the Stoddard County High School and 4-H Clubs were contestants. Dexter led the schools in winners with Essex second place. The winners will compete at a district event, to be held at Poplar Bluff April 22, at the Junior High School.

David Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Dalton, left Monday for a tour of duty with the U.S. Army. He was accompanied to St. Louis by his parents, where he entrained for Fort Leonard Wood, and will be assigned to another base in the near future.

At Acapulco it's "in" to go out in a cool, crisp Viracle suit by Hart Schaffner & Marx

When a well-dressed man follows the sun, he packs a Viracle suit. It won't develop travel fatigue. Won't crease, slump or wrinkle in steamy weather. Viracle stays neat, you stay cool.

Viracle is an altogether neat suit. In many patterns and more colors than the Braniff planes to Acapulco. For a handsome example: Quebrada Gray, with an appropriate shirt of Las Brisas Pink.

Easy-going as it is, Viracle isn't a play suit. This lightweight blend of Dacron* and worsted is carefully tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx to look as trim in a board room as on a beach. The look you buy is the look you keep.

Anywhere under the sun, you're at ease in a cool HS&M Viracle suit from our new collection. $95.00

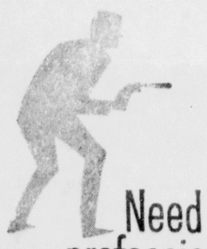

As sketched at Las Brisas Hotel, Acapulco, Mexico

Mary Lou was as pretty as a picture. Unfortunately, like the Mona Lisa, her attractiveness depended upon her smiling with her mouth closed. For behind her subtle smile, Mary Lou concealed a set of Texas teeth: wide open spaces.

To remedy her dental situation, Mary Lou finally went to see Dr. I. Straightenum. After examining her teeth, the conscientious dentist set upon a course of treatment that lasted for two years. At the end of that time, Mary Lou's teeth remained as disorganized as ever. Becoming an impatient patient, Mary Lou sued the unsuccessful dentist for malpractice.

"I paid him to do a job," she complained in court, "and he didn't do it. After two years, I still look like a picket fence every time I laugh."

"It's not my fault," answered the dentist. "I did everything possible. Certainly, a dentist can't be held liable for teeth that aren't pliable.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dentist pay for not fixing Mary Lou's Texas teeth?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that in the absence of a specific agreement to the contrary, when a physician or dentist undertakes to treat a case, he does not guaranty a cure, nor is any such promise implied. He is simply required to use ordinary skill and care in carrying out the treatment.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I felt sorry for the young woman whose house was a mess and company dropped in unexpectedly just as she was trying to get a new baby ready for bed. Her husband mumbled something to the guests about how awful the place looked and ended up saying, "My wife hasn't cleaned the house since the baby came."

I agree that the husband should not have said this, but it seems to me too much emphasis is placed on the looks of the house these days and not enough is said about warm-hearted hospitality.

I, for one, feel greatly flattered when unexpected company drops in. I couldn't care less about the hour or the looks of the house. I love people and I figure they are real friends if they feel they can come by without a formal invitation. Do you agree with me, Ann? --- OPEN DOOR, OPEN HEART

Dear Open Open: No, I do not. But I'll get back to you later. For now here is a letter from a woman who does agree with you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was upset with your reply to the husband who apologized for the looks of their apartment when unexpected guests dropped in. You said the GUESTS should apologize, since they were the ones who barged in.

Our home is open to anyone and everyone who wishes to enter. I make no pretense of being the world's greatest housekeeper. I happen to like people better than I like cleaning house.

Several years ago we had a sign printed. I placed this sign in our entrance way. It reads: "Although you will find the house a mess, please come in and enjoy yourself. The place doesn't always look like this. Some days it's worse." ---EDITH C.

Dear Edith: Thanks for letting us know how it is at your house. And now I will respond to both you and the writer of the first letter.

If you believe an open door means an open heart, you must also believe a closed door means a closed heart. This I feel is unjust. More often than not a closed door simply means, "I am busy."

Since you shared your sign with me, I would like to share one with you. A writer who lives in Michigan told me about it several years ago. It was nailed to the door of his home and read: "If you are uninvited and unexpected you are also unwelcome. Please go away and let me do my work."

I agree with the wit who said, "The most difficult thing about leisure time is to keep people from using yours."

Dear Ann Landers: Remember the letter from the girl whose Navy boy friend got himself transferred to another part of the world when he learned she was pregnant? She advised all girls whose steadies want to play house to ask them to sign a paper they had slept together on such and such a night. This, she said, would do wonders to diminish (if not kill) the sex drive.

When our daughter turned 16 her father gave her this advice: "If a boy asks you to go the limit to prove your love, tell him he'll have to speak to your father because your father is responsible for you as long as you live under his roof."

Our daughter followed his instructions and said it produced the most shocked expressions she had ever seen. ---MRS. J.

Dear Mrs.: I'm not surprised. If there's anything a guy doesn't want to be reminded of at a time like that it's a girl's father.

The awarding of God and Country awards in Scout tropp No. 1780 by the Rev. John W. Jerrell and the Rev. John P. Wray, was held Sunday morning at the Bell City Methodist Church, with visitors present from Dexter, Bloomfield and Advance.

Mrs. Wayne French was at the organ for the prelude and processional where the honored scouts escorted their parents to reserved seats.

Scouts Terry Eakin and Fred Brown posted the flags and joined the audience in the pledge of allegiance to the flags.

Scout Johnny Holifield of Bloomfield, accompanied by his brother James, at the organ, was soloist.

Scoutmaster of troop no. 178, Tyree Brown, congratulated the scouts on their accomplishments and also their parents for their help and cooperation and introduced Mr. Dwight Rusnogtle of Dexter, Scout Executive of the Sioux District, who gave an inspirtational address to the young men and to all Scouts present.

Mr. Wallace Stephens, president of the sponsoring Methodist Men's Club, introduced the scouts and presented them with the awards.

The Rev. Jarrell, pastor of the local Methodist church, and the Rev. John P. Whay, pastor of the General Baptist Church of Bell City, each gave a very interesting address before presenting each boy with the award.

Those receiving the Coveted Award earned by their helpfulness in the churches and other worthwhile projects of the community, were John and Michael Johnson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Johnson, Max Eakin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Othel Eakin, Rocky Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim D. Jeffress, Billy Knuderce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Knuderce, and Braddy Henson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Henson.

The Stoddard County Sew with Cotton Contest, sponsored by the University Extension Service, and the Stoddard County Cotton Gins with Mrs. Blair Dalton, Bell City, program chairman, and Mrs. Louis Rankin of Dexter, Event Chairman and the High School Home Economics Depts., at the Bell City gymnasiums Saturday, April 8. Mrs. Helen Calhoren, director of Bell City Home Economics instructor.

The Judges were Mrs. Wayne French, Mrs. Jimmy Goforth, Mrs. Leon Dannenmueller, Mrs. Lee Trammell, Mrs. R. M. Limbaugh, Mrs. Harold Lumsden, Mrs. Halter and Miss Peggy Gaines.

Introduction of sponsor representatives, Mr. Thomas A. Brown, Jr., Dexter, University of Missouri Extension Director, and Mr. James E. Spain, Dexter.

Miss Gloria Dunlap and Miss Betty Kinder were narrators for the fashion show held in the afternoon, Miss Patricia Bollinger was pianist. All three girls were from Bell City High School. More than 100 girls of the Stoddard County High School and 4-H Clubs were contestants. Dexter led the schools in winners with Essex second place. The winners will compete at a district event, to be held at Poplar Bluff April 22, at the Junior High School.

David Dalton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Dalton, left Monday for a tour of duty with the U.S. Army. He was accompanied to St. Louis by his parents, where he entrained for Fort Leonard Wood, and will be assigned to another base in the near future.

At Acapulco it's "in" to go out in a cool, crisp Viracle suit by Hart Schaffner & Marx

When a well-dressed man follows the sun, he packs a Viracle suit. It won't develop travel fatigue. Won't crease, slump or wrinkle in steamy weather. Viracle stays neat, you stay cool.

Viracle is an altogether neat suit. In many patterns and more colors than the Braniff planes to Acapulco. For a handsome example: Quebrada Gray, with an appropriate shirt of Las Brisas Pink.

Easy-going as it is, Viracle isn't a play suit. This lightweight blend of Dacron* and worsted is carefully tailored by Hart Schaffner & Marx to look as trim in a board room as on a beach. The look you buy is the look you keep.

Anywhere under the sun, you're at ease in a cool HS&M Viracle suit from our new collection. $95.00

As sketched at Las Brisas Hotel, Acapulco, Mexico

Today is Thursday, April 13, the 103rd day of 1967. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1743, Thomas Jefferson, the third president, was born at Shadwell, Va.

On this date:

In 1818, the U.S. flag, as approved by Congress, was first raised over the House of Representatives.

In 1852, merchant Frank Woolworth was born in Rodman, N.Y.

In 1870, the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York was incorporated.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington.

In 1945, a funeral train bore President Roosevelt's body to Washington from Warm Springs, Ga.

Ten years ago—Mail service was drastically curtailed as Congress considered a Post Office Department request for a $47 million deficiency appropriation to meet expenses for the rest of the fiscal year.

Five years ago — President John F. Kennedy's victory over steel companies that raised their prices began to take shape as the firms began to rescind the price hikes.

One year ago — South Vietnam's military junta agreed to hold general elections for a civilian government within 3 to 5 months.

Concluding a TV interview with Sammy Davis, Jr., Mike Wallace said, "You want people to like you."

"Yes," replied Davis, "but that's just the frosting on the cake. In its simplest form: I don't want people to dislike me before I've earned it."

Also heard was a proposal to allow school taxes to stay at their existing level if a levy increase is defeated. Now if a tax increase fails to pass, the levy drops back to the constitutional minimum of $1.25.

Another House committee approved bills to make galena the official state mineral and mozarkite the official state rock. Galena is lead ore. Mozarkite, unique to Missouri, is a form of chert.

Earlier a House committee heard conflicting testimony on a resolution to set up a special committee to investigate student disturbances at Lincoln University in Jefferson City.

Rep. Henry Ross, D-Kansas City, sponsor of the resolution, said "unless this body goes into the university with investigative powers and corrects the grave situation that exists, I'm afraid we're going to be sorry we didn't."

Rep. DeVerne Calloway, D-St. Louis, disagreed.

"An investigation would be irrelevant at this time," she said, "because the mechanics for investigation of grievances have been set under way."

Robert Newton, student body president, said "There is a great potential for a recurrence" of last week's demonstrations "if we don't get any help."

"We don't know whether or not we will continue to attend classes," he said, "of if we will just get another batch of promises which the student body no longer has any faith in."

The committee deferred action.

A Senate committee approved a bill to exempt 10-cent vending machine sales from the sales tax and another to put a six-year limit on the time actions may be brought against income taxpayers.

Johnson Calls for Action

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (AP) — President Johnson challenged his Latin colleagues at the summit today to make this "a decade of urgency" for the hemisphere.

In his first formal speech at the 19-nation meeting, Johnson called for 10 years of intensive efforts on a broad front to speed the social and economic development of the Americas.

"I speak to you as a ready partner in that effort," he said.

Actually, Johnson's formal remarks were less attention-getting and significant than those he delivered Wednesday at a private session with his summit colleagues.

His earlier, informal statement had the look of a dramatic bid to still the clamor for more direct aid to Latin - American nations.

In his formal speech, the U.S. chief executive ticked off areas in which he said the United States was ready and eager to help—to support a proposed Latin-American common market, to help build big projects cutting across national boundaries (highways are an example), explore tariff advantages for all developing countries, to help modernize agriculture, and to promote better health and education.

"I pledge to you today," he said, "that I will do all I can, in my time of leadership, to help you meet these challenges."

Johnson's speech and his promises seemed to inject new life into a meeting that had been marked by backstage bickering among foreign ministers in the presummit negotiations.

A high source said the presidents were in agreement that establishment of a common market should be completed by 1985 with automatic tariff cuts leading to it.

Another source said Chile, Colombia and Venezuela were in accord on formation of a subregional market within the Latin American free trade area.

The U.S. President called on the Latin Americans to act "boldly — wisely — and now," and added:

"If we do, we can create a new America where the best in man may flourish in freedom and dignity. If our rhetoric is not followed by action, we shall fail not only the Americans of this generation, but hundreds of millions of others."

The passage was indicative of what was on Johnson's mind: an apprehensive feeling that all the oratory and high-flown words at this summit might go for nothing if steam could not be generated behind the Latin American governments.

Even with the new signs of life at this conference, there was no assurance that Johnson's promise would satisfy the Latin American governments.

Johnson apparently had gone just about as far as he could within the confines of the possible, what with the attitude of the U.S. Senate at this moment and the U.S. unfavorable balance of trade and the outflow on gold.

In his first conference statement at a private meeting Wednesday, Johnson touched on two of the touchiest points at issue — the Latin Americans' desire for preferential treatment for their products in the U.S. market and their desire for relaxation of Washington's requirement that equipment purchased with U.S. loans and grants be bought in the U.S. market.

The President promised his Latin-American colleagues he would try to gain worldwide tariff concession for developing nations and would consider granting them freedom to spend certain kinds of U.S. aid money outside the United States. While Johnson's statement was calculated to put his fellow presidents in a receptive mood, he had no firm commitments.

Touching on the question of trade, he promised to explore the possibility of "temporary tariff advantages for all developing countries by all industrialized countries."

On aid, he promised to "try to establish whether we can agree that aid funds for capital projects and related technical assistance can be used in Alliance for Progress countries in ways which will protect the U.S. balance of payments."

This type of trade is believed to amount to no more than $250 million a year.

At the preliminary meeting Wednesday, President Arthur da Costa e Silva of Brazil said Latin America could not delay any longer the achievement of liberty, progress and attainment of human rights. He said Brazil was ready to help "eliminate from our countries conditions which are undeserved and incompatible with the dignity of man."

President Fernando Belaunde Terry of Peru announced a plan to check the flow of capital escaping by the millions of dollars from Latin America. He said the Latin American presidents plan a hemisphere-wide common stock market to provide an outlet for domestic capital and to attract new capital from industrialized nations.

More GIs Die on Patrol Duty Than in Big Battles

SAIGON (AP) — An American infantryman in Vietnam is more likely to be killed or wounded on patrol than in a big battle. In two out of three cases, shell fragments rather than bullets will inflict the wounds.

Even in the big engagements, most allied casualties are taken in the first sudden minutes of action.

The enemy strikes when he figures he has the advantage, wrests what he can from the initial confusion of battle, then fades off as superior American firepower is brought to bear.

The wounds a U.S. soldier receives in Vietnam are remarkably similar in percentage and type to those of World War II and the Korean War.

These conclusions have been reached in casualty surveys conducted by the U.S. Marine Corps and the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division. They are borne out by estimated percentages in some other U.S. outfits in Vietnam.

About 65 per cent of American casualties are inflicted on small unit patrols, ranging in size from a 12-man squad to a 30-man platoon, the surveys determined.

In the central highlands the sharpened bamboo punji stake, described by one analyst as "the guerrilla land mine," caused 21.7 per cent of the wounds of the 5,218 cavalrymen wounded in action from September, 1965, to January, 1967.

In populated regions along the coast, south of the demilitarized zone and around Saigon, use of Communist copies of the U.S. Claymore mine is increasing.

About 5 per cent of all battle casualties among Americans in Vietnam are estimated to be from these mines, which can be aimed to spew thousands of pellets in the direction of advancing troops.

Land mines, booby traps and firing devices detonated by hidden enemy troops account for 16 per cent of all U.S. Marine injuries. Weapons in these categories killed 203 Marines and wounded 2,174 in 1966.

Other American units figure they suffer 10 to 15 per cent of all casualties from mines and booby traps, particularly infantry attached to armored columns. Communist War Zones D and C, in an arc north and northwest of Saigon, are laced with mines used against armored vehicles and trucks.

Casualties from nonhostile causes are lower in Vietnam than in other wars, according to military doctors, because of the low incidence of psychiatric trouble and the elaborate hygienic measures taken with food.

However, malaria has inflicted a heavy toll on the cavalry. A total of 4,000 cases have been reported among the troopers since they arrived in September, 1965. Nine have died. The remainder have returned to duty after treatment.

Newspaper Becomes Target for Arson

ALTON, Ill. (AP) - Police today were investigating four fires set during the night at the Alton Evening Telegraph building.

The newspaper's editor and publisher, Paul Cousley, said he thinks the vandalism might be in retaliation for stories published recently in the paper.

Cousley said the newspaper has been writing stories on loan company practices including the recent beating of a man in debt to a loan firm. Also the paper has been reporting a labor dispute.

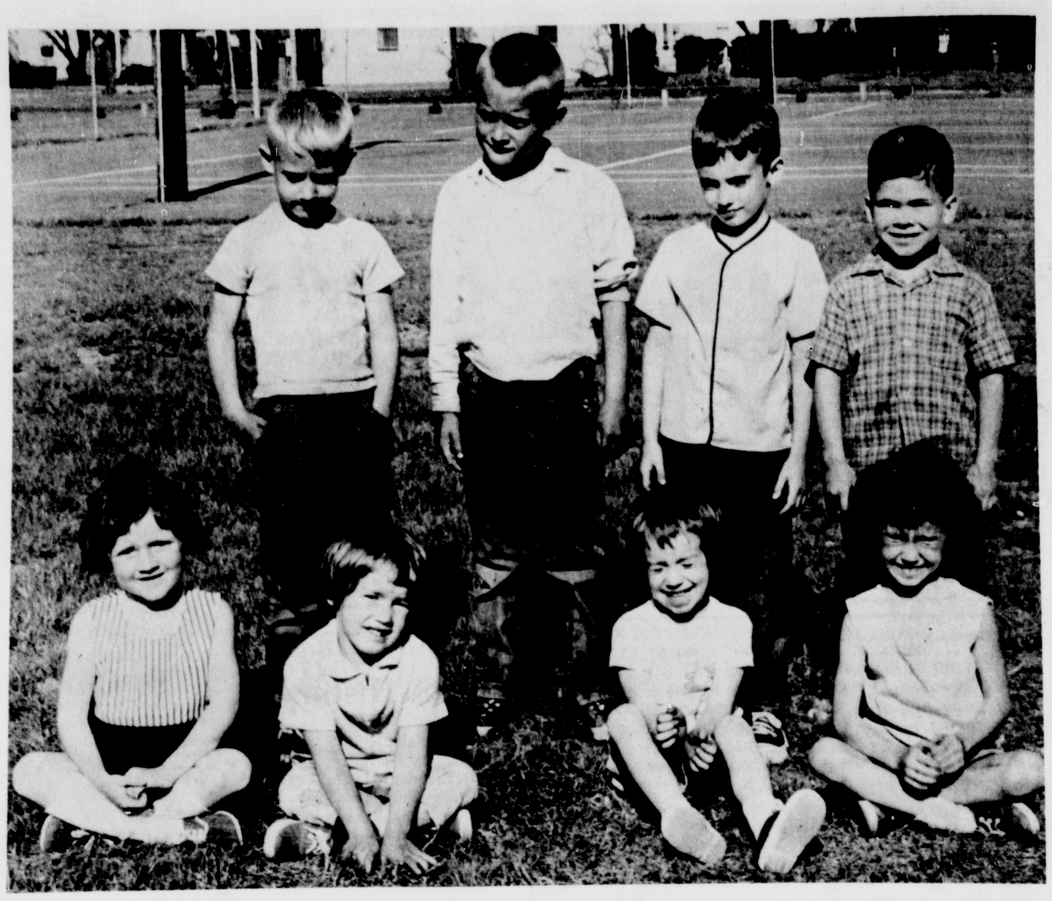

A newspaper spokesman said two fires had been started in the basement of the building. The other two were set on the second floor.

Officials said damage to the building in the heart of downtown Alton was minor.

The enemy strikes when he figures he has the advantage, wrests what he can from the initial confusion of battle, then fades off as superior American firepower is brought to bear.

The wounds a U.S. soldier receives in Vietnam are remarkably similar in percentage and type to those of World War II and the Korean War.

These conclusions have been reached in casualty surveys conducted by the U.S. Marine Corps and the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division. They are borne out by estimated percentages in some other U.S. outfits in Vietnam.

About 65 per cent of American casualties are inflicted on small unit patrols, ranging in size from a 12-man squad to a 30-man platoon, the surveys determined.

In the central highlands the sharpened bamboo punji stake, described by one analyst as "the guerrilla land mine," caused 21.7 per cent of the wounds of the 5,218 cavalrymen wounded in action from September, 1965, to January, 1967.

In populated regions along the coast, south of the demilitarized zone and around Saigon, use of Communist copies of the U.S. Claymore mine is increasing.

About 5 per cent of all battle casualties among Americans in Vietnam are estimated to be from these mines, which can be aimed to spew thousands of pellets in the direction of advancing troops.

Land mines, booby traps and firing devices detonated by hidden enemy troops account for 16 per cent of all U.S. Marine injuries. Weapons in these categories killed 203 Marines and wounded 2,174 in 1966.

Other American units figure they suffer 10 to 15 per cent of all casualties from mines and booby traps, particularly infantry attached to armored columns. Communist War Zones D and C, in an arc north and northwest of Saigon, are laced with mines used against armored vehicles and trucks.

Casualties from nonhostile causes are lower in Vietnam than in other wars, according to military doctors, because of the low incidence of psychiatric trouble and the elaborate hygienic measures taken with food.

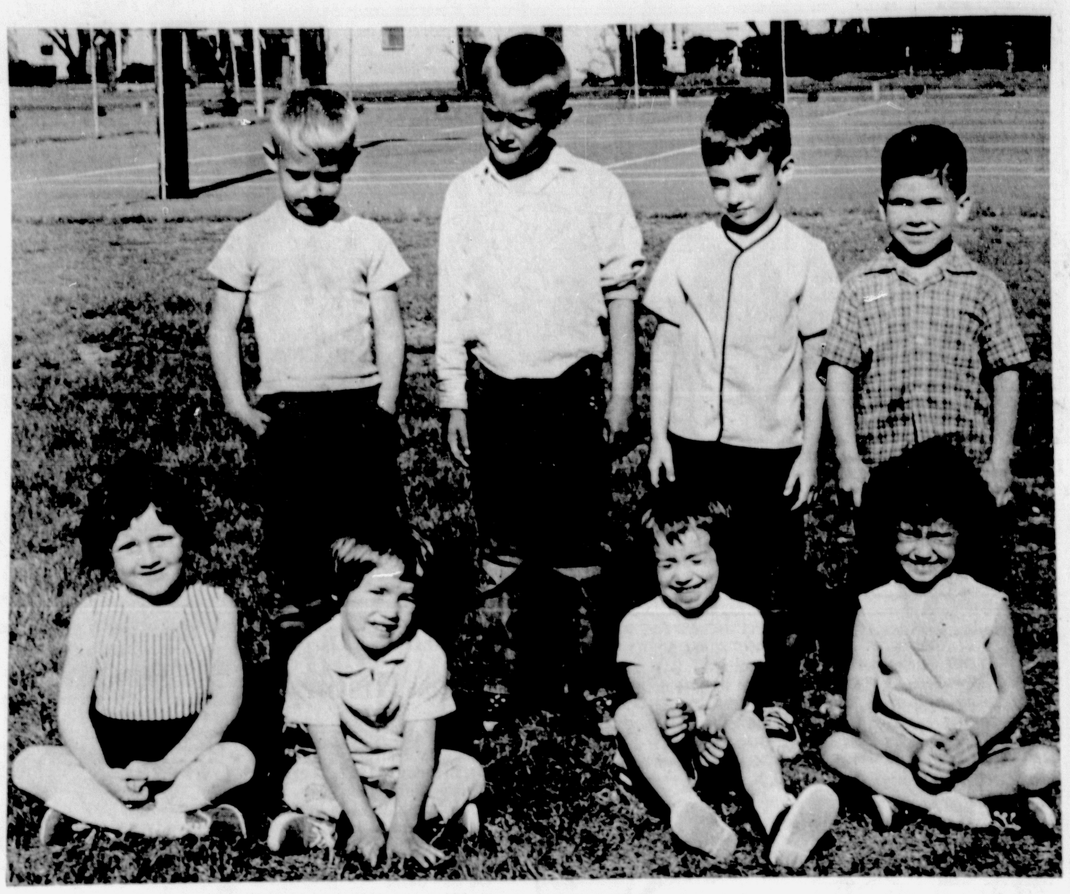

However, malaria has inflicted a heavy toll on the cavalry. A total of 4,000 cases have been reported among the troopers since they arrived in September, 1965. Nine have died. The remainder have returned to duty after treatment.

Newspaper Becomes Target for Arson

ALTON, Ill. (AP) - Police today were investigating four fires set during the night at the Alton Evening Telegraph building.

The newspaper's editor and publisher, Paul Cousley, said he thinks the vandalism might be in retaliation for stories published recently in the paper.

Cousley said the newspaper has been writing stories on loan company practices including the recent beating of a man in debt to a loan firm. Also the paper has been reporting a labor dispute.

A newspaper spokesman said two fires had been started in the basement of the building. The other two were set on the second floor.

Officials said damage to the building in the heart of downtown Alton was minor.

Patriotism depends as much on mutual success. It is by that experience of all fortunes and all feelings that a great national character is created.
